Hearst Urges U.S. Control of Liquor

BOTH SIDES CONFIDENT ON EVE OF ELECTION

Nation's Eyes on Outcome of Fight; Winner to Figure In Presidential Race

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON, International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3.—Attracting the political interest of the nation while shattering party lines within the state, the gubernatorial campaign between Gifford Pinchot, dry Republican, and John M. Hemphill, anti-dry Democrat, closed today with both candidates predicting victory at the polls tomorrow.

Their extraordinary campaign, climaxed time and again by the bolting of influential partisans to the opposite political camp, has won the intense interest of national leaders, because of its possible bearing on the 1932 presidential race.

PRESIDENTIAL SPOTLIGHT

The re-election of the Progressive-Republican Pinchot or the choice of Hemphill as Pennsylvania's first Democratic governor in 36 years would plunge either man directly into the presidential spotlight.

The race ended in fireworks as Pinchot announced he would spend every cent of his personal fortune to punish election frauds, if any were committed by his opposition, while Hemphill charged the Republicans' campaign had included "whispering" and "slanderous misrepresentation." But both were confident of victory.

PINCHOT STATEMENT

Pinchot said:

LANDA LAWRENCE, 5 — BOBO LAWRENCE, 1½

Children by a former marriage who were orphaned when Thomas R. Thompson, 35, their stepfather, according to police, shot and killed their mother, Mrs. Lillian Thompson, 25, in their home in Carrick. Their marriage certificate, torn into little bits, was found.

CARRICK MAN KILLS BRIDE AND SELF

Torn Marriage Certificate Found in Woman's Purse; Deserted Once, Returned

Thomas R. Thompson, 35, and his bride of five months, Lillian Lawrence Thompson, 25, were found shot to death in their room at 2471 Churchview avenue, Carrick, today.

Police said the husband killed his wife, who had left him soon after their marriage, but who returned three months ago, and that he then shot himself.

The woman's pocketbook, containing their marriage certificate, which had been torn to shreds, was found in the room. Authorities were unable to learn what caused the woman to destroy the certificate.

Mrs. Thompson's body, lying face downward on the floor, showed three wounds, one on the chin, one in the heart, and one in the left hand. Thompson, found near his wife, had a bullet in his heart.

WOMAN HEARS SHOTS

Mrs. Mike Romanus, with whom the couple resided, told police she found the bodies after hearing a number of shots fired. She said:

"I was in the cellar washing and I heard them talking. Then I heard a lot of shots and I ran upstairs. They were lying on the floor and I called the police."

Two children of Mrs. Thompson, by a former marriage, Landa, 5, and a son, Bobo, 1½, were in the house at the time, Mrs. Romanus said. She was unable to tell what prompted Thompson's act, but said that "Mrs. Thompson was married too many times."

VICTIM CANVASSER

City Physician E. F. Waller, summoned to the house by police, pronounced them dead, and notified the coroner's office.

A revolver, containing six empty shells, was found near the bodies. Neighbors said that Thompson, who had peddled dry goods from door to door, had resided at the house for four years.

W. R. Hearst's Talk For Liquor Control To Abolish 'Dry' Evil

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 3.

Advocating "A Temperance Plan to Supplant Prohibition," William Randolph Hearst was last evening the guest speaker on the nationally famous Colliers Radio Hour. Speaking from the Earle C. Anthony Station KFI in this city, Mr. Hearst's talk was heard throughout the nation over the networks of the National Broadcasting Company. The full text of the speech follows:

My Friends:

I have to thank Collier's Weekly and the National Broadcasting Company for the privilege of speaking to this wonderful audience.

I am talking as a life-long temperance advocate to temperate people.

I have no sympathy with the extreme wets, whom I have opposed for forty years.

On the other hand, I have little sympathy with the unreasonable drys.

They apparently would rather see the sumptuary situation fall into the hands of the wide open wets than abandon a pet theory which has not proved successful in actual practice.

There is no question that the policy of Prohibition, as far as intent is concerned, was "a noble experiment."

But there is equally no question that in operation it has proved an ignoble failure.

There is no question that opposition to Prohibition is gaining strength every day, and that if this drift continues, the United States will certainly eventually abandon Prohibition just as every other country has done which has ever tried it.

The matter for conscientious temperance people to decide, therefore, is what practical temperance policy is to take the place of impractical Prohibition?

It is not too soon to make plans to prevent the situation from reverting to what it was before Prohibition went into effect.

Whatever good has been accomplished by Prohibition must be retained; but the failures and the evils of Prohibition must be corrected.

In a word, temperance people must not obstinately go down to defeat with a failure, but must remain in a position to strive for and to secure a better temperance measure.

The ardent Prohibition advocate will say:

"Why must we assume that the wets will become strong enough to reject Prohibition?

The reply to that question is that it is no longer a matter of the wets voting against Prohibition.

Why do both the Democratic convention and the Republican convention in the state of Washington declare against Prohibition?

Why does Senator James Hamilton Lewis, Democratic candidate for senator in Illinois, declare against Prohibition; and Mrs. McCormick, his Republican opponent, an absolute dry, declare that she will vote against Prohibition if her state so instructs her?

Why does the incumbent senator from Illinois, Otis F. Glenn, a dry, declare against Prohibition; and why does the incumbent senator from Rhode Island, Jesse H. Metcalf, also a dry, declare against it?

Why does the Church Temperance Society of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 3.—Over a vast radio network embracing a great part of the civilized world, William Randolph Hearst last evening submitted to his fellow countrymen "a temperance plan to supplant prohibition."

In terse and succinct fashion, Mr. Hearst submitted his eagerly-anticipated proposal for meeting the liquor issue. He was the guest speaker on the famous Collier's radio hour on the Earle C. Anthony Station, KFI, over the nation-wide network of the National Broadcasting Company.

WORLD-WIDE EVENT

But, because of the tremendous and universal interest evoked by this, Mr. Hearst's second appearance on the radio, the broadcast became a world-wide event.

Over the short-wave radio the distinguished speaker's words were sent out virtually to every corner of the globe as not only of great importance in the United States, but throughout the world generally as well.

Briefly, Mr. Hearst pointed to the tragic failures incident to the attempt to enforce the present prohibition laws.

Today, he emphasized, it is no longer a question of opposition to prohibition, but one of permitting the situation to revert to the hands of "wide-open wets."

That, now only a possibility, he showed, must ultimately become a certainty unless the avowed drys realize the danger and permit true

2 U. S. CONSULS, WOMAN DROWN

HAVANA, Nov. 3.—(INS.)—A gallant rescue attempt in an unusual accident today had resulted in the deaths of two United States diplomats and the wife of one of them, who lost their lives in the storm-tossed waters of Matanzas Bay.

The victims were John Tillotson Wainwright, prominent clubman of New York, Philadelphia and Washington and United States consul at Matanzas, and Mr. and Mrs. William R. Jackson, of Madison, Ill. Jackson was American consul at Havana and was 36 years old.

The victims were members of a party which had gone to Matanzas Bay on a pleasure trip. They were standing on the edge of a cliff overlooking the bay when a sudden strong gust of wind threw Mrs. Jackson off her balance.

All were caught in a strong undertow.

Clear, Cold Day Seen for Election

Clear, moderately cold weather will prevail tomorrow, election day, according to the official forecast. Rain was reported at Columbus, O., and other points west this morning, but only light rain, if any, is expected here tonight. Clear skies are scheduled by the time polls open. The lowest temperature tonight will be between 35 and 40 degrees.

A pall of smoke and fog hung over the downtown district until after noon. The wind was moving at only from two to four miles an hour, which was insufficient to dispel the haze.

FINAL HEMPHILL RALLY TONIGHT

The final rally in behalf of John M. Hemphill, Democrat-Liberal candidate for governor, will be held in North Side Carnegie Music Hall tonight.

Robert G. Woodside, county controller, will introduce Floyd Gibbons, noted war correspondent and radio announcer, and John T. Flinn, former editor of the New York Globe, who are here to aid the Hemphill cause.

Another speaker will be Stanley White, editor of the Protestant Christian Advocate, who will discuss the prohibition question.

County Chairman Arthur M. Scully of the Liberal Party will be chairman of the meeting.

Gibbons does not know what he will speak about tonight, he says. He declares he is not familiar with local politics, as he is kept busy studying topics of national interest.

When asked why he favors Hemphill for the governorship, Gibbons replied that he admires Capt. Hemphill's war record and British Rum Ship Seized By U. S.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 3.—(INS.)—A British schooner, flying the Union Jack, and said to be the Mazel Toe, was seized today by United States Coast Guard destroyer Tucker.

The British schooner was alleged to have been carrying a cargo of contraband liquor inside the 12-mile limit off the Massachusetts coast. She was brought to state pier here.

The schooner was captured off Gay Head, on the western end of the island of Martha's Vineyard, and not far from the island of No Man's Land.

Eight men, officers and crew of the schooner, were arrested.

That, if you please, is just how "Andy," of Fresh Air Taxi Cab Company, Incorpolated, feels about "Madam Queen" on the occasion of his visit today to Pittsburgh to partake in the celebration of broadcasting's tenth birthday.

Amos (Freeman F. Gosden) 'n' Andy (Charles Correll) will give their nightly broadcast at 7 o'clock tonight from KDKA. After this they will be guests at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company radio birthday banquet in the William Penn Hotel.

They were accompanied here by their wives and President M. H. Aylesworth, of the National Broadcasting Company.

They inquired about their first talking picture, "Check 'n Double Check," and put at rest rumors they wouldn't make another. The success of the initial cinema venture, they said, will result in their beginning production on their second about January 1.

To put the quietus to fears that they might leave the air in the future, both said they wanted it stressed they had signed a seven-year optional contract with NBC.

Spy Sees Green Hat in Wondrous Shapes and Hues

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Senatorial spy went after the man with the green hat.

After the second drink he reported the hat wasn't green. It was black and blue.

Then it became a straw hat. With ear muffs. It was red.

Before the extraordinary session was over it was a trench helmet. With a lightning rod attached.

The spy reports: "Funny thing about that green hat is that it kept changing shape. You could put a string on it and fly it for a kite.

"I couldn t understand how the man in the green hat could get a sunstroke when he was wearing a sun bonnet with purple and gold revolving polka dots.

"I had to telegraph the cabinet for shock troops. When I tasted that stuff I knew they had sent a boy on a man's errand.

"If you want to know the truth, here it is. On second sober thought, it's not a hat at all.

"It's a wire-haired toupee. I've heard of liquor going to a man's head.

"But this is the first time I ever heard of it attacking a man's hat."

W. R. HEARST URGES FEDERAL CONTROL OF LIQUOR SALE

RADIO WORLD TUNES IN ON SPEECH

temperance to replace the ignoble failure that prohibition has become.

URGES FEDERAL CONTROL

As one who for 40 years had led the fight in this country for true temperance, Mr. Hearst advocated the adoption of this plan—a plan that possesses features successfully tried out in Canada and Sweden, where outright prohibition had been found ineffective:

"First, to retain the control of liquor legislation in the federal government;

"Second, to allow restricted manufacture of alcoholic beverages under federal licenses;

"Third, to monopolize the distribution of such alcoholic beverages, preferably light wines and beers, in limited quantities, to licensed restaurants, hotels and homes, but not to any institution or individual whose license shall have been revoked because of misuse or abuse of its privileges."

NEW REVENUE SOURCE

In explanation, Mr. Hearst pointed out that this plan avoids the weakness of the proposal to permit the individual states to determine the problem themselves. Likewise, it "unifies laws and processes throughout the nation," does away with bootlegging and the crimes in its train, inspires true temperance instead of illicit drinking, and finally would have a tremendous and positive economic effect.

In the first place, it would create a new source of revenue for the government of from eight hundred million to one thousand million dollars a year. And again it would establish immediately "many great industries which will spend millions of dollars in buildings and equipment, millions of dollars in buying farm products and millions of dollars in employing labor."

"All of these things," said Mr. Hearst, "are desirable at any time.

"They are especially desirable now at this time of business depression, of widespread unemployment, of anarchistic activity, of general lawlessness, of diminished industry, of high taxation and reduced government income."

NATIONAL HOOKUP

Mr. Hearst spoke from the Earle C. Anthony radio station KFI here, though the program originated in the Times Square studios of the National Broadcasting Company at New York. The national hookup made it possible for Mr. Hearst's address to be "cut in."

John S. Kennedy, associate editor of Collier's, the national weekly, sponsors of Collier's radio hour, introduced Mr. Hearst from the New York studios to the air audience, perhaps one of the largest ever to tune in on a radio address in the United States.

Don Gilman, vice president in charge of the National Broadcasting Company in the West, personally handled the broadcast in so far as Mr. Hearst was concerned, at this point.

Mr. Gilman was acting for Merlin H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Company.

INTRODUCING HEARST

In introducing Mr. Hearst, Mr. Kennedy said:

"On matters of public policy and social practice, Collier's Weekly states its stand in Collier's editorial page. Since the inception of Collier's Hour as a radio extension of the magazine, we have welcomed men and women of all opinions to address this audience—and the audience has done likewise.

"Paraphrasing Voltaire, who, in turn, paraphrased somebody else, we sometimes disagree with opinions expressed by guest speakers; but we insist upon their right to have them and to utter them.

"In this spirit we welcome a fellow publisher, one of the foremost newspaper proprietors of the United States—Mr. William Randolph Hearst, who, as an ardent and even a militant advocate since the rise of his power in the press, will speak to you on a temperance plan to supplant prohibition. Mr. Hearst's views are Mr. Hearst's.

"Collier's takes pleasure in presenting him. Mr. William Randolph Hearst is brought to you by the National Broadcasting Company from Los Angeles."

The address marked the second appearance of Mr. Hearst on a nation-wide radio broadcast. He made his first appearance several weeks ago when he spoke from New York as the guest of Mr. Aylesworth.

Many short-wave stations in various parts of the world took the short-wave broadcast of Mr. Hearst's address and transmitted it in their own areas. Among them were VK2ME at Sydney, Australia; PCJ at Huisen, Holland; G5SW at Chelmsford, England, and CEW at Mexico City.

From this country the address was put by station KDKA at Pittsburgh on its new short-wave station W8XK at Saxonburg, Pa., and thus flashed to the rest of the world.

HEARST LIQUOR CONTROL PLAN STIRS CAPITAL

Temperance Proposal Will Command Outstanding Consideration in Congress

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—When Congress grapples with the prohibition problem at the coming session, the temperance plan outlined last night by William Randolph Hearst will command outstanding consideration.

This appeared a certainty judged by the intense interest aroused in the nation's capital over his nation-wide radio broadcast.

Reception of Mr. Hearst's address came with remarkable clarity to Washington listeners, although the broadcast could not be included by WRC, the local station of the National Broadcasting network, due to other contracted programs.

TAKEN FROM KDKA

The address, given during the popular Collier's Radio Hour, was picked up here from station WJZ in New York, KDKA in Pittsburgh, and WLW in Cincinnati.

Mr. Hearst declared the proposal to modify the laws to allow the various states to decide the prohibition question and enforce prohibition would but continue many of the present-day evils.

His newspapers, he declared, advocate retaining control of liquor legislation by the Federal government, with manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages, preferably beers and light wines, under Federal regulation.

ISSUE UP IN CONGRESS

Congress, in the raging prohibition debates of the last session, resounded with arguments for state, rather than federal control. Anti-prohibitionists and many of liberal tendencies met this with the cry of "nullification," and declared the plan unworkable as a proposal for real temperance.

At the coming session of Congress anti-prohibitionists and true temperance advocates will first make a real drive to consolidate on a fixed program. Administration forces in this connection are awaiting the recommendations of the Wickersham Law Enforcement Commission.

That federal control, rather than federal prohibition, is the road to real temperance, as advocated by Mr. Hearst, has already gained strong support among many members of Congress. This was shown in a report of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment today, revealing the stand of the various congressional candidates.

RASKOB URGES SUPER-ROADS

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Super-highways across the United States as a measure to restore prosperity and at the same time fulfill a national need was advocated last night by John J. Raskob in a radio address over a nation-wide hookup during Collier's hour. He said:

"We have reached a point where the number of motors are so clogging the highways that motoring on week-ends and holidays is no longer the pleasure it used to be.

"We must therefore develop and build what I will term super-highways, thus not only providing work for millions of people over a long period of years, but making possible the further building up of our industries to care for the automobile demand of seven or eight million motor cars annually, requiring the production of countless millions of dollars of materials of every kind, with consequent more stable employment conditions."

SPEEDING DAM TO AID JOBS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—(Universal) — Speeding up detailed plans for the great Boulder Dam in order to throw the full force of that project into the fight against unemployment, the Interior Department today definitely announced that bids for the mammoth construction task will be asked for by December 1.

It was learned authoritatively that the terms of the call for bids will provide that they be opened, and the contracts awarded, in the minimum length of time after advertisement allowed in the law.

Meanwhile, Col. Arthur Woods, employment dictator, announced last night that the E. I. DuPont de Nemours and Company, of Wilmington, has launched a huge project which will provide jobs for thousands of workers, involving months of plant repairs, renewals and replacements which would ordinarily be carried on over a much longer period.

3 COMPANIES QUIZ MEN ON VOTE

Westinghouse Concerns Tell Employes That Preference Should Go to Hemphill

Employes of three Westinghouse companies say they have been asked which gubernatorial candidate they will vote for in the coming election, and have been told by officials that preference should be given John M. Hemphill.

Committees, the workers say, composed of officials and employes went through the various offices and shops at the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company; the Westinghouse Airbrake Company, and the Union Switch & Signal Company taking the names of employes, the candidates they favor, and whether or not they are citizens.

NO COERCION

Employes said that no coercion was used in securing pledges of support for Hemphill, but all of them were told, it was said, that Hemphill is the best man for governor.

Officials of the Westinghouse companies denied knowledge of the reported canvass. A representative of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company contended the canvass was in the interest of naturalization activities in the plant. He said no inquiry was being made as to how employes intended to vote.

A. L. Humphrey, president of the Westinghouse Airbrake Company and leader in the Hemphill cause, could not be reached for comment on the reported canvass.

GRENET NOT IMITATED

The bolting of Samuel J. Grenet, Republican chairman of the Twenty-seventh Ward, to the support of Hemphill for governor, has had little or no effect on the 54 district chairmen and committeemen and women of the ward, a canvass of these minor ward leaders reveals.

Only one committeewoman, Mrs. Lena Martin, of 3100 Brighton road, said that she would follow Grenet's example and support Hemphill.

In his own district, Grenet is opposed by Mrs. Laura Hinnau, who, in addition to being a committeewoman, is vice chairman of the Republican County Committee, and has been one of the most active workers here for the Pinchot cause.

One committeeman and two committeewomen refused to say how they would react to Grenet's move. They are Robert James, of 55 Doerr street; Helen Conors, of 3129 Oxfield street, and Mary C. Maloney. They all said they did not care to say whom they would support. Most of the others were canvassed and unanimously declared they were actively supporting Pinchot.

the Protestant Episcopal Church declare against Prohibition; and why do the responsible heads of the Catholic Church declare against it?

I am not especially authorized to express the reasons which impel these good citizens to oppose Prohibition; but I am at liberty to give my own reasons as a temperance advocate for my opposition.

I imagine my reasons are the reasons of many millions of other citizens who are not wet, but who have come through experience to believe that Prohibition is not only a failure but a definite disaster.

First, to vote against Prohibition is not necessarily to vote wet.

In fact, it is difficult to conceive of any condition which would be much wetter than Prohibition.

For some mysterious reason Prohibition has made drinkers out of many people who had never been drinkers before.

The reason may be because of an independent assertion of personal liberty, or because liquor has been put on the luxury list and so been made more desirable; or because drinking, formerly frowned upon as discreditable, has now the sanction of fashionable society.

Whatever the reason, the fact of more extensive drinking by former abstainers exists.

Second, not only is there more drinking, but worse drinking.

Hard liquor has almost entirely taken the place of comparatively harmless light wines and beers.

The vicious cocktail has contaminated all classes, and greatly demoralized the youth of the land.

Prohibition has made it difficult to deal in comparatively mild alcoholic beverages on account of their bulk.

Consequently, the sneaking hip-pocket flask has taken the place of the decent beer bottle.

Prohibition has confined consumption to highly concentrated alcoholic drinks.

The fanatic Prohibitionist often rejoices at the destruction and death dealt by these poisonous potions; but the thoughtful citizen realizes that the purpose of all sumptuary legislation is the physical as well as moral benefit of the community, and that the health of the citizen is not promoted by poison.

Therefore, the majority of good, moral, temperance people will come to oppose Prohibition because it has proved to be not a temperance measure, but an intemperance measure.

It has failed in its primary object, and in addition, Prohibition evasion and bureaucratic Prohibition enforcement have become a menace to our whole American social and political structure.

Abraham Lincoln said, in discussing the temperance question, that the American people could not be driven to do anything they did not want to do, and that the way to promote temperance was by moral suasion and not by force.

The Republican party can never go far wrong as long as it follows the precepts of its great founder.

Both Republican and Democratic politicians should have known that the American spirit cannot be subdued by force, and that any attempt to impose even a moral principle by violence and violation of American rights and liberties, would surely result in patriotic revolt.

Prohibition has outraged the political freedom and personal liberty which have been the basis of our whole American social and governmental system.

It has demoralized citizenship, making lawbreakers of respectable citizens unwilling to submit to what they consider an unwise and unjust policy imposed by force.

It has introduced an under-cover system of secret drinking in hidden speakeasies into the lives of our people.

It has created in our government methods a system of espionage, authorized housebreaking, and shotgun terrorism which might be characteristic of the most oppressive autocracies of Europe, but which certainly has no place in a free republic.

Prohibition has made crime profitable, and developed it into one of our leading industries.

It has completely corrupted the law enforcement machinery of state and nation.

It has to a degree corrupted the judiciary, and made a racket of justice.

It has turned loose upon the helpless public gangs of assassins, which have extended their lawbreaking operations from bootlegging into every other form of criminal activity, from blackmail and robbery to murder on a cash schedule of rates.

No citizen is safe in his liberty or his life between the outrages of lawbreaking desperadoes on the one hand and law-defying governmental officials on the other.

This is a condition which every intelligent and patriotic citizen is anxious to end, because it is fatal to the peace and permanence of our republic.

The question then for good citizenship is how to end the evil and ineffectiveness of Prohibition, and substitute some practicable and efficient measure which will promote temperance and will not interfere with the fundamental rights and liberties of the citizen.

To accomplish this, two important modifications of present laws and methods are proposed.

One is to modify the laws so as to allow the question of Prohibition and the enforcement of Prohibition to be determined by the several states.

The weakness of this plan is that it continues all of the evils of Prohibition in the Prohibition states, and inflicts some of the incidental evils of Prohibition on the other states, from which lawbreakers may operate, and in which they may take refuge.

The other measure, which the Hearst press advocates, is: First, to retain the control of liquor legislation in the federal government; second, to allow restricted manufacture of alcoholic beverages under federal licenses; third, to monopolize the distribution of such alcoholic beverages, maintaining a high standard of quality and price; fourth, to sell such alcoholic beverages, preferably light wines and beers, in limited quantities, to licensed restaurants, hotels and homes, but not to any institution or individual whose license shall have been revoked because of misuse or abuse of its privileges.

The strength of this latter plan is that its elements are now in successful operation in either Canada or Sweden, both of which countries have tried Prohibition and rejected it as ineffective.

The plan has the following definite advantages:

First—It unifies laws and processes throughout the nation.

Second—It abolishes bootlegging and resultant lawlessness everywhere — not merely in certain localities.

Third—It makes for universal temperance instead of secret drinking in some states and unrestricted drinking in others.

Fourth—It would secure an enormous income of from eight hundred million to one thousand million dollars per year for the government.

Fifth—It immediately establishes many great industries which will spend millions of dollars in buildings and equipment, millions of dollars in buying farm products, and millions of dollars in employing labor.

All of these things are desirable at any time.

They are especially desirable now at this time of business depression, of widespread unemployment, of anarchistic activity, of general lawlessness, of diminished industry, of high taxation and reduced government income.

Therefore, the time to substitute a practicable temperance measure for provenly impracticable Prohibition is now.

Let the country have the immediate benefit first, of the establishment of general and genuine temperance conditions; second, of the re-establishment of law and order based on American rights and liberties; third, of an immense increase in governmental income sufficient to construct great public works, perfect our national defense, and satisfy the just demands of our veterans; fourth, of the prompt establishment of great industries, which will distribute to worthy farmers and workers the enormous sums which now go to subsidizing crime; and finally, the benefit of the creation of a greater sense of satisfaction and content among our people with less likelihood of serious political, social and economic disturbance.

I speak as a temperance advocate who for 40 years led the campaign in this country against hard liquors.

I speak as an editor whose papers furnished the cartoons and editorials for millions of pamphlets distributed by temperance organizations throughout the length and breadth of the nation.

I speak as one who has proved his sincerity by throwing hundreds of thousands of dollars of liquor advertisements out of his papers, and allowing even reputable hotels and restaurants to withdraw their advertising because of the claim that temperance crusades were interfering with their legitimate business.

I speak in the interest of true temperance to patriotic temperance people.

I urge them not to let the situation fall into the hands of the wide open wets, because of the inevitable repudiation of Prohibition, but themselves to reject a policy which has proved a complete moral, legal, social and political failure, and substitute a policy which shall prove an ethical, economical and patriotic success.

Democrats Likely to Obtain Control of House

G.O.P. FACES LOSSES IN SENATE

Expect 53-Seat Turnover To Depose Republicans; Insurgent Gain Seen

By FRASER EDWARDS
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—After weeks of winnowing the wheat of neutral political observations from the partisan chaff of the congressional campaign, this writer ventures the forecast that Tuesday's elections will result in:

Democratic control of the next House by a slender margin and Republican control of the Senate being trimmed down to a precarious "paper" majority, with the balance of power in the hands of a dozen insurgent Republicans.

DEMOCRATS NEED 53

Democratic control of the House depends upon a turnover of 53 seats to wipe out the Republican majority of 103, swept in by the Hoover landslide of 1928. In order to gain control of the Senate, the Democrats must make a net gain of 10 seats to overcome the Republican majority of 15 and 1 Farmer-Laborite.

Republican managers concede the loss of virtually all of the 26 normally Democratic seats captured in the Hoover landslide. These include: Kentucky, 5; Maryland, 1; Missouri, 6; Nebraska, 1; New Jersey, 1; New Mexico, 1; North Carolina, 2; Ohio, 3; Oklahoma, 2; Pennsylvania, 1, and Virginia, 3.

Conceding that the Democrats recapture these seats, they will still be 27 short of the necessary 53 to control the House. But all authorities agree that the possibility lies in the following states:

Colorado, 1; Connecticut, 2; Illinois, 5; Indiana, 6; Iowa, 1; Kansas, 1; Massachusetts, 3; Michigan, 1; New Hampshire, 1; New York, 5; North Dakota, 1; Oregon, 1; South Dakota, 1; Texas, 1; Utah, 1; Washington, 1; West Virginia, 3, and Wisconsin, 1—35.

SENATE EDGE SLIM

The Senate roster now stands 56 Republicans, 39 Democrats and one Farmer-Laborite. Therefore, the Democrats must gain 10 seats to give them a clear majority over all parties. Since they have abandoned hope to re-electing Senator Steck in Iowa, the Democrats must capture 11 places while holding all they have now.

The Democrats apparently have winners in:

Marcus A. Coolidge over William M. Butler in Massachusetts; M. M. Neely over J. Elwood Jones in West Virginia; Robert J. Bulkley over Roscoe C. McCulloch in Ohio; Thomas P. Gore over W. B. Pine in Oklahoma; M. M. Logan over John M. Robison in Kentucky, and J. Hamilton Lewis over Ruth Hanna McCormick in Illinois.

ABYSSINIA'S CORONATION FETE ENDS

Hundreds of Thousands See Monarch, Queen Enthroned With Barbaric Splendor

ADDIS ABABA, Abyssinia, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Not until dawn today did this ancient capital and the hundreds of thousands gathered here quit their celebration of the coronation of Abyssinia's emperor and empress and seek sleep.

Nearly exhausted by a night-long vigil of prayer, Ras Tafari Makonnen, who claims descent from Solomon and the Queen of Sheba, and his wife, Princess Waziru Menen, were taken at daybreak yesterday from the national cathedral to the nearby especially built coronation hall, where they were crowned the three hundred and thirty-fourth rulers of the oldest kingdom in the world.

Thirty-one-year-old Ras Tafari, accepting the bejeweled crown from the Coptic archbishop of Ethiopia, became Emperor Haile Selassie I, Lord King of Kings of Ethiopia, Conquering Lion of the Tribe of Judah, the Elect of God and the Light of the World.

PRINCESS CROWNED, TOO

Princess Waziru Menen, a year his senior and many pounds heavier than he, a few moments later was crowned Empress Etega Menen, Queen of Queens of Ethiopia.

A seven-hour religious service followed the actual coronation, then the two sovereigns entered a golden carriage once owned by the German Kaiser and were driven in princely splendor through the streets to their palace.

SUBJECTS KISS STREET

A thousand of his subjects prostrated themselves before the emperor as he entered his carriage. As the carriage was driven off, the sovereigns bowing to right and left, many of their subjects crowded behind the vehicle, and prostrating themselves, kissed the dusty streets over which it had just passed.

Arrival at the Royal Palace marked the beginning of the week-long celebrations which the Emperor ordained in honor of the event. The hundreds of thousands of the country's 10,000,000 population gathered here began immediately a barbaric sequence of feasting, dance and prayer.

The coronation ceremonies were estimated to have cost the government about $3,000,000 and months of preparation.

PITTSBURGHER PRESENT

Among the Americans who witnessed the colorful coronation of Ras Tafari as emperor at Addis Ababa, Abyssinia, was a prominent Pittsburgher, Dr. Thomas A. Lambie. Dr. Lambie is medical director of the Abyssinian Frontiers Mission.

GIRL GODCHILD OF KAISER DIES

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Miss Bancroft Gherardi, 16, whose godfather was the former Kaiser of Germany, died late Saturday in the medical center.

Miss Gherardi, daughter of Rear Admiral Walter R. Gherardi, became ill while attending the Thomas School at Rowayton, Conn., and was removed to the hospital here where she failed to rally.

Her father was a former naval attache at Berlin and it was there the emperor William acted as godfather at the christening of the infant girl.

Rear Admiral Gherardi, then a captain, was active in the investigations that followed upon the sinking of American vessels by German submarines during the World War.

'31 VOTE LIST CLOSES TODAY

The gates of the Board of Assessment and Revision of Taxes were to close at 4 p. m. today against anybody not assessed for taxes. According to a decision of the Common Pleas Court judges, which struck off thousands of names on the now historic B-to-Z assessment books, no person who is not assessed when the board adjourns this afternoon can vote next year.

Assessment of property will be continued until January 1. The court decision, which was made during the excitement of the primary mayoralty campaign, has been criticized by tax and election law experts. It has been called a popular decision rather than a judicial one.

One judge has indicated that it should not be taken too seriously, but it stands as the law for the tax board until the Supreme Court or the Legislature overrules the local jurists.

C. J. McBride, secretary of the board today said:

"We will not add a single name to our books after today. We believe that every taxpayer has had proper notice. If nobody was at home when the assessors called printed notices were left stating that the first Monday in November is the last day to be assessed for next year. If they failed to come in and be assessed they alone are to blame."

Parade Ends Boris' Marriage Festival

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Nov. 3.—(INS.)—A gigantic parade in the streets before the royal palace today ended the three-day festival over the marriage of King Boris, of Bulgaria, to Princess Giovanna, of Italy.

MERGER HINGES ON CODE RULING

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 3.—(INS.)—Counter attacks in the court battle over the proxies voted in favor of the merger of Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company with Bethlehem Steel Corporation were continued here today as Attorney Howard Burns, Cleveland, took the floor in Common Pleas Court to complete his closing argument in behalf of the defendants in the injunction suit to block the consolidation.

Burn's argument has been confined almost entirely to a refutation of the claims made by the Cyrus S. Eaton attorneys that the proxies were voted in violation to the Ohio corporation code.

The statements of Burns, placed the interpretation of the Ohio corporation code in the hands of Judge David G. Jenkins who is hearing the suit. Judge Jenkins' decision in the case is expected to hinge on his interpretation of the Ohio code.

Liner Goes Aground Off Staten Island

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(INS.)—The passenger and freight liner Columbia, of the Grace Line, went hard aground today off Ford Wadsworth, Stated Island, but was in no danger, the Coast Guard reported.

A Coast Guard patrol boat stood by, but it was believed the ship would be pulled off by commercial tugs.

OIL ON STREAM AGAIN AFLAME

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Another oil fire on the North Canadian river broke out today at a point a mile and a half west of Spencer, and 12 miles from Oklahoma City. Great billows of smoke curled skyward.

The fire was fed by the thick coat of oil that has covered the river surface since last Friday as a result of the wild flow of the C. E. Stout gusher which was brought under control in the Oklahoma City oil field yesterday afternoon.

The river makes a bend and traverses the countryside on both sides of Spencer. Residents of that town were perturbed as there is a large abandoned flour mill not far from the blaze.

A fire which broke out on the river a few miles closer to the capital yesterday afternoon burned itself out late last night.

RAIDERS SACK WRITER'S HOME

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—(INS.)—Prohibition agents, armed with a "John Doe" warrant, raided the home of William P. Flythe, Jr., a newspaper writer assigned to the White House, ransacked the house from cellar to roof, and broke up an afternoon bridge party given by Flythe's 16-year-old daughter and frightened her high school girl guests.

No liquor was found, nor was there a still, which the raiders had sworn existed in the house when they got their warrant from Federal Commissioner Needham C. Turnage.

Flythe said he will ask the district attorney today to prefer perjury charges against the informer who swore he saw a man attending a still in the Flythe home.

"I sometimes have liquor in my home for personal consumption as do many people of high and low degree here. There just happened not to be any in the house when the raiders came," Flythe said today.

Mrs. Flythe was under care of a physician today as a result of the excitement.

Gas Concern Asks Purchase Approval

HARRISBURG, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—The Manufacturers' Light and Heat Company, of Pittsburgh, today asked Public Service Commission approval of the purchase of the gas-producing and distributing system of William J. McMurray, of Canonsburg. The latter supplies gas in McMurray, Bower Hill and Thompsonville, Washington County.

Greek Rebels' Fate In Hands of Cabinet

ATHENS, Nov. 3.—(INS.)—Premier Venizelos, of Greece, held a lengthy conference with his cabinet today to determine measures to be taken against the 200 army officers and civilians seized in connection with an alleged plot against the government. Gen. Theodore Pangalos, former dictator of Greece, was named as the ringleader.

STORMS AGAIN DELAY DO-X

ALTENRHEIN, Switzerland, Nov. 3.—(INS.)—Severe storms raging over the north of Europe today caused a second postponement of the start of the giant flying boat DO-X on its projected flight to the United States.

Hopes had been held out until the last moment that the giant ship would be able to start, but highly unfavorable weather conditions made further postponement necessary.

The DO-X had been all ready for the long-awaited take-off yesterday, but last minute advices telling of stormy weather over England and Holland forced a postponement.

Fliers Pay Honor To Nungesser, Coli

PARIS, Nov. 3.—(INS.)—Maj. Dieudonne Coste and Lieut. Bellonte, France's latest aerial heroes, attended a memorial mass in the chapel of Notre Dame de la Garde, later laying flowers on the spot at Etretat, on the Normandy coast, where Capt. Charles A. Nungesser and Francois Coli were last seen alive.

Coolidge Sees Safeguard To Nation in Heavy Vote

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Nov. 3.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

This republic need fear little international danger if the people conscientiously discharge their duty to vote. All abuses that may arise will be redressed by that constitutional method. We can secure a government of the bad by the good and avoid a government of the good by the bad only through a general expression of the qualified voters.

Calvin Coolidge

We have plenty of unthinking people, some vicious, and others organized for selfish exploitation of the public through governmental agencies. All of these elements vote in full force. In a light vote they will be the decisive factor.

The great body of our people are thoughtful, serious, unselfish and patriotic. They are not easily deceived because they contemplate both the future and the past. Demagogues and false issues do not move them. They have wisdom. They are judges of men. The republic is safe when they vote.

Both the voters and public officers may be confused by complicated governmental questions. But the voters are not confused about candidates. They know a sham from a reality. The country needs the judgment of every enlightened voter on November 4.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

PINCHOT SEEN AS VICTOR BY 50,000

Estimates by Counties Show Hemphill Running Close Race for Governorship

Estimates of probable pluralities in the 67 counties of Pennsylvania indicate a plurality of 50,000 to 100,000 for Gifford Pinchot, the Republican nominee for Governor, over John M. Hemphill, Democratic-Liberal nominee, according to an independent survey announced today.

These estimates, obtained from veteran political leaders and observers in their respective counties, irrespective of party or alignment, are not considered infallible but fairly indicative of the final result unless the Democratic trend and anti-dry opposition to Pinchot should be greater than is now apparent.

35,000 LEAD HERE

Based on past election performances, alignment of political leaders, and sentiment, the estimates, while susceptible to revision, are declared to be as accurate as can be obtained prior to the actual balloting.

In Allegheny County, 35,000 plurality is estimated for Pinchot, while Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong, of the Republican County Committee, claims 60,000 for Pinchot, and many predictions are made by political sharps that Pinchot's plurality in the county will run to 50,000.

In Philadelphia, the Republican organization, which is bolting Pinchot, claims that it will produce 260,000 for Hemphill, the Democratic nominee. Private information, obtained from the same sources, indicate that the Hemphill plurality in Philadelphia is calculated at 230,000 and upwards. In the case of both Allegheny and Philadelphia leaders, their claims have been reduced in these estimates.

Ancient Toads Break 300-Year Fast—Die

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—The modern age was too much for two toads excavated from an Indian mound in the Oklahoma Panhandle by Curator J. B. Thoburn, of the Oklahoma Historical Society. They died, following in death by several weeks a third "hopper" dug up at the same time, September 30.

Thoburn claimed the toads had been in the mound for 300 years or more. Other scientists didn't believe it.

Some observers believed the demise of the toads followed a diet of flies after years without sustenance. Their official custodian wouldn't advance a theory. He said they appeared "weak" several days ago.

Expect Heavy Vote In Greene County

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Nov. 3.—One of the heaviest votes ever cast at an election in Greene County is anticipated Tuesday by political leaders of both parties here. The intense fight for governor is being paralleled by a close race between Roy Clovis, Republican, and William Garard, Democrat, for representative in the general assembly. Strength of the two candidates in the governorship race is believed about even here.

Senator Brandt Sees District for G. O. P.

"The Fortieth Senatorial District is well organized for the straight Republican ticket from top to bottom. Citizens of my district are aroused and I predict the largest straight ticket vote ever cast for the enitre ticket, from Gifford Pinchot down the entire list."

believes that he will make Pennsylvania an excellent governor. About Pinchot he had nothing to say except that they do not know each other.

SCULLY HOPEFUL

Arthur M. Scully, Allegheny County chairman of the Liberal party, asserted he would make no predictions as to the outcome of the gubernatorial contest except to say that the vote for Hemphill would be surprising to the Republican organization and quite satisfactory to the Liberal party.

Scully last night addressed a letter to County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, western field marshal of Gifford Pinchot's primary campaign, calling attention to the fact there are indications that election frauds, of the kind McGovern has vigorously contested, are about to be repeated.

Scully asked McGovern to join in the prosecution of anyone apprehended in crimes against the purity of the ballot.

"ACTIVITIES IMPARTIAL"

In reply to Scully's letter, McGovern today said his activities for clean elections had always been impartial and non-partisan and that Scully could depend on his doing all in his power to prosecute perpetrators of election frauds, no matter in whose interest they were committed.

McGovern explained that the Prothonotary's office now receives the general election returns and counts the votes, while he only received the primary returns. He said:

"On account of these changed conditions, it will therefore be impossible to render the same service for which you generously gave me credit in the spring primary.

"I do not recall having received any similar co-operation from yourself or your associates."

ATTACK DENOUNCED

A letter branding as "absolutely unwarranted," an attack on Hemphill by Dr. A. S. Morgan, of Philadelphia, has been forwarded by Scully to every member of the Allegheny County Medical Society. Dr. Morgan's attack was contained in a letter to all doctors in the state, in which the doctor declared Hemphill had studied law in the office of Francis Shunk Brown and "is but the tool in the hands of Mr. Brown." Dr. Morgan's letter stated:

"Organized medicine in Pennsylvania must fear the danger of power in the hands of Mr. Brown, whose uniform classification for years has been that of arch champion of the cults."

Scully stated last night that three instances of Pinchot's "broken pledges" were sufficient reasons to justify voters in supporting Hemphill.

The three instances cited by Scully were:

"Failure to carry out pledges to support and co-operate in the enactment of women's and child labor laws and amendments to the workmen's compensation act.

"Failure to intervene and save the bituminous coal industry of Western Pennsylvania and keep thousands of families from starving and from living in tents and barracks in 1924.

"Failure to take proper action against the state banking department following the collapse of John Bell's Carnegie Trust Company with a loss of $26,000,000 to 10,000 depositors in 1926."

The Liberal party has announced that a legal committee will sit in the party headquarters, 322 Wood street, during the voting period tomorrow to meet any situation growing out of possible attempts to violate the ballot laws.

The committee includes Simon T. Patterson, R. A. Applegate, A. B. Churchill, T. P. Trible, Jr., Fleming Nevin, H. S. Dunn, R. B. Greer, C. F. McGregor, Wells Fry, J. I. Simon, W. S. Doty, Thomas Thornton, Lawrence J. Purpura, J. M. Flannery, D. C. Anderson, Bennett Rodgers, W. R. Scott, A. G. Smith, Harmar D. Denny, Jr., and Arthur M. Scully.

GRAHAM URGES NEW VOTE BASIS

A new law fixing the basis of representation in Congress on the actual number of American citizens in each congressional district was advocated today by U. S. Attorney Louis E. Graham in an address before the Methodist Episcopal Ministers Association.

The speaker reviewed prohibition, racketeering, gambling, divorce, fraudulent bankruptcies and crime in general and expressed the opinion that ultimately there will be a metropolitan police throughout the nation to cope with liquor evils. Attorney Graham emphasized there must be proper organization to fight organized crime. He said in part:

"Too many persons are selecting what laws they are willing to obey. Our foreigners are used to drink, desire it and fall easy prey to bootleggers. In New York, for instance, there are 12,000 Americans in LaGuardia's district and more than 200,000 unnaturalized foreigners. Do not misunderstand me, I am not speaking against foreigners, but we find them principally in the cities where they are easily influenced."

TOPE ATTACKS REPEAL CLAIMS

The Rev. Dr. Homer W. Tope, state superintendent of the Pennsylvania Anti-Saloon League, attacked claims of anti-prohibitionists in an address in the First United Presbyterian Church, Braddock, yesterday.

Pointing out that the league could control at least one branch of the legislature in 13 states until "Gabriel blows his horn," Dr. Tope said the assertion of President Curran, of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, that the Eighteenth Amendment would be a memory in 1935, was not founded on sound facts.

Dr. Tope predicted the election of Pinchot and 21 of the 36 congressmen to be chosen in the state at tomorrow's election.

Predicts Socialists Will Poll 150,000

Mayor J. Henry Stump, of Reading, state chairman of the Socialist party, today expressed satisfaction with the Pennsylvania campaign and predicted the Socialists would poll 150,000 votes tomorrow.

Dr. William J. Van Essen, of Pittsburgh, Socialist nominee for United States senator, today announced that the party will elect congressional and state Legislature candidates in Pennsylvania and New York. He expected a record vote would be polled for John H. Maurer, Socialist nominee for governor of Pennsylvania.

Democrats Asked To Work at Polls

David L. Lawrence, Allegheny County chairman of the Democratic party, has joined with Campaign Chairman Charles Alvin Jones in asking party supporters to work at the polls tomorrow. They issued this statement:

"We are on the eve of victory but this can only be brought about by careful, conscientious work on your part at the polls. There should be a careful examination of all register lists and a constant vigilance maintained to guard against fraud which we have reason for believing will be attempted."

Election Boards

Tuesday night, a tri-state election canvasser will visit your polling place gathering returns, as he has for the past 20 years. Any courtesies extended him will be appreciated by this newspaper and will help to give its readers the usual speedy and accurate returns which your co-operation in the past has made possible.

1,500 TO HONOR FATHER HEHIR

The Rev. Dr. James F. Carroll, vice president of Duquesne University, general chairman of the testimonial dinner to the Very Rev. M. A. Hehir in the William Penn Hotel at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow, has announced that 1,500 members of the alumni, faculty and student body will be present at the dinner. It will be a tribute to Father Hehir, who was president of the university for 31 years. The Rev. J. J. Callahan, of Cornwells Novitiate, Cornwells Heights, Pa., will succeed him.

Speakers at the dinner will be prominent leaders in public life in Pittsburgh. Judge Frank P. Patterson is general chairman. Five phases in the life of the Duquesne retiring president will be discussed by James Francis Burke, the Rt. Rev. Hugh C. Boyle, bishop of Pittsburgh; Dr. S. S. Baker, president of Washington and Jefferson College; John S. Herron, president of City Council, and John E. Laughlin, vice dean of the Duquesne University law school.

The presentation speech, "Our Honored Guest," will be made by P. W. Ries, Jr.

NEW IDEA SAVES SILK HOSE

Did you ever realize that it is the oily excretion of the sebaceous glands and rubbing that keep you buying silk hose and lingerie so often? This oil film that next-to-skin garments absorb is destructive to silks, because it softens and rots the fibre. Soap and water alone will not cleanse it out. Only a solvent like Energine cuts it. Add a tablespoonful of Energine to a quart of lukewarm soapy water. Wash thoroughly, rinse well. Note the new cleanliness—the pleasing freshness—see how original color is revived. And all this with far less rubbing. You'll be amazed at difference in results from washing in just soap and water, and your silken hose and undergarments will last longer. And don't forget millions use Energine daily for quick removal of dirt and grease spots from suits, hats, dresses, gloves, shoes. Large can 35c. Get Energine today.

THINGS TO DO EARLY FOR CHRISTMAS

Less than eight weeks until Christmas—and so many things to do and have done. Here are a few things that you should take care of now—and have out of the way when gift shopping begins in earnest.

Christmas Cards

Attend to them while there's time to make a leisurely selection and while the stocks are large and varied. Balcony.

Christmas Engraving

The engraving of greeting cards should be taken care of now before the great volume of orders make delivery uncertain. Check, too, the number of personal cards you will need to enclose with gifts. Balcony.

Engraved Stationery

Handkerchief Monogramming

The great popularity of monogrammed handkerchiefs as gifts may make it necessary for us to cease taking orders as early as November 15th to insure Christmas delivery. Many styles for men, women and children. Main Floor.

Leather Monogramming

Luggage to Be Monogrammed

A trunk, bag or case with the recipient's initials stamped or hand-painted on it makes a gift with a distinctly personal touch. There is no charge for monogramming luggage. Third Floor.

Jewelry and Silver Engraving

—should be attended to as early as possible to obviate the possibility of disappointment in last-minute selection. Main Floor.

Gifts to Make

Dainty things to embroider—that make practical and personal gifts. A varied selection in the Notions Section includes luncheon and bridge sets, doilies, towels, vanity sets, bedspreads and other decorative things for the home. Main Floor.

Needlepoint Tapestries

—for foot stools, chair seats and pillows—with the floral design already done and only the background to be finished. In the Notions Section. Main Floor.

Lamp Shade Making

An attractive shade, made by your own hands, makes an appreciated gift, but one you must begin early. All the needed materials are to be found here and there is no charge for instruction. Fourth Floor.

Monogramming Glassware and China

One of the most distinctive gifts one can give is glassware with the individual's monogram—or lovely china with one's initial in gold. These are monogrammed to special order and require several weeks for delivery. Fifth Floor.

Embroidered Linens

Picture Framing

If you are giving photographs, or wish to make an individual selection of pictures and frames, we suggest giving it your early attention this month. Fourth Floor.

Magazine Subscriptions

A year's subscription to a favorite magazine makes a long-remembered gift! Place your orders for gift magazines now and insure prompt receipt of the January number. Special club rates for subscriptions to two or more periodicals. Main Floor.

Let's Take the Campaign Apart and See How it Works:

PLAIN TALK to the CITIZENS of ALLEGHENY COUNTY

What do you intend doing about electing a Governor tomorrow?

Will you vote wisely—or politically?

If you vote wisely, you will consider that the best brains of Allegheny County reason that John M. Hemphill, and not Gifford Pinchot, is the fit man to be Governor of Pennsylvania.

The names signed to the endorsement of Hemphill are of men well known to this whole community. They are names that mean something; that stand for achievement in the upbuilding of this industrial county.

Many of these men, ALL REPUBLICANS, have the responsibility of directing industries and businesses employing thousands. Yet Pinchot would have you believe that he, never a business man himself, is better able to provide an economic remedy for the existing hard times than they.

And Now for the Political Set-up:

On the other side in this contest is an influence which is best described with four names, grouped together. Here they are:

PINCHOT-COYNE KLINE-ARMSTRONG

There are others in the political end of the Pinchot campaign in Allegheny county, but these four are the foundation of the political organization which Pinchot expects to elect him on the grounds of party regularity.

The names of Pinchot and Coyne are linked with hyphens because they are considered on a state-wide basis.

The explanation is simple. Senator Joseph R. Grundy, whom the citizens of this industrial county know only too well, is Pinchot's chief backer in the state. He is the money man!

Grundy depends upon State Senator James J. Coyne to act as Pinchot's manager in Allegheny County and Grundy deals with him just as he did in the primary.

Thus it is seen that there are strange elements in the election. Pinchot, the candidate of the Anti-Saloon League, is represented in this part of the state by Coyne!

The Other Political Angle:

With regard to Commissioner Armstrong and Mayor Kline, their situation differs because they opposed Pinchot in the primary. Coyne didn't. He supported Pinchot, as part of his fight to nominate Grundy for the Senate.

Mayor Kline and Commissioner Armstrong are demanding that party regularity be observed.

They refuse to take into account the fact that Pinchot long has been an enemy of the Republican Party; that he has villified it repeatedly and declared over his own signature, "I am not a Republican!"

Thousands and thousands of Republicans in Allegheny County will not have Pinchot. These make up the Liberal Party.

In short, a multitude of Republicans have declared a POLITICAL STRIKE against Pinchot!

They will vote the Republican ticket for all candidates—except Pinchot.

For Governor, they will vote for Hemphill. That is easily done, by marking an X in the Republican Straight Ticket column and an X opposite Hemphill's name, as the Liberal Party candidate.

"Politics Makes Strange Bed Fellows"

THE LIBERAL PARTY OF PENNSYLVANIA
CHARLES DORRANCE, Chairman

HEMPHILL for GOVERNOR

BOTH SIDES SEE VICTORY

in the primary, defeated before the Supreme Court, it will be defeated again tomorrow by the overwhelming sentiment of the honest people of this state.

"Sixty-six of the 67 counties of Pennsylvania are in line for the whole Republican ticket. The situation is so good that I warn every voter to let nothing interfere with casting his or her vote lest over-confidence should forfeit our victory.

URGES EARLY VOTE

"Whatever else you do, vote and vote early tomorrow. To every wavering person in Philadelphia I want to say that a vote for Hemphill is a vote wasted.

"Ask you who read these lines to throw your weight against the proposal of Atterbury and the Philadelphia gang to control the commonwealth of Pennsylvania. There is only one way to do that: Come out and vote!

"Will the answer of our people to the proposal to tie them to the Atterbury chariot meet the response it deserves? Freedom was born in Pennsylvania. Why should they give it up by turning Pennsylvania over to the public utilities and the Philadelphia gang? Be sure nothing prevents you from voting tomorrow."

HEMPHILL CONFIDENT

Hemphill countered:

"I am not going to engage in any bombast about the size of my majority in tomorrow's election. It is more important for me to deny, once and for all, the slanderous misrepresentation of my opposition, before I am elected governor of Pennsylvania."

Hemphill will be elected by 150,000 majority, Charles Dorrance, state chairman of the Liberal party, predicted. His statement said:

"I have been in close touch with my principal political managers throughout Pennsylvania. Basing my opinion on the reports which have come to me from them, the only question is the size of Mr. Hemphill's majority.

"I will be disappointed if Mr. Hemphill's majority does not reach 150,000 as I see no possibility of Mr. Pinchot coming to Philadelphia with even 100,000 majority."

MAURER SURE OF DEFEAT

The third candidate, James H. Maurer, Socialist nominee, awaited the verdict confident of defeat. He hasn't even an outside chance of winning and has gone so far as to predict Hemphill's election.

The exciting battle over the governorship has eclipsed all the other state contests, but Pennsylvania will elect a United States senator, 36 representatives to Congress, 27 state senators, a whole State House of Representatives and a complete state ticket.

Aside from Pinchot's fate all the other Republicans running on the states-wide ticket will win by the usual majority. Secretary of Labor James J. Davis probably will defeat his opponent, Sedgwick Kistler, by 400,000 for the U. S. Senate seat denied William S. Vare a few years ago and held since by Joseph R. Grundy by special appointment.

The wholesale bolting characterizing the gubernatorial contest may have strange effects on the races for congress. The Republicans now hold all but one of the 36 seats.

STEAL BALLOTS OF 3 PRECINCTS

The election material was delivered at the Johns home and received by Johns' sister-in-law, Mrs. Mary Cunningham, detectives said.

Mrs. Cunningham said a man appeared later, saying he had been sent by Johns to get a package, and she gave it to him.

Johns reported he had been away during the day and when he returned at 11 p. m., he was told about the unknown caller and the disappearance of the books and ballots.

Mrs. Logue, wife of the election judge in the Thirteenth District, signed for the ballots when they were delivered, but later turned them over to two men who said they represented the County Commissioners and wanted the ballots back as there had been a mistake.

The Bureau of Elections is having the ballots reprinted for both districts and will deliver them at the polling places tomorrow.

100 Prizes at $2	200.00
Total (230 Cash Prizes)	$1,500

FOLLOW THESE RULES

1—Every one is eligible to participate in the New "Title Hunt" except employes of the Sun-Telegraph and their families.

2—Every day from November 2nd to December 1st inclusive, ten Ripley "Believe It or Not" pictures (without descriptions) will be published in addition to the regular Ripley sport page feature. The descriptions for each picture will be published in the Classified Ad Columns.

3—The New Ripley "Title Hunt" consists in finding the descriptions, clipping them out, and placing each under the picture to which it refers. The words making up each description will be published as a single unit in one place.

4—Hold all of the pictures until you have thirty complete sets of 10 each—300 pictures in all. Then send them in to the New Ripley "Title Hunt" Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Telegraph Square, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

5—All entries must be postmarked not later than midnight, Friday, December 11th. No entries will be returned to the sender.

6—Fifteen hundred dollars in cash prizes, in accordance with the complete prize list published herewith, will be paid to the persons sending in the most nearly correct and most neatly prepared complete set of pictures at the close of the New Ripley "Title Hunt."

—A committee of judges will be appointed by the Sun-Telegraph to determine the successful contestants. All entrants agree to accept the decisions of these judges as final. In case of ties a duplicate award will be given each tying contestant.

8—It is not necessary to purchase the Sun-Telegraph to compete. This newspaper may be examined at the office or at the public libraries free of charge and if you wish you may copy or trace the pictures from the Sun-Telegraph and then assemble the sets from the copies you have made.

Be Sure to Get All the Pictures

The demand for both the week day and Sunday editions of The Sun-Telegraph is bound to be immense and each day's supply quickly exhausted. To be sure you get the pictures and descriptions as they appear each day, it is good judgment to place a regular order NOW.

NEWS FROM LOCAL THEATERS COMBINED WITH HOLLYWOOD, GOTHAM CHAT

Finding Stories for Movies Comedians is Real Studio Worry

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1930, Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3.

After months of search, Fox has finally discovered a story for an El Brendel starring vehicle.

It's called "Poor John" and is from the pens of two authors on the lot, Sonya Levin and Harry Reif. The principal character is a Swedish janitor in an apartment house.

DeMille was the 1930 man in De Sylva Brown and Henderson's "Just Imagine."

For some time now, Brendel has had stardom hung tantalizingly in front of him. All that was lacking was a story, and now that is supplied. The comedian's best role to date

In research for his coming production of "The Squaw Man," Cecil B. De Mille ran across a faded program of Morosco's Burbank Theater, March 31, 1912.

It was for a production of "The Squaw Man," with Forest Stanley as the male lead. Way down in a long list of Jim Carston's cowpunchers in pica type, was the name, Robert Z. Leonard.

De Mille showed the program to Leonard.

"Ah," commented the portly director, "that was in the days when horses didn't mind when they saw me coming."

A DEAL IN STEEL

Tom Reed, the scenarist, and Arthur Ungar, formerly of Variety and now an associate producer at Universal, are leaving shortly for Birmingham to get atmosphere for a steel mill story for the young hero of "All Quiet on the Western front."

They'll return by way of Pueblo to study mines.

In the meanwhile, Ayers is to have the lead in "Babies Won't Tell," a sequel to "The Little Accident."

REVIVE OLD DEVICE

If present negotiations go through, Jean Hersholt will make a novelty picture for Universal, similar to the late George Beban's "The Sign of the Rose."

Jean Hersholt

Several reels of the film will unfold, then the screen will rise and Hersholt will do a number of scenes in person. At length the screen drops again and the projection machine takes up the thread of the plot.

Beban toured several years in "The Sign of the Rose," which was similar in nature.

Do you know that Glenn Tryon worked before a blast furnace in a Pennsylvania steel mill to make the stake that took him to New York and the stage.

WELCOME, BROTHER

Finally he said:

Whoopee!

REX BEACH'S ALASKA FINDS VOICE IN NEW FILM

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Gary Cooper, lanky Montana cowboy, follows the silent footsteps of William Farnum and Milton Sills along the frenzied route to Alaska on the Fulton and Sheridan Square screens. The event is the talk version of Rex Beach's old story, "The Spoilers." And it can be reported that Mr. Cooper makes the hero as much a he-man as ever he was in the quiet days of Farnum and Sills.

The plot concerns gold-rush days, Government, crooked politicians and two men who want the same woman and two women who want the same man.

The big moment is the fistic battle between Hero and Villain. Hero throws their respective revolvers through a nice pane of window glass and then announces: Now we'll fight it out together.

Chairs are smashed, lamps upset, tables overturned—as has been done hundreds of times before in the movies. Yet, it is action. "Wham" and "bang" registers the sound apparatus. But it's all so fast that it's difficult to tell which signifies a sock on the jaw and which a blow in the stomach.

'TIS VILLAIN WHO PAYS

After the fighters wreck a perfectly good room, they tumble outdoors and bounce down a flight of steps, ending in the middle of the street. And what an awful trouncing Hero Cooper gives William Boyd. Somehow you get the idea poor Mr. Boyd must wish he was back on the stage playing Sergeant Quirt again. But that's the way it goes. It is the villain and not the woman who pays and pays in the movies.

Betty Compson and Kay Johnson put the feminine interest in the film. Miss Compson is a dance hall girl. Kay is an aristocratic lady from Washington, D. C. Her chief reason for being in Alaska at all is to save a garrison of soldiers from being blown up and to be present for the grand romantic clinch. And this, of course, is reason enough!

FOR GOLD AND FRIEND

Harry Green puts in comedy as a storekeeper, who is influenced by "supply and demand." And "demand" has the best of it. Eggs sell at $15 a dozen. A three-week old newspaper is worth twenty "bucks." (We'll have to tell the fellow who collects the old papers about this).

Slim Summerville does a sympathetic part as a pal of our hero. He's not much for fancy shirts and Government. But gold, Alaska and his friends! For such things as these, he dies.

"The Spoilers," as a talkie, is boisterous entertainment. It is filled with action and "atmosphere." But it is episodic; at times, a bit confusing. There are spots when printed sub-titles are used to cover big chunks of the dramatic story.

Things I Never Knew Till Now

That the letters O. N. T., used as a trade mark on spools of thread, are the initials of "Our New Thread," and was first used in 1862 when the Clark Thread Company developed it. I can do card tricks, also.

That Joe Miller's Joke Book is not the oldest of the joke tomes which appeared in 1739. "Scoggin's Jests" was published in 1565.

That Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter" ranks as the first and the only "real American Novel" ever published. That should melt a head or two.

That airplane is correct here, but in France it is aeroplane.

That Queen Anne, who reigned over England from 1702 to 1714, gave birth to 17 children, none of whom survived her.

That stockbrokers on the West Coast during the daylight saving time season must be in their offices at 5 a. m.

That James Madison was the first President of these United States to wear long trousers (pants to you.)

That the American Hebrew is printed by a lad tagged O'Brien.

That each of the seven musical notes is called by a first syllable of one of first seven lines of the Catholic hymn to St. John.

That you can get vegetable ice cream in Detroit—flavored with oranges, beets, carrots, spinach, celery, peas and beans. Ugh!

That talking pictures are now being produced in 64 languages.

That the Tango is barred in Chili, where they hate Argentines.

That the correct way to write the line, "There are three 2's in the English language" is: "There are three too's in the English language."

That dry sand is heavier than wet sand. Wot'll y'bet?

That there are no two things alike in the whole world—natural or artificial. No two leaves or snowflakes are exactly alike, either.

That a feller named Aldus Manutius, an Italian printer and scholar, invented the present system of punctuation. So that's the guy?

That to "walk Spanish" means to grab a chap by the seat of the pants and the collar and rush him along so he walks on his toes.

That Lincoln didn't originate the crack: "Government of the people, by the people, for the people." He borrowed both the thought and the phraseology from a guy tagged Teddy Parker, a minister.

That A. Moment is sales manager of the General Etching and Mfg. Co., Chicago.

That Heine asserted that to the Spaniards is due the honor of having produced the best novel, that England has the credit for achieving the highest rank in drama and the Germans the best poems and ditties.

That Cervantes argued that the word no longer belongs to the speaker once it has passed his lips, especially when it has been multiplied by the press. No wonder plagiarists beat so many lawsuits.

That corn grows faster at night, particularly when it is warm.

That it was Dr. Johnson who said: "To exact of every man who writes, that he could say something new, would be to reduce authors to a small number." Of course he didn't mean us, Mr. Hades-inger.

That a druggist is responsible for an error on a doctor's prescription no matter how perdiculous the doc's penmanship.

That realtors will tell you that skyscrapers are financial failures and no more will be built for several years.

That American history dates back to 450 A. D. In this year a Buddhist missionary visited Fu Sang in America. Ah, there, Chris!

That "chain-letters" are illegal if sent by postcard as they contain "threats."

The postoffice accepts them only in envelopes.

That the Alma Mater song of the University of Pittsburgh is sung to the melody of the German tune, "Deutschland uber Alles."

That the Emperor of Persia denominates himself the "Sun of Glory and the Nutmeg of Delight."

Russia Discussed At Church Forum

Open forum at the East End Christian Church yesterday during one of the Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers' lectures on modern Russia produced questions consuming most of the period. Questions were asked and answered on marriage, divorce, political leadership, the American debt, the church and Russian selling of wheat in the United States.

Dr. Titus Asked To Child Conference

Dr. Paul Titus, of Pittsburgh, has been invited by President Hoover to attend the White House conference on child health and protection, November 19 to 22. Dr. Titus is chief of obstetrics at St. Margaret's Hospital, and is secretary of the American Board of Obstetrics and Gynecology.

TALKIES BRINGS JONES AND THE MARINES TO HARRIS

By MILDRED FILLMORE

Another dual bill is being exhibited on the Harris talk screen. The top feature is "Soldiers and Women." The runner-up is "Men Without Law."

"Soldiers and Women" is one of those tropical stories. It concerns itself with a group of U. S. Marine officers, stationed at one of those sultry outposts, and their wives. The wives are "bored to death" and the husbands just bored. But in spite of the boredom, the situations develop. Why, there is even a murder!

Aileen Pringle and Grant Withers head the cast. The oldtime actor, Emmett Corrigan, is prominent as a general or some such. Helen Johnson and Walter McGrail also are prominent.

"Men Without Law" is a Buck Jones production. So you can bet on the galloping and the gunplay. And we guess you can bet on the hero getting the heroine at the finale. We didn't wait to see.

THREE FROM SCREEN COME TO OUR STAGE

Lillian Gish heads a company that will appear for the first time in the Shubert Alvin tonight in the Jed Harris production of the Chekhov comedy, "Uncle Vanya."

Next week's attraction in the Alvin will be Elmer Rice's "Street Scene," an unusual play that enjoyed a long run in New York—600 performances.

Vilma Banky and Rod La Rocque, recently of the screen, will be seen tonight in the Nixon in "Cherries Are Ripe," a comedy by John Emerson and Anita Loos.

"Strictly Dishonorable" is booked for the Nixon next week. It is a comedy by Preston Sturges, now in the fourteenth month of its run in New York.

In the Pitt tonight George Sharp's Players will offer "Meet the Wife," comedy in which Mary Boland starred originally.

Bellevue Barbers Wage Price War

A price war among Bellevue barbers has resulted in some shops reducing the price for cutting women's and children's hair to 25 cents. Other shops formerly charging 50 cents have lowered their price to 35 cents.

Musical

Eddie Peyton and his orchestra will furnish musical entertainment as an added attraction in the Pitt, beginning tonight, when "Meet the Wife" will be presented by the George Sharp Players.

Bellevue Bond Issue Not to Affect Taxes

The Finance Committee of Bellevue Council, consisting of John H. Bragdon, Ralph D. McKee and William B. Rodgers, has issued a statement that the proposed $50,000 bond issue to be voted on tomorrow, if approved, will not increase taxes. Retirement of $100,000 bonds in the next three years will reduce the fixed charges to offset the new interest charge involved in the proposed issue, the committee states. The bonds are proposed for purchase of a new recreation field near the Bellevue end of the Jack's Run Bridge of the Ohio River boulevard.

Good Foods' Largest Market

The miracle wrought by low prices

"Chain stores are of real benefit not only to the consumer, but also to the grower of foodstuffs . . . The chain store is raising the standard of food products at lower costs to the consumer."

No friend of chain stores said this. It was addressed by Dr. James E. Boyle, professor of rural economy at Cornell University, to a recent meeting of the Farmers' Marketing Conference in the University of Maryland.

Dr. Boyle, like everyone else who has studied the subject without prejudice, puts his finger on the point of vital importance to customers of A&P. They enjoy the highest standards of eating at lowest cost to themselves.

They raise the standard of food products by their steady buying of the best. So, too, their buying encourages ample supplies of the high grade food they demand and can afford to pay for in A&P stores.

That is why A&P stores are the largest market in the world for food only the few could buy if A&P did not cut the cost to the bone.

SEIZURE HALTS SUNDAY SHOWS

LAUREL, Miss., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Sheriff's officers had a hard time here yesterday trying to close Sunday moving picture shows at two local theaters, but finally achieved their object.

Deputies attempting to stop the performances, sponsored by the American Legion, found that as fast as they arrested an operator another was put in his place. Every time an operator started running the film, he was arrested and a $500 bond required.

The performances were finally stopped by the seizure of the films. Nine operators and the manager of one of the theaters were arrested. Three of the operators were arrested twice.

RIVESVILLE, W. Va., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—The first attempt to hold a Sunday motion picture show here resulted in the arrest of Alfred Pellillo, owner of the theater, and Mrs. Sophona Morrone, ticket seller. They were held under $500 bail each.

COAL OUTPUT SHOWS GAINS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—(Universal.)—While anthracite production was soaring well above the figure for the same week of last year, bituminous production in American mines for the seven days ending October 25 passed the 10,000,000-ton mark for the first week since last February, the Bureau of Mines announced.

Bituminous coal production for the week was 10,438,000 tons, against 9,230,000 tons the week before, an increase of 13.1 per cent.

The anthracite increase was from 1,304,000 tons during the week ending October 18 to 1,867,000 the week ending October 25, an increase of 43 per cent.

Real Estate

Dickie and Brown were the brokers in the sale for the Junior Order of United American Mechanics to the Rev. Edward M. McFadden of a seven-room brick and stucco dwelling at 93-f Heberton avenue, Eleventh Ward, for $12,000. The buyer has already occupied the home.

Dr. Harold J. Dorrance has occupied a home at 714 South Negley avenue, Seventh Ward, recently purchased from Robert A. McKean for $24,500. The lot is 62x175 feet.

A house in Beaufort avenue, Nineteenth Ward, lot 40x120 feet, has been sold by Marie G. Schwenke to Harry E. Rupp.

A property in Brookline boulevard, Overbrook, lot 30x105 feet, has been sold by Nathan Altshuler to Jacob Engel.

A property in Lemington avenue near Wardsons way, Twelfth Ward, has been conveyed by Herman Gumto to Samuel D. Shearer. The lot is 25x82 feet.

A house in Townsend street, Third Ward, has been sold by Jacob E. Kalson to William A. Harris.

An improved property in Second street, Rankin, has been sold by Joseph M. Hollander to Minnie Kramer for $4,500. The lot is 24x60 feet.

In the North Boroughs, the County of Allegheny has purchased 50x350 feet in River road, Avalon, from Alfred Richardson, and 50x150 feet in River road from S. G. Patterson. The land is a part of the Ohio River boulevard route.

The Wellington Heights Land Company has conveyed to the Ross Construction Company two lots in Jamaica avenue, West View.

A property in Bracken avenue, Brentwood, lot 50x279 feet, has been sold by August Wagner to Robert J. Wetzel.

FOR YOUR COLD

PHYSICIANS SAY

DRINK MORE WATER

ALL physicians agree that drinking water is the first step in the treatment of colds. Seven to ten glasses a day help wash the toxins out of your system—aid your body in throwing off this threatening condition.

Then rub Mentholatum on your chest and throat. Cover your chest with flannel, for although Mentholatum does not stain, the extra warmth increases its action.

Put just a bit in each nostril with the tip of your finger. The pleasant vapors of Mentholatum rise so that you inhale them with every breath. Notice the cool, soothing effect—how easy it makes your breathing.

For 36 years Mentholatum has been a reliable home-remedy. Try this faster, surer way to get relief. Order Mentholatum NOW at your favorite drug store. 30c for handy tube or familiar jar. (60c for the large-sized jar.)

Write for free sample of Mentholatum and booklet "How to Get Rid of Colds." Just send your name and address. The Mentholatum Co., Wichita, Kansas.

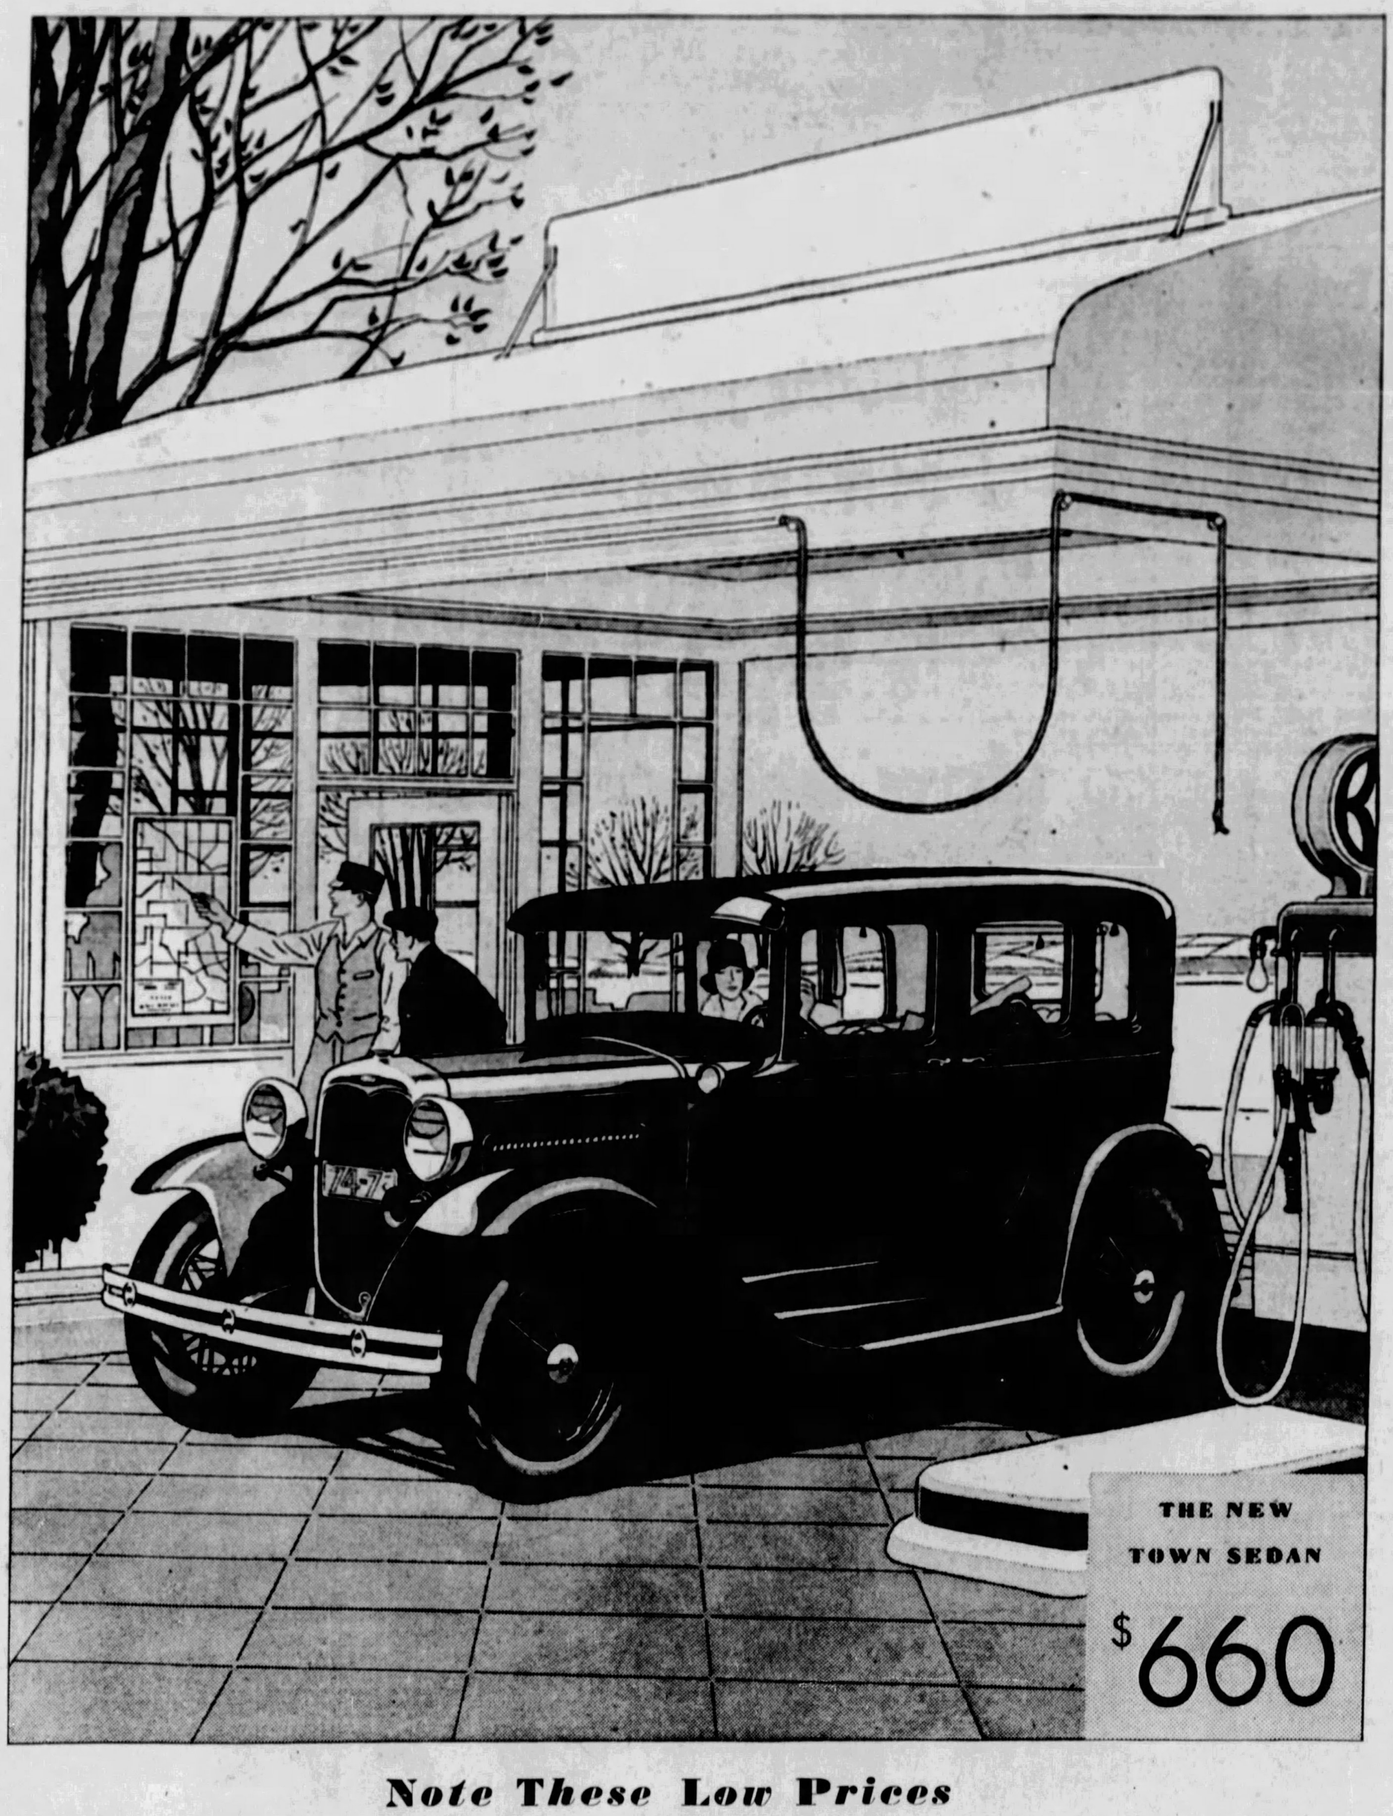
Good Performance at Low Cost

MANY SEVERE TESTS SHOW THE SUBSTANTIAL WORTH THAT HAS BEEN BUILT INTO THE FORD CAR



THE STURDINESS and reliability of the new Ford, so evident in the every-day uses of a motor car, are revealed also in many unusual tests of stamina and endurance. Over deeply rutted roads, through desert sands and deep snow, it has gone forward to new conquests of time and distance. From every corner of the world come reports of its good performance.

In England, the new Ford won three gold medals, one silver medal, and one bronze medal in the run from London to Exeter. In Peru it won first and third places in the reliability run over the tortuous Amanccas Road.

A Mexican general tells how one of the first of the new Fords in that country was driven from Acapulco to Atoyac "over a difficult country where there are no roads at all and the land is strewn with rocks and soft sand. Natives along the way saw their first automobile with positive wonder."

In Java, a new Ford was driven to the top of the Dieng Plateau, one of the highest mountains in Java. Previously the ascent to the old Hindu statues at the summit had been made only by horseback to the rest-house, thence on foot. In Poland, a new Ford won the 2000-mile international race from Warsaw to Lemberg to Warsaw.

Two years ago, a new Ford fought its way along rough wagon trails to become the first car in history to cross the Peace River Block from Fort St. John to Hudson Hope, from the Alberta boundary to the western border of the block.

In 1930, the new Ford won the winter race arranged by the Royal Automobile Club of Sweden. This race was over slippery mountain roads. At times the car was half hidden by snow. Frequently the temperature was 20 degrees below zero.

These severe tests show the enduring quality that has been built into the new Ford and its ability to stand up under gruelling driving conditions. Long, hard service will confirm your first impression of quality and increase your pride in its capable performance. The value of simplicity of design, good materials and accuracy in manufacturing is especially apparent after the first twenty-five thousand miles.

See the nearest dealer and have him give you a demonstration ride in the new Ford. Check up every point that goes to make a good automobile and you will know that it is a value far above the price you pay.

LAWYER FREED AT RED HEARING

Attorney Ben Sigal, 24, of 1429 Beechview avenue, arrested in the corridor of the City-County Building Saturday when police dispersed a Communist rally, was discharged by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court today.

Detectives testified Sigal was taking notes and refused to tell who he was or what he was doing. Sigal testified he was only taking down names of firms for use in his law practice. He had no connection with the Communists, he asserted.

Four others arrested were fined at a hearing yesterday and two were discharged. Pat Cush, Communist candidate for United States senator and Fred Kearns, secretary of the Unemployed Council, were fined $25 each. Peter Chappa, 722 Fifth avenue, and Parthenia Hills, Negro, 1607 Wylie avenue, were fined $10 each.

Senatorial Aspirant Left in Darkness

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—The Monongahela Valley Trade and Labor Council yesterday adopted a resolution calling upon Sheriff W. W. Conaway to apprehend and prosecute the persons responsible for the extinguishing of lights in the Marion County court room when M. M. Neely was speaking in his campaign for election to the United State Senate. Pocket flashlights were used to provide illumination so that the meeting could continue. The council has indorsed Neely's candidacy on the Democratic ticket.

TILLES, SLAYER, DENIED PARDON

HARRISBURG, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Albert J. Tilles, Allegheny County, who shot and killed his son in 1925 and was sentenced to life imprisonment, today was refused a pardon by Gov. Fisher.

Two other lifers—Steve rko and Will Mathews, also of Allegheny County—failed to receive favorable action from the state pardon board on their applications for rehearings of applications for pardons, which previously were refused. The petition of Perko, who has had a death sentence commuted to life imprisonment, was continued, and that of Mathews was refused.

Ten prisoners in all were given their freedom through pardons.

"ACIDINE HAS NO EQUAL FOR INDIGESTION, GAS"

"I have used ACIDINE for indigestion and gas pains and find that it has no equal. It is classed alone. Nothing can compare with it," says John D. Gates, 360 E. Garfield Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

Just another of thousands who are astonished at the way this new prescription ACIDINE succeeds when other known remedies fail. The reason is it is different from other medicines. ACIDINE contains Japtase, which, in laboratory tests, digested 800 times its own weight of certain heavy starchy foods. ACIDINE neutralizes burning acid, soothes irritated stomach and intestinal linings, helps end acidosis.

Eat, drink all you want. When sour stomach, gas, pain, heartburn, bad taste, heavy feeling, short breath, dizziness, belching, nervousness, colds, gassy headaches and sleeplessness trouble you, take ACIDINE. Results guaranteed. If not delighted, maker refunds money. Get it from your druggist today.

STORM LASHES CHANNEL PORTS

International News Service.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—(INS.)—An 80-mile-an-hour wind swept the coasts of England and Northern France today, disrupting shipping in the English Channel and causing heavy property damage and at least two deaths.

Four passengers aboard the cross-channel steamer Maid of Orleans were injured when the little vessel was buffeted by mountainous seas. The steamer limped into Folkestone harbor.

COMMUNICATION HALTED

The Isle of Thanet, another channel steamer, arrived at Boulogne with part of her bridge washed away. Two of the crew were injured.

Throughout Southern England and Northern France telephone and telegraph poles were blown down by the gale. Air services were halted, and channel shipping was kept in operation only with greatest difficulty. Frequent calls for aid were sent out by vessels in distress off the British and French coasts.

At least two deaths were caused in Paris by the storm.

Sir Thomas Lipton In N. Y., Talks Race

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Sir Thomas Lipton, perennial challenger for the America's Cup, arrived on the Leviathan this morning with the statement that he hoped and expected to challenge again in 1932 for the elusive yachting "mug."

Here primarily on a business trip, Sir Thomas will be presented with the "Americans' Cup" by admirers throughout the United States, who consider him worthy the title of the "world's best loser."

CHICAGO MAYOR RECOVERING

Gaining ground steadily, the Mayor faced the crisis, expected late this afternoon, with the same fighting spirit that has characterized his attitude since the operation at Passayant Hospital last Friday.

Dr. Milton Portis said that if he continued to make as much progress as he has since the operation, he may be considered out of danger within the next 24 hours.

No new complications manifested themselves, and there has been no increase in the symptoms of peritonitis, which were noted last Friday.

Gorio's Gangsters Brave As They Face Death

CHAPTER XXII.

A shot of electric astonishment ran through Goldie's men when Gleason's identity became known. The dozen armed thugs were coming at them now. The mongrel assortment of weapons, alone, proclaimed them pirates.

The "frisk" took but a few seconds. The gang was stripped of its firearms, which were flung into a corner. The door was shut, and they stood, hands in air and faces to the wall.

Monk faced him, his mouth hard set, his eyes boring into the iron eyes of Gleason, the butcher.

"None of us," answered Monk, slowly. "Not that it gets us a thing now."

"You're a liar," boomed Gleason. "We made a fair bargain, up an' up, an' your mob double-crossed."

"Whose mob did? Who got the Edgewater Kid?"

"None of us. We was more s'prised than what youse was."

"Okay, then—it's a mistake all aroun'—put up that typewriter an' we'll all call it a new deal—I can talk for Goldie—"

Gleason had never been known to laugh. But Pinkey Shapiro, who had a sense of humor, giggled out loud. Gleason didn't turn, but seemed to give him a nasty look with the back of his ears. Pinkey shut off his mirth.

Cranky Weakens

"The only deal I'll make is this," barked Gleason. "Turn up the guy what plugged Kinky . . . then pick up that phone an' call Goldie an' tell him to come here right away . . . you know how to get him . . . then, when I croak him an' whoever clipped Kinky, we'll call it a day."

"Gleason," said Monk, "if you wait for me or any of us to put Goldie on the spot for you, you'll wait'll your teeth fall out. An' I swear I don' know who got Kink."

"Turn aroun', youse guys—all o' youse," called Gleason. He looked at their faces, one by one. Some were ghastly blue. Cranky's knees were knocking. The tears were trickling down Clammy's cheeks.

"The man who gets Goldie Gorio on that phone walks out o' that door with his life," he announced. "Come on, now—some o' youse got women an' kids—youse all know where Goldie is—we'll get him sooner or later, anyways, so you can save your own life an' you can't save his by dyin' for him. . . . Well, I'm waitin'—"

Cranky was trying to wet his dry lips with his dry tongue. His shoulders started forward. His left foot scraped ahead of his right. He forced back his head and began a step.

Monk Calls Home

"I offered youse guys fair," growled Gleason. "Now, I'll give youse till the count o' 10. My offer stands that long. After that—it'll be too late—an' too bad . . . one . . . two . . . three . . . four . . ." they stood there, all but the prostrate two, one dead and one unconscious, and their features twitched, but they stood there . . . "five . . . six . . . seven . . ." and still not a sign of the white liver from those murderers about to be murdered . . . "eight . . . nine . . ."

It was Monk!

"I—I'll 'phone," he cried.

Gleason almost dropped his machine gun. The Gorio mob, for the instant forgetting what hung above with just one second between them and God, turned toward their leader, their spokesman in this tragic crisis — turned in astonished curiosity.

"You? You'll phone?" incredulously yelled Gleason. "You?"

Monk marched out of the line. Everyone stood rigid. A dozen guns were trained on him by the time he had traversed half the room. Gleason stood with his artillery covering the others. Monk strode on. He reached the desk and picked up the telephone. Not another sound broke the thick stillness as he called a number. Every man in the room made a mental note of it. It was so quiet that the operator's repeat boomed . . . then the birr of a bell somewhere on the other end and . . . then a click and a voice—a woman's—then Monk:

"It's me, honey—Monk—goodbye, mamma—goodbye, darling—they got me an' the rest o' the boys—all but Goldie—phone Goldie—tell him to lam—tell him to stay away from—"

"Get that crazy rat!" bellowed Gleason.

Gangsters Brave

Four men fell on Monk and tore the instrument from his hand. They dragged him back into the line and threw him against the wall. He was cuts and bruises and blood all over now.

"So," hissed Gleason, "a double-dealin' fink to the last. You ain't got a decent blowoff comin' to you. But I'll give youse—all o' youse—time to pray."

"Go to hell," answered Moon-Face. "Who wants favors from you? Shoot!"

"Shut up, you left-handed bohunk," snarled Gleason. "Down on your knees an' pray—pray forgiveness for all your dirty, rotten sins . . . for I don' want the sin on my head o' killin' youse all wit'out givin' youse a chance to pray—to call on high for mercy—yeh, call on high for mercy . . . youse sure won' get no more of it here!"

* * *

Eleven game men stood against the wall of Goldie Gorio's camouflaged stable. All yellow killers, they could die white, these polyglot scums of the slums. The laws of all decent human kind they held in hot hatred and cold contempt. But they worshiped their own distorted traditions of perverted honor.

Facing them, their executioners were of the same breed.

All alike glanced with loathing at Cranky, the would-be traitor, who still lay huddled on the cement floor, doomed to end that way, an ignominious heap. Monk, the blood dripping from his battered mouth, spat at the gang's disgrace.

"Him and Chimp!" he undertoned sidewise to One-Eye. "He would o' turned up Goldie an' Chimp ratted on us all—he tipped off the hangout—if I could live long enough to——"

"Shut up," snapped Gleason. "I give youse time to pray, not to bellyache. Get to it. This typewriter's heavy an' I'm gettin' fed up."

Doomed Men Pray

Monk smiled with a sneer. Then he rubbed his right hand on the leg of his trousers and stuck it out to One-Eye, at his side.

"So long," he said. "I guess we better shake hands oncet aroun'—Gleason won't mind."

Solemnly they all gripped moist, unsteady hands, each with the other.

"We're on the spot, fellers," said Monk. "We're gettin' it for what none of us done. We can all go to the gates o' wherever we're goin' wit' a dyin' oath that none of us had a hand in croakin' Kinky King . . . but Gleason says we got to go—an' he's handlin' the typewriter this trip . . . well, in this racket we all got to go . . . ev'ry one o' them hoodlums there'll get his—an' maybe they won' even get time to pray . . . we got a break—we got time to pray . . . let's pray!"

One by one they dropped to their knees. Some clasped their hands together, others cupped hands over their eyes. All muttered earnestly. Ray, the chauffeur, intoned aloud the only prayer that he knew—his babyhood "Now I lay me—"

Fay King Says Men, Like Female of Species, Should Wear Gay Colors

COWBOYS IN THEIR RADIANT ROUND-UP REGALIA ARE MEN EVERYONE ADMIRES
SOME OF THE MOST MANLY MEN IN HISTORY LIVED IN THE TIMES WHEN COLORFUL SILKS, LACE, AND MUCH JEWELRY WERE WORN
FAY KING

By FAY KING.

It was great to see men and boys wearing bright colors during the summer. I hope this winter they will wear gay mufflers, hat bands, ties, socks and handkerchiefs.

Some men are timid about wearing colors, fearing they will be thought effeminate.

Color is invigorating. I think it had much to do with the great history and adventure of men when they were ornate as nature meant the male of species to be.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation Of Love's Awakening

Madge Warns Marion Against Owen

I do not believe there is any loyalty so strong, so unreasoning, as that which young girls give to a school and its officers when they are happy in its life. There are schools and schools, some looked on as prisons, but from the enthusiasm of Marion and Carolyn, and our glimpse of the school and its head mistress when we had driven Marion down for the opening of her senior year, I was not surprised at Marion's evident panic when she thought that her mother might blame Mrs. Barnes, her beloved head mistress, for relaxing her rule and permitting her to leave the school with Carolyn under the escort of Carolyn's uncle, Charles Owen.

I hastened to reassure her, for I was sure that Lillian could not be unjust, no matter how greatly her feelings and prejudices were concerned.

"Of course, your mother will not blame Mrs. Barnes," I said. "And, now that you have told me how it happened, I do not see that you are to blame except for one thing. It was perfectly natural for you to come home with Carolyn, but could you not have telegraphed your mother of your change of plans? Or did you?" with a sudden recollection of our absence from the hotel. "Perhaps we didn't get the telegram."

"No-o." There was something abashed in Marion's tone now. "No-o, I didn't send any. I thought of it, and then—Auntie Madge—I'm ashamed to tell you, but I thought if mother didn't know of my being in the city she couldn't make any objection to my going out for dinner with Ronald and Carolyn and the rest, and I was sort of afraid she mightn't let me go if I just telegraphed it to her and didn't have a chance to talk it over with her. You know she's sort of funny about dates with boys. And Uncle—Mr. Owen said——"

Her voice trailed off and her eyes went down before mine, although I had not meant to look reproachfully at her.

"Yes, Marion," I said gently. "Mr. Owen said——"

She raised her eyes and looked at me. Her cheeks were crimson, but her gaze was steady.

"I guess I see something of what you mean about him, Auntie Madge," she said slowly. "It sounded funny when he said it this morning, but it doesn't sound a bit funny now. He said when I spoke of telegraphing, he said: 'Why worry your mother now? You can stay with Carolyn tonight, and then tomorrow, just before it's time for your mother to start to Hoboken you can walk in on her and surprise her. Remember, what she doesn't know won't hurt her.'"

I shivered at the banal, cheap cynicism as it fell from Marion's lips, and I was raging at the man who had so far ingratiated himself into her confidence that she could subscribe even for a moment to his specious argument. He evidently had played his cards well. I wondered if her omission of his name and visits from her letters had also been the result of some adroit planning on his part. But that could wait. For almost three weeks she would be under her mother's care and mine. It would be a sad thing, indeed, if in that time we were not able to counteract whatever subtle poison Charles Owen might have dropped into her mental processes.

One iron I could strike now, however, and I would not hold my hand from the blow, even though I knew it would wound the child. But I said to myself sternly that if I wanted to drive an entering wedge between her present concept of Charles Owen and that which the truth concerning him would bring her, I could have no better time than the present, when she was already remorseful about her mother.

"I have heard that saying many times, Marion," I said, "and it always jars on me, as I think it will on you whenever you hear it again. For I want to point out to you one possible consequence of your following that advice."

I stopped and caught my breath, for I had little relish for the thing I was about to say.

"Suppose, Marion," I said slowly, "that I had not met you today. Suppose you had gone on to Mrs. Brixton's and had gone out to dinner. Suppose while you were gone—for the whole evening, mind you, with no one probably knowing where you had gone—your mother had needed you very much. Suppose your step-father had been taken very ill or had died, or there had been some terrible accident, and your mother had tried to get in touch with you at the school, and had learned that you had gone home with Carolyn Brixton. She would not have been worried over you, but she could not have found you for hours. Suppose—it had been your mother who was taken terribly ill and calling for you—"

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, November 4

The rather adverse conditions indicated by the unpropitious transits of Luna may react on business as well as purely personal activities. In the realm of domestic, social, affectional affairs there may be inharmonies and stress. Money matters are also under an afflicting ray, threatening loss of money, as well as prestige, power and general well-being. There is hint of duplicity, fraud and sinister attack, which may enhance the anxiety. It would be well to be on guard.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year calling for patience, optimism and sound judgment to keep it from personal inharmonies and business frustrations.

A child born on this day may require early discipline and education in prudence, frugality and self-government, since it may have proclivities of extravagance, overindulgence and strong incitements to move in "the easiest way."

The Sweet and Low-Down

Every head of permanently-waved hair is a burnt offering on the altar of a woman's love—of admiration.

Sometimes it looks as though the only women who can remember what romantic love was like, are those who can remember what buttonhooks and hat-pins were for.

* * *

* * *

A man, unlike a woman, never bothers about whether his wedding or his funeral will be beautiful affairs, for he knows that, at both of them, he'll be totally unconscious.

* * *

Funny how just a tiny grain of sex-appeal between a man and a woman will sometimes wreck a wonderful lifetime friendship.

* * *

Nobody seems to think he is "having a good time," nowadays, unless he is jumping into something on wheels, and rushing from here to there.

* * *

The chief trouble with the world is that every man now thinks that he is a bit of a financial genius, and could make a million if he had the breaks; and every woman fancies that she is a bit of a siren, and could marry a million, if she had the luck.

* * *

A man's principle objection to spinach or marriage is that they are "good for him," if you want to arouse his interest in a diet or a woman, tell him that they are bad for him.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Consult Legal Advice

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is a typewritten will, signed without witness, legal?

2. What part of the estate would a husband, or wife, receive in case of the death of one or the other, if there is no will? The estate consisting of properties and money in the names of both husband and wife.

Anxious To Know.

For the answers to these questions, you should consult a lawyer. And go to a good one! Perhaps there is, in your locality, a Legal Aid Society. Is there? The answers to these questions vary in different states and if it is important for you to know the answers, you should get the best legal help available.

Double Honors

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married soon. I do not care to have a very large wedding, but as I have two girl friends and do not wish to slight either of them, would it be proper to have a maid of honor and only one bridesmaid? I will be given away by my father.

Will you kindly inform me as to the proper formation?

C. M.

You had better say that you are having two maids of honor and let them walk up the aisle together. Or they may walk alone. Either is correct. The one you like better, or who is more closely related to you should immediately precede you.

Wedding Costumes

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married next month. Will you tell me what kind and color of dress is appropriate to wear when being married at the priest's house? The wedding will, of course, be very informal. Blonde.

For such an informal wedding I advise you wear a suit or an ensemble, the one that you are planning to travel in on your trip.

Tell It to Sally

By SALLY MARTIN

Should a Married Woman Confine Herself to Domesticity—Or Does Sex Equality Widen the Matrimonial Scope?

Does the Missis' job cramp her husband's style, and make the neighbors give him the Dog-Eye?

Elnora said it did. Men, according to her, resented having their wives collect a pay check of their own every Saturday night, and gradually became wrecks and loafers, under the shame of having their "responsibility taken away from them." And even if they didn't, she said, their self-respect was knocked into a cocked-hat, because the neighbors invariably despised 'em for letting the Little Woman come out of the kitchen.

And Patsy agreed with her . . . heartily. Her story was that there was "something infinitely sweet about a girl looking to her man for protection."

But there must be a catch in this somewhere . . . because here's a letter from Bill B. and he says both of 'em are peddling a lot of blah. He even slips in a mean hint that such gals are looking for Sugar Daddies to relieve 'em of the onerous task of digging their own goobers. And they're afraid that fraus with pay checks'll queer their game—show the Big Boys that ladies needn't be leaners.

"Lately I've read letters in your column from two different women (I've forgotten their names), lambasting working wives.

"According to these two, any husband whose wife worked, had his ambition and his self-respect completely wrecked by the fact that she didn't 'depend' on him . . . or if that didn't do for him, the contempt of his associates did, because her working was supposed to show that he couldn't support her—boss her with sufficient vigor to make her stay home and darn his sox, mop his floors and scrub his shirts.

"Well, I'll admit that there are some men whose dignity might be ruffled by having a woman dare to be an equal, with an equal chance to accumulate something in the world . . . Or who might go around being sorry for themselves because they didn't get a serving woman for life, along with their marriage license, but believe me I think that any such a man is a mighty frail reed myself, and probably wouldn't amount to a hill of beans anyway . . . and what any wide-awake woman would want of him is beyond me.

"It's a mighty poor specimen of a man who needs to have a moron, or a weak dependent, around, in order to make him feel big and bright and inspire him to dig his toes in and make something of himself. Some men may be willing to acknowledge that kind of weakness, but it strikes me they certainly aren't showing themselves in any very bright light when they do. I certainly don't feel that way about my wife.

"I'm tickled to death because she is an efficient, smart and competent girl . . . and also a generous and loving one . . . who can go out and make the world sit up and take notice. And 'or the life of me I can't see where her doing so is any reflection on me, either as a man or a husband.

"I didn't marry her to get either a servant or a toady. I married her because I loved her, and because I felt she was the one companion I needed to glorify my life and give it meaning. And I can truthfully say that we have had a beautiful and inspiring companionship, in spite of the fact that she wickedly rushes out of my house every morning to wrestle in the marts of trade. I wouldn't trade her for any home-keeping wife I've seen so far.

"As a matter of fact, I'd feel cheated if she allowed her talent and her alert mind to get stale and go to waste, trotting around picking up my slippers and chasing dust. For me at least, companionship is one of the highlights of marriage. And a woman who has outside, stimulating contacts such as my wife has, is a thousand times better companion than one who knows nothing but home.

"I do think, however, that none of us should marry out of our 'generation.' If a man is living in the past to such an extent that he couldn't be happy unless he had a sweet Victorian echo at home, then he should marry that kind of a girl, and not expect to get along with one with a mind of her own. In fact, such a man has no right to drag an efficient, ambitious modern woman into the trap of trying to live with his archaic notions. It isn't fair to her. But such men usually blame the woman for such situations. It never occurs to them to look at her side. Or to change themselves.

"As for the women who attack the working wife so fiercely, I may be wrong, but I have a strong suspicion that they have an ax to grind.

"Maybe they like housework. Certainly they hate responsibility, and like to be 'taken care of.' And they have a deep-seated fear that if too many women work outside the home, it will become a custom, and they'll be pushed out of their soft nests.

"Personally, I'm for the working wife, who is also a sweet, sympathetic woman, having lived happily with one for nine years now. And, whether or not a wife wants to work, is her own business, anyway. Nobody, not even a husband, has any right to dictate to her about so personal a matter. Wives are people, as well as wives. Am I not right? What do you think?

"BILL B."

What do I think, Bill?

I think your letter is good for a war any day. And now I'm going to turn it over to the rest of the boys. How about it, Pete, Sam, Andy? Are you willing for the Misses to have a career? Or does it make you feel like 30 cents to see her wave a pay check?

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Some girls with shoulder length bobs are doing their hair "high," as in the dear dead days of switches. The long ends are placed on the crown of the head in a figure six, the round portion of the coil folded from ear to ear. Tres chic.

Unless the body is held erect the spinal column having an inward curve at the waistline, the inner organs are thrown out of position. Posture is an old story, but it is always worth telling, though few women give half a thought to the subject. Proper carriage means that youth does not fly away, no matter what the birth date notation in the family Bible may be. It makes for vitality and mental well-being.

No woman can afford to lose her temper. Doesn't get her anything, except mean lines in her face, which are difficult to erase even in the early stages. Unpleasant emotions leave their marks. They put accordion pleats between the eyes, give a machine-gun expression to the mouth, destroy the firmness and elasticity of facial tissues.

As health barometers, the complexion and the eyes are always on the job. Jaundice not only discolors the skin, but yellows the whites of the eyes. Fever flushes the skin and makes the eye weak and watery. Constipation will dull the eyes and produce pallor. To look well, it is necessary to keep the human machine in good order.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

The Ancients Also Had a Cure for Headaches

In ancient times it was believed headaches were due to evil spirits within the head. The cure for headaches in that day consisted in boring holes through the skull, so that the spirits might escape. We have testimony of this practice in the borings found in skulls recovered in recent excavations.

DR COPELAND

Modern civilization has not removed these evil spirits and yet we still suffer from headaches! Instead of the drilling to relieve the pa , we moderns resort to all sorts of patent medicines. I wonder if this practice is not just as silly.

The drug habit is an exceedingly dangerous practice. Medicines that relieve headaches merely remove the pain; the cause of the headache is left untouched. Further, the habit of taking to medicines for the relief of pain is likely to be injurious to the health.

Headache is not a disease. It is a sign that some part of the body is not working properly. Headache may be caused by various disorders of the body. Anemia, high blood pressure, kidney diseases, sinusitis and defective eyesight are some of the common causes. Constipation, digestive disorders, slouching posture in walking and standing—and in women, uterine diseases, frequently cause headaches.

In young children headache is one of the first signs of some infectious disease. It should never be ignored and the temperature should be taken at once. If the headache persists, the pulse is rapid and the child has temperature, send for your doctor at once. Where severe vomiting is present in addition to the above picture, never delay in consulting your physician.

There is a distinct type of headache which seems to run in families. This type is spoken of as "migraine." Little is known of this condition outside of the fact that it does occur in families and is believed to be hereditary.

The tendency is there all the time, but many things can bring on an attack of migraine. Such factors as powerful emotional disturbances of any type, severe mental or physical fatigue and digestive disturbances are the most common causes.

In migraine the attacks are more or less periodical. They may occur on the same day every week, or every two weeks, or about once a month. The individual usually knows in advance about when he will have an attack.

In view of the fact that most headaches of this sort are usually associated with some nausea and at times vomiting, people believe that it is due to some error in diet. This is not true. Gastro-intestinal disturbances are usually present as a sign of the trouble, but they are not the cause of the headache.

The underlying cause of the headache must be determined and removed if possible. Until then we may not say we are "curing" the headache.

JEWS PROTEST BRITISH POLICY

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(INS.)—A solemn protest against Great Britain's new policy in Palestine, which was termed "breaking of a covenant with the Jewish people," was registered today.

At a mass meeting last night in Madison Square Garden a resolution was adopted appealing to the British people to "undo the Palestine wrong," which was declared as threatening to endanger, if not destory, the whole Jewish homeland project.

After a capacity crowd of from 22,000 to 25,000 had crammed itself into Madison Square Garden, an overflow throng of more than 15,000 battled in the streets to gain access.

Many leaders in all walks of life, both Jew and non-Jew, spoke at the meeting.

INSTALL BRAZIL DICTATOR

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 3.—(INS.)—Dr. Getulio Vargas, generalissimo of the rebel troops who overthrew the administration of former President Washington Luis, will be proclaimed provisional president of Brazil at Cattete Palace this afternoon.

The Southern revolutionary leader, former president of the state of Rio Grande do Sul, will be vested with discretionary powers that will enable him to bring about complete reorganization of the government.

He will remain in power until the reorganization is complete, when new elections will be held.

Cuba to Press War On Communism

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—A government campaign to wipe out Communism in Cuba is to be intensified, says a statement made by President Machado through Gen. Delgado, secretary of the interior.

The president said he planned to devote his time to labor problems. Communists will be closely watched by the police and prosecuted whenever possible. All Communistic propaganda will be suppressed.

Rescue Ship Rushing To Save 40 Japanese

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Pounded by heavy seas, the Japanese freighter Seiyo Maru, with a crew of 40, wallowed helplessly in the North Pacific, southwest of the Aleutian Islands.

The steamer California, rushing to the aid of the stricken craft, radioed she expected to be alongside by 11 o'clock last night (Pacific standard time). The Seiyo Maru was reported in a sinking condition.

New York Gangster Tortured and Slain

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—To their ever-lengthening list of slayings attributed to gangsters, police today added one more name. The body of a man identified as Felix Lopreste, 25, was found in a vacant lot in Astoria.

His throat had been slashed and around his neck was a length of tightly-bound sash cord. The condition of the body led police to the suspicion he had been tortured.

SING SING SIFTS FATAL BREAK

OSSINING, N. Y., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Sing Sing prison authorities sought to learn today how pistols were smuggled to four inmates whose attempt to shoot their way out resulted in the death of one of them and the wounding of another prisoner and a guard.

An autopsy indicated that Harry Gordon, 23, the inmate who lost his life in the attempted break Saturday night, committed suicide after he had wounded a guard and had been shot twice by the guard.

As a precaution against another attempt to escape, 100 guards yesterday searched the quarters of the 2,230 inmates, and other parts of the prison. They found a coil of rope with a hook attached, a few table knives and an imitation pistol fashioned from wood.

Edward Ryan, William La Pierre and Herbert Davis, the survivors, were held in solitary confinement pending determination of what charges will be made against them for their part in the attempt to escape. The wooden pistol was found in Ryan's cell.

$100,000 LOSS IN STORE FIRE

MT. PLEASANT, Pa., Nov. 3.—Several persons were rendered homeless and property damaged to the extent of $100,000 resulted in a fire shortly after midnight yesterday in a general store operated by Alex Cohen in the Spelker Building, East Main street and Center avenue. For more than six hours firemen from Mt. Pleasant, Scottdale and Greensburg fought the blaze. The building, a four-story brick encased structure, was owned by Antonio Santora.

Housed in the basement floor of the Spelker Building are combination pool and billiard rooms and a bowling alley operated by Joseph Santora, a son of the owner. Tenants on the first floor included Abe Cohen, proprietor of the clothing store; a fruit store operated by Alex Graham, whose family lived in an apartment in the rear, and the East End Pharmacy, owned by Robert Burkholder.

Mrs. Mary Daniels, a widow, and her family, tenants of the third floor apartment, were left homeless by the fire, losing all their possessions.

Lindy Cannot Vote For Father-in-law

PRINCETON, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Dwight W. Morrow's vote for senator tomorrow will be two less than it might have been. Col. Lindbergh, his son-in-law, who recently acquired a country home, still has St. Louis for a legal voting residence.

RULES

Proper nouns, slang and words that offend good taste cannot be used. SCORING: The first and last letters of each word do not count as strokes. A longer or shorter word can be substituted, but at a penalty. If a longer word is used, each letter above par counts as a stroke; if a shorter word is used, each letter below par counts as a stroke. If a player cannot insert a suitable word, add 3 strokes to par for hole and proceed to next hole.

The solution to this puzzle can be found on page 19.

KDKA TENTH BIRTHDAY BROADCAST TONIGHT

'Cutting' Speeches. Comment With Returns. Foster Memorial. 'Sponsor' Speaks.

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—When the radio rulers announce at the height of a political campaign a nation-wide broadcast by such a conspicuous figure as Alfred E. Smith, they should be more considerate of the armchairs.

Louis Reid.

It does not strike us that the broadcasters foster their ideal of service or promote the good will of listeners toward commercial sponsors when they cut off a nationally-known speaker in the middle of a sentence as Columbia did the other night during the airing of Smith's speech from Providence.

* * *

Smith had just reached the climax of his talk, a three-fold indictment of the G. O. P. He was changing his pace with the skill of an Earnshaw. There was a sting beneath his smile. His sallies were caustic and picturesque. Even the G. O. P. must have given him credit for a masterly performance. Certainly he was never in better form, when suddenly, as he reached the second of his three indictments against his political opponents his voice was sunk without warning, without a trace. To make room for what? For the hackneyed strains of Schubert's "Marche Militaire," sponsored commercially from Minneapolis. If we knew the earcungers, those who did not turn off the dial immediately must have reached for the ax.

* * *

Leading Speakers Cut Off Radio

The blow might have happened to any other prominent speaker, save Hoover himself. The radio men are careful not to cut off a presidential speech. It might have happened to Borah or Watson or Norris or Reed or Roosevelt or Tuttle or Norman Thomas. It would have been just as unfortunate—unfortunate to listeners eager for something besides conventional classics and conventional jazz, but no less unfortunate to the radio men and their commercial programs.

* * *

It is difficult to see how good will, the aim of all commercial periods can be achieved when conditions like this occur. And they occur all too frequently on the networks.

When the radio men take unusual pains to ballyhoo a speech they should give all of it or none at all.

* * *

Comments Should Supplement Returns

Tomorrow night election returns from every section of the country will pour from the loudspeakers. Those announcers will have the largest audiences who supplement their figures with interpretations of the results. Something more than cold statistics is wanted. It is a night for political commentators as well as mathematicians. In Pittsburgh the Sun-Telegraph will have political experts report results over WCAE. This will draw a large audience. It's the only way to do the job right.

* * *

Returns, too, are pouring in concerning this department's recent lament over the lack of memorials to our famous men of melody. It seems there is a statue of Victo Herbert in Central Park. Boy, call a taxi and fetch me my binoculars!

And from Sam Richman, Pittsburgh, we learn that a statue of Stephen Foster stands on each side of the entrance to Highland Park in that city and that a memorial to him is to be erected on the campus of the University of Pittsburgh. Good for Pittsburgh.

Comes also a note from Gponsor, Sacred Song Concerts, KDKA, Pittsburgh:

"Don't you think it most fitting to include in this category some of our most famous composers of hymns? For instance, Philip Phillips, Fanny Crosby, blind from birth, who has written over 8,000 beautiful hymns. Then there is Ira D. Sankey, whose 'The Ninety and Nine' is known throughout all Christendom. Others are P. P. Bliss, Rev. Robert Lowry, W. H. Doane, Dr. Lowell Mason, George F. Root. . . I am urged to remind you that hymns and gospel songs are cherished by the American people and that they will live when all others are forgotten."

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN
Radio Editor.

Cut yourself a piece of cake and sit in on KDKA's birthday party tonight. Ten years old, the infant prodigy RADIO will be honor guest at a Chamber of Commerce banquet in the William Penn Hotel. Greats and near-greats in the radio world will pay tribute. Maj. Gen. Chas. McK. Saltzman, chairman of the Federal Radio Commission; Merlin H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Company, and James Francis Burke, nationally known political figure, will speak at the festive board. Mr. Aylesworth as toastmaster will blow out the candles and cut the cake. The banquet will start at 6:30 but will not be broadcast until 8:30.

Darrell V. Martin

Amos 'n' Andy will entertain after doing their 7 o'clock broadcast over the WJZ network. Other radio acts will be provided.

KDKA's studio program in commemoration of the tenth year of broadcasting was high-powered.

* * *

We'd like to see that boy Farren do a real fight after his imaginary description of the Dundee-Ray bout. He had us on our toes when the bell rang.

* * *

Jesse Kaufman's WCAE tribute to the pioneer was a beautiful gesture.

* * *

* * *

"Program coming in fine, like a ton of brick," phoned a Bellevue fan, who probably fiddled around with a cat whisker set 10 years ago.

Don Bestor's engagement last broadcast here is scheduled for November 16 when he leaves for the east . . . Kay Kyser rides the wagon all the time . . . When he leaves the Nixon this week he will be succeeded by Hal Kemp . . . Phil Cook's brother, Burr, writes Habor Lights . . . KDKA plans a big Armistice Day celebration . . . Network speakers will include General Pershing, and Secretaries Hurley and Stimson . . . Glenn Riggs is to play "Iliom" in the Davis Theater soon . . . Herb McGee, WCAE, gets into the big time tonight by introducing James Francis Burke over the red network from KDKA's banquet . . . Tampa, the Magician, has a trunk full of effects for broadcasting . . . He creates a perfect machine gun spray by striking wooden paddles on a cushion . . . rain comes from pouring sand over tautly drawn wax paper . . . If someone is in swimming, Tampa produces the effect by splashing his hand in a bowl of water, just as they do on the network.

This morning Phil Cook said:

"I don't see anything startling about politics making strange bedfellows. They all use the same bunk."

And again:

QUESTION A DAY

Answer—KDKA is an old ship call. The Department of Commerce established a precedent by taking the ship's signal and assigning it to the pioneer station. After the call had been assigned the department decided to divide the "K" calls and "W" calls to the West and East respectively. That's why KDKA and KQV are the only eastern stations wih a call beginning with "K." Several stories have been told about KDKA's call, but this is the authentic explanation from Westinghouse executives.

'BIG THREE' AT BANQUET

M. H. AYLESWORTH GEN. SALTZMAN JAMES BURKE

When radio men sit down to dinner tonight to honor KDKA in its tenth year of broadcasting these men will extol the merits and accomplishments of the industry. They will be heard over KDKA at 8:30.

FLOYD GIBBONS GUEST WRITER

Floyd Gibbons, the famous "Headline Hunter," in the city today for a talk on "Ex-Servicemen and War Experiences" over KDKA at 10, wrote the following impressions for Sun-Tele readers in his room at the William Penn Hotel:

My reaction to your industrial city? I haven't any, yet, because I've only been here 15 minutes. But I understand that Pittsburgh is a wonderful place even though I can't see across the street through the fog even at noon hour.

You liked my story last night? Thanks. I thought it was good, and I think maybe you will like the final episode next Sunday.

"Say, there's a funny wrinkle to that yarn about John Dietz that I didn't get time to tell. You remember I mentioned taking a camera with me on the trip. It was only a small affair. When I left Cameron Dam I shot some of the prints back to our office, The Minneapolis Tribune, and the boys told me they were wonderful photos of water. They said they could have gained the same effect by shooting a picture of the developing fluids back in the office. My picture of dear old Cameron Dam were not so hot!

John Dietz,? Well, he's dead. But the boys are still living and in the automobile business out in Illinois, I think.

Jack Swartz? I haven't finished the story about him yet. No, I don't know where he is. Last I heard of him he was an aviator during the war.

The girl—Myra—who was shot from ambush as I described last night, is still living. But one of the bullets affected her spine and she is not strong.

The railroad officials were very kind to me this morning. They ran the sleeping car onto a siding and let me rest. No wonder you couldn't find me.

My recreation? I get lots of it, although I'm quite busy now doing a syndicated column daily in addition to my radio work. I like horseback riding, swimming and motorboat racing.

See you folks on the radio tonight.

TODAY'S TID BIT

A prominent local man appearing before the microphone for the first time last week turned to the announcer several times for encouragement in his political speech. At one stage of the broadcast the announcer gestured the excellence of his technique.

"Pretty good, eh?" said the speaker, and a much surprised audience wondered what it was all about.

AUTO ACCIDENTS KILL SIX IN DISTRICT

Man, Wife Suspected of Arson

William Pfarr

Hallowe'ens aren't what they used to be, and we don't know why, unless it is that the police aren't so lenient towards destruction of property these days. On Hallowe'ens of other years young men would tear down gates and toss them into the river, steal furniture from porches, rip apart buggies, let the air out of one's tires, stick pins in doorbells and raise ache-double-l generally.

Even the hundred or so young men who sold confetti on the downtown streets are gone. This was a great racket, selling confetti, and it was a poor confetti salesman who couldn't enrich himself $20 or more on the big night.

The Hallowe'en parade is gone and the annual handout of peanuts and candy is a neglected custom. It used to be that boys and girls could approach even a stranger's home, politely ask for a literal share of confections and be rewarded. Maybe the peanuts aren't what they used to be.

The Irishman was strangely silent during the first quarter while the Savoldis and the Carideos ran up 28 points against Pitt.

Uncle Davy Oliver, who celebrated his ninety-sixth birthday last Friday, lives in Termon avenue, North Side. In fact, he was responsible for the naming of Termon avenue many years ago. Uncle Davy named the thoroughfare after a town in County Tyrone, Ireland, in which his father was born.

The elderly philosopher presided at his birthday dinner, which reminded him of the dinner many years ago with a grandchild. The child refused the beefsteak and the boiled potatoes (Mr. Oliver's favorite dishes) and the vegetables.

"What, pray," asked Uncle Davy, "do you like then?"

"Well," the grandchild explained, "I like apple pie and raspberry pie and custard pie and raisin pie."

There seems no reason in all the world (at least in a hemisphere) why, in the Sidewalks of Pittsburgh, we should be reporting that Strickland Gilliland, the poet and humorist, is just about the poet laureate of Australia, although he never has been there. But this is how it came about: Ed Prendergast returned from Washington, where he met

Gilliland. The poet happened to mention that his summer home in Virginia adjoined that of a Pittsburgher—Clarence Overend, of Carnegie Tech. Mr. Gilliland said that the Overends were nice people and that the young Overends certainly were a lively bunch of Indians. Then Gilliland went on to say that a newspaper poll in Australia had nominated him as poet laureate of a country he had never visited. This is a complicated paragraph, complicated all the more by our recollection that neither have we ever been to Australia, and we don't like broccoli.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 3.

Come pretty near having two holidays of equal importance in the same week, Hallowe'en and election, and of the two, election provides us the most fun. On Hallowe'en they put pumpkins on their heads, and on election they don't have to.

Will Rogers

Candidates who have been telling you that if elected they would "pull you from this bog hole of financial misery." Now is a good chance to get even with 'em, by electing 'em, just to prove what a liar they are. Personally I think this is the right year for a good man to be defeated in.

Yours, WILL.

TWO MEN DIE AFTER CAR HITS POLE

North Side Woman Injured In Collision Succumbs; Hurts Fatal to 3 Others

Six persons were dead today and many others injured as a result of automobile accidents in the Pittsburgh district.

Joseph Puskas, 23, of 335 Twenty-second street, Munhall, and Steve Kovach, 28, of 238 Twenty-first street, Homestead, were fatally injured early today when their machine crashed against a pole in Second avenue near the Glenwood Bridge. Puskas died in the Mercy Hospital and Kovach in the Homestead Hospital a few hours after the accident. Louis Nagy, 19, of 2104 West street, Munhall, also was injured. He is in the Homestead Hospital. Kovach was driving the car, police say.

WOMAN HURT, DIES

Injuries suffered last night when an automobile driven by her son, collided with another on the Coraopolis road, Moon Township, caused the death several hours later in the Valley Hospital of Mrs. Armida Sonnati, 67, of 1202 West North avenue, North Side. The car, driven by her son, Arthur, collided with one operated by Charles H. Vollmer, of Rochester, Pa., it was reported.

Clarence Bathhurst, 35, of 1606 First avenue, Altoona, died in Valley Hospital, Sewickley, yesterday from injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile on the Coraopolis boulevard, near Coraopolis, Friday. Police and county detectives are looking for the driver, who sped on after he had struck the man.

Injured when struck by an automobile near his home Thursday, Clarence Smith, 10, of 527 Lockhart street, died last night in the Presbyterian Hospital. The car was driven, police said, by Joseph

REFORMATION DAY MARKED BY LUTHERANS

Two Mass Meetings Here Honor 400th Anniversary; Large Choir Makes Debut

The four hundredth anniversary of the Reformation was observed by Lutherans with two mass meetings here last night. More than 2,500 persons attended a meeting in Syria Mosque, under the auspices of the Lutheran Brotherhood of Pittsburgh, and more than 1,000 were in attendance at Carnegie Music Hall, the meeting being held by the Evangelical Lutheran churches of Pittsburgh.

The Rev. Dr. Walter E. Schuette, president of the Eastern District of the American Lutheran Church, delivered a sermon on "The Confession's Vitality" at the meeting in the Mosque. The Pittsburgh Lutheran Choir of 140 voices, made its public appearance at the meeting in the Mosque.

In Carnegie Hall the speaker was the Rev. A. G. Merkens, pastor of the First Trinity Church. He spoke on "Follow the Fathers." The combined quartets of St. Andrew's and the First Trinity churches sang. Miss Hazel Drake, of the First Trinity Church, was organist.

TRETOW, HEAD OF ZOO, DEAD

Ernest Tretow, 59, superintendent of the Highland Park Zoo for 32 years, except for a brief period when he held a similar post at Scranton, died yesterday at his home, 525 North Fairmount avenue.

He became ill last Wednesday and pneumonia developed.

Mr. Tretow came to Pittsburgh in 1898 to take charge of the zoo.

He was a member of the Royal Arcanum and the Aquarian Society. He leaves his widow, a son, Albert Tretow, of Pittsburgh; six daughters, Mrs. R. J. Gevaudan, of North Braddock; Mrs. Walter Mitchell, of Swissvale, and Misses Bertha, Helen, Mary and Margaret Tretow, at home; a brother, August Tretow, of Hamburg, Germany, and a sister, Mrs. Max Saffer, of Pittsburgh.

NEW SKIDMORE CLUE FAILS

Once again city detectives believed they had found a clue in the trail of George Skidmore, alleged slayer of a Mt. Washington gasoline station attendant, when J. A. Burns, Grant Building, told them last night that he thought the man who figured in an automobile collision with him near Leesburg, Pa., Friday, was Skidmore.

After the accident, the occupants of the other car identified themselves as Howard Lauderbach, of 923 Fallowfield avenue, Charleroi, and Joseph Crum, also of Charleroi. Burns said, according to detectives. Viewing pictures of Skidmore, Burns said it resembled the man who gave his name as Lauderbach. A call to the Lauderbach home revealed that he and Crum had returned to their homes after having their injuries treated in Leesburg.

Bailey to Address McClure Church Club

John F. Bailey, Jr., will address a meeting of the Monaca Club of the McClure Avenue Presbyterian Church, tonight in the church rooms.

Throngs Visit 'Mum' Shows At Two City Parks

Hundreds of persons visited the annual chrysanthemum shows in Schenley and West Park conservatories yesterday. The shows were thrown open at 8 a. m. and until 5 p. m., when the conservatories were closed, a steady stream of visitors entered the hot houses.

Eighty-five different varieties of mums were shown among the 22,000 plants on display in the two shows. In West Park, 15 new varieties of mums were to be seen, Albert Emmel, assistant park superintendent, said. In addition there were pom pons, anemones and special displays of tropical plants and begonias lorraine.

There are 7,000 chrysanthemums in the West Park display and approximately 15,000 at Schenley.

"DICKIE" OLIVER HORST, 11 "JACK"

When Baby Squirrel Dickie found himself in a dog's jaws, he didn't dream that he had found a new, happy home. Oliver, Emsworth boy, has adopted and tamed the squirrel, feeding him on bread and milk. Now Dickie's old enough to sit up all by himself and eat nuts.

HEMPHILL HELD INEXPERIENCED

Charging that John H. Hemphill, Democratic and Liberal party candidate for the governorship, is totally inexperienced in state government and therefore unfit for the office, the Rev. Dr. W. W. T. Duncan, pastor of Emory Methodist Episcopal Church, spoke in support of former Gov. Gifford Pinchot, Republican candidate, in a sermon yesterday. He said of Hemphill:

"The candidate these politicians have chosen has no experience whatever, so far as I have been able to learn, in political administration. That dyed - in - the - wool Republican leaders decide to march under the banner of this young Democrat, while they refuse a seasoned leader in public life, leads many people to believe that Hemphill, if elected, would be, however, unintentionally, a mere tool of discredited bosses."

Hemphill's war record, the preacher said, has no bearing on his administrative ability, and, although laudable, should play no part in his election.

Four Driven Out When Home Burns

Four persons were driven out when flames swept through their frame dwelling at 56 South Thirtieth street, South Side, early today. They are Jerry Morris, his wife, Mayme, Mrs. Anna Thomas and her daughter, Mary Thomas, 6, all Negroes. Batallion Chief John Frazier estimated the damage at $1,000. Cause of the fire is unknown.

Work With Inhalator Fails to Save Baby

A first aid team of the Philadelphia Company worked inhalators for several hours in a vain effort to save the 3-hour-old infant of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Bruzewitz, 3119 Brereton avenue. The child's breathing virtually ceased. It was restored temporarily but later died.

Lion Actor Dies; Stopped Many Custard Pies

Death took Numa in his nineteenth year. Charles Gay, its owner, said. The lion stopped custard pies in the old silent film days and roared for a living in the newer talkies and never lost his temper or hurt anyone, Gay said.

Numa is survived by 28 children and grandchildren.

FOREST HILLS HOME BURNS

Fire early today swept the five-room residence occupied by Samuel Lamey in Ardmore boulevard, near Bryn Mawr road, Forest Hills. The loss was estimated at $1,500 by Fire Chief C. C. Davies.

The interior of the house was a mass of flames when the Forest Hills department arrived and efforts to save it were in vain. Wilkinsburg firemen were summoned, but the house was destroyed before they arrived, Chief Davies said.

4 Visiting Judges Hold Criminal Court

November term of Criminal Court opened today with four visiting judges on the bench and Judge George V. Moore presiding. The visiting judges were James O. Campbell, of Butler County; Norman T. Boose, Somerset; John H. McCann, Cambria, and Miles I. Potter, Union-Snyder. Taylor S. Lewis, of 608 Delmont street, is foreman of the new grand jury of six women and 16 men.

Man Robbed of $17, Couple Arrested

Acting on a complaint received by James Deeney of 20 West North Diamond street, North Side police arrested Huston Miller, 34, and his wife, Maud, 23, of 1201 Reddour street, on suspicious person charges. Police say Deeney went home with Mrs. Miller and while in the establishment was robbed of $17.

'NEWSIES' SEE STANLEY FILM

It was Bernie Armstrong who discovered that newsboys really can sing. He was nearly swept off his feet at a recent party for the Sun-Telegraph newsies in the Stanley Theater when he heard the burst of melody that came from throats of the youngsters when he played the organ accompaniments to several popular songs.

Well, yesterday he was prepared for it. The same 3,000 newsboys and carrier boys were again guests of Warner Brothers and the Sun-Telegraph at the Stanley Theater. And how they did sing! "Happy Days Are Here Again," "Little White Lies" "I Still Get a Thrill Thinking of You" and other popular songs of the day were on their program.

The youngsters enjoyed the picture—Winnie Lightner in "The Life of the Party." It was a continuous burst of enthusiasm for nearly two hours. The entertainment was amplified with newsreels and comedies.

Man's Death Laid To Leap Off Bridge

County detectives today were investigating the death of George Allshouse, 60, of 629 Pitcairn street, Wilmerding, whose body was found in the Monongahela River 200 feet below the McKeesport-Duquesne Bridge yesterday. A report to the coroner's office indicated the man had leaped from the bridge, attaches said.

Pittsburgh Youth Acts in School Play

POLICE QUIZ ANOTHER IN BLAST

Couple Arrested After Finding of Oil in Home; 5th Ave. Shop Rocked

A husband and wife were held for court, charged with arson, today in an alleged attempt to fire a Brookline dwelling, while police questioned a man in their investigation of an explosion that wrecked the basement of a Fifth avenue meat market.

Those held were Carl S. Cuda, 29, and his wife Frances, 28, of 521 Rossmore avenue.

Before Magistrate J. J. Sweeney in Mt. Washington police station Fire Chief W. H. Huhlman testified that in response to an alarm by a cab driver, firemen found the Cuda dwelling on fire. Two five-gallon buckets of oil and an oil soaked rug were found in the attic, he testified. The blaze was extinguished with little damage.

BLAMES ENEMIES

Cuda testified he and his wife were at the home of friends when the fire started. He blamed the oil on enemies. The house is owned by Mrs. Rose Dumont, 38 Jenesta street. Cuda said his furniture was insured for between $3,000 and $4,000.

The Fifth avenue explosion hurled two heavy iron cellar doors into the street, the doors narrowly missing an automobile passing at the time. Joseph Louvolla, 32, of 916 Wylie avenue, and Samuel Lesker, 35, of 1619 Center avenue, who were standing in front of the establishment, were cut by flying glass. The meat market is owned by Victor Silverman.

PAIR ARRESTED

Police investigating the explosion arrested Silverman, who lives at 204 Dinwiddie street, and Hymie Shapiro, 23, of 3103 Lyon street, an employe. Silverman was freed by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court. Shapiro was held for further investigation.

Shapiro was behind the counter in the shop at the time, and was burned slightly.

FINAL WARNING ON AUTO TEST

A few days of grace has been extended unofficially to motorists who have not complied with the mandatory order to have their cars inspected.

Traffic Inspector Jacob Dorsey today said inspection stations will be open the balance of this week and motorists who do not take advantage of this courtesy will face a summons to Traffic Court.

Dorsey has instructed all traffic officers to issue a summons to each driver of an uninspected car.

Failure to answer the summons will be followed by warrants for arrest and a demand for $55 forfeits, or jail pending hearings.

Woman Fined $50 As Fortune Teller

Mrs. Elizabeth Cyphers, 55, of 1001 Grandview avenue, was fined $50 or 30 days in jail, on a charge of fortune-telling, by Magistrate T. D. Jones in Morals Court, today.

Mrs. Anne Gordon and Mrs. Ida Forsaith, policewomen, testified they each paid $2 to have their fortunes told.

Mrs. Cyphers, a widow, admitted the charge, saying she used the revenue to support her two children.

Drowsy Mourners Reveal Fumes Killed Woman

Drowsiness of relatives who came to the bier of Mrs. Zelma Miller, 22, of 1731 South Canal street, Sharpsburg, revealed the real cause of her death, according to the coroner's report.

Mrs. Miller was found dead in the kitchen of her home Saturday by her husband, Edgar. Death was then believed to have resulted from heart ailment, deputy coroners said.

Relatives, seated near a kitchen stove set up without a flue, became drowsy and then collapsed, it was reported. A test of the victim's blood was then taken. It disclosed carbon monoxide fumes as the cause of death. The relatives were revived in fresh air.

ARMED YOUTHS EMPTY CASH REGISTER

New Friends Steal Man's Car and Cash; Shadyside Pharmacist Routs Thugs

McKeesport police are searching for two youths who early today held up and robbed the Harman Pharmacy, 1127 Walnut street, and escaped with approximately $500 and a wrist watch. Mrs. Harman, 26, proprietor of the store, and Harry Hobson, 39, a clerk, were in the prescription room when the bandits entered shortly before closing time.

Both thugs were armed, Mrs. Harman said. After warning the woman and clerk to remain quiet, one of the robbers ransacked a cash register, while the other compelled Hobson to turn over his watch, valued at $25.

ROB MAN, TAKE CAR

Search was being made by police today for two men who, police say, held up and robbed John W. Sehutz, of 906 South avenue, Wilkinsburg, robbing him of a watch valued at $50, a topcoat and his automobile at Sylvan and Greenfield avenues, yesterday.

Sehutz told police, they say, that he met the two men in the William Penn Hotel.

For the second time within a year, bandits were frustrated in their attempt to hold up the Bluestone Phamacy, in Shady avenue, late Saturday night. Three armed thugs who walked into the place were routed when the proprietor, instead of complying with their demands to "stick 'em up," drew a revolver.

A sneak thief entered the Fourth Presbyterian Church, Friendship and South Pacific avenue, during the morning services yesterday and stole two overcoats valued at $64 and a hat worth $5, according to police. Police were furnished with a description of a youth suspected of the theft.

Charles Stader, an employe of the Transcontinental Air Transport Company, reported to East End police this morning that a suitcase containing a $600 aerial camera had been stolen from his automobile while it was parked in Bnnett street near Murtland avenue during the night. The suitcase also contained a flying helmet, goggles and examination papers.

STORE LOOTED

Toilet goods and confections valued at $300 were stolen during the night from the Penn Shady pharmacy at 228 Shady avenue, according to a report made to police by Jacob Cohen, one of the proprietors.

The Camera Question Box

Today's question: Fay King says, "Ambition blinds some women to the real things of life." Is this true?

Mr. Dimas

ANDREW DIMAS, Chicago, guest—I think ambition does blind many women to the real things of life. A woman with a great ambition centers all her life on it and excludes the better part of life that is her right.

Mr. Liberati

NICHOLAS LIBERATI, North Side, clerk—A woman with ambition often wastes the best years of her life on what she considers worth while only to find that she has lost all to gain nothing. I will say, however, that there are exceptions.

Mr. Anderson

RALPH ANDERSON, Brookline, bricklayer—No, I don't think that many women are blinded to the real things in life by ambition. It often happens that a woman's ambition leads in this direction and so it should. Every woman should have some ambition.

Miss Schiegg

MISS MARY ALICE SCHIEGG, Mt. Oliver, stenographer—I do not think a woman is blinded by her ambition, as a rule. Every woman should have some ambition just as well as a man. The danger lies in the fact that she has too great an ambition.

Miss McCaulley

MISS EVELYN M'CAULEY, North Side, teacher—She is right if she speaks about those women who sacrifice the best years of their lives to their careers. When their ambition is reached, they have nothing left to live for—their older life is usually empty and lonely.

Miss Thaler

MISS ANNA THALER, North Side—I do not believe that a woman should have too great an ambition for her station in life. That is where the danger lies. A little bit of ambition is a necessary stimulus.

AUTO ACCIDENTS FATAL TO 6

DIES IN HOSPITAL

Thomas Lackowicz, 24, of 325 Olivia street, McKees Rocks, died in the Ohio Valley Hospital from injuries sustained in automobile crash in McCoy road, Stowe Township, Thursday.

When a truck driven by Jerome Sexton, 20, of 5810 Pierce street, collided with an automobile driven by Thomas Johnson, 21, of 3079 Texas avenue, Dormont, at Lang avenue and Thomas boulevard, yesterday, both drivers and Alex Sharp, 16, of Undercliff road, were injured. They were taken to the Pittsburgh Hospital.

A victim of a hit-and-run motorist, James Tufexis, 42, of 7639 Hamilton avenue, was in the Pittsburgh Hospital today in a serious condition. He was struck at Hamilton and Brushton avenues early yesterday.

CYCLE OFFICER HURT

Motorcycle Officer John Macara, of Braddock police, is in a serious condition in Braddock General Hospital as a result of a collision with the automobile of Dr. William A. Pennington, 118 South avenue, Braddock, early this morning.

According to police, the motorcycle skidded into the machine of Dr. Pennington at the corner of Sixth and Margaretta streets Braddock, and the officer was thrown from his seat against the side of the car. Attaches at the hospital say he sustained a fractured skull.

CRASH INJURES TWO

Collision of two automobiles at Baum boulevard and South Negley avenue last night resulted in injury to a woman passenger in each. Mrs. Ida Knox, 35, of 5925 Harvard street, riding in a machine driven by Nick Calbaco, 39, of 13 West Main street, Carnegie, was taken to the West Penn Hospital. Mrs. Anna Robinson, 42, a Negro, of 630 Duff street, was also injured. She rode in the machine operated by B. R. Gibson, 65, a Negro, of 2159 Center avenue.

Walter Furger, 4, of 1010 Cherry way, was in the Braddock General Hospital with injuries suffered when struck by an automobile at Eleventh street and Braddock avenue, Braddock, yesterday. The machine was said to have been driven by Donald Anderson, of 1662 Laketon road, Wilkinsburg.

Sylvester Clark, 29, a taxicab driver, of 3932 Howley avenue, was injured when he swerved his cab into a tree in Schenley Park to avoid hitting another machine last night. He is in the Magee Hospital.

NEW KENSINGTON MISHAPS

Jane Hopkins and Sara Zimmerman, both of New Kensington, are confined to their homes suffering injuries sustained in two accidents last night. Mrs. Elizabeth Cook, 28; Margaret Hawk, 19, and Harry W. Cook, all of New Kensington, other occupants of the same car, were injured.

Harry Cook was driving the car in which the women were riding when it figured in a collision with the machine of U. A. Stitt, 58, of Vandergrift, and David Dunbar, highway patrolman, arrested Dunbar on a reckless driving charge. Mrs. Cook and Miss Hawk were injured seriously, both suffering probable fractures of the skull.

Isaac Schaffer, 32, of Tarentum, placed the injured women in his car and started for a physician's office. His car was sideswiped by two other machines. Schaffer was cut and bruised and the women shaken in the second accident.

HARTLEP, RADIO DOCTOR APPEAL

Appeals for new trials today were filed for William Hartlep, supervisor of North Side parks, convicted on charge of voluntary manslaughter, and for Dr. J. E. Johnson, 6101 Penn avenue, found guilty on a false pretense charge.

Hartlep was convicted in the death of George Niberding, 16, of 616 Sherman avenue, who was struck by a baseball bat June 27 and died from injuries the next day.

Johnson was accused of practicing "aetheronics," a radio treatment, at which County Detective David Dexler testified treatment was promised for a mythical sister and first payment made to the doctor.

Arguments in both cases will be heard at the close of the present court term.

Alleged Holdup Man Convicted, Fined $25

On testimony that he slugged Joseph Nidzlak, of 112 Steuben street, and took $20 from him, Mike Kaminski, 22, of 616 Main street, was fined $25 in South Side Police Court today. Kaminski denied the charge.

West View Board To Fill Vacancy

A successor to Fred Thoke, who resigned from the West View School Board after moving from the borough, will be elected at a meeting of the board tomorrow night in the Junior High School.

DICE GAME ROW INVOLVES 45

Forty-five Negroes were fined this morning in Central Police Court by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg for participating in a crap game last night in a basement at the rear of 1400 Wylie avenue.

The game terminated when, police said, Spencer Bracken, 36, was stabbed under the heart by Rudolph Fields, 25, when Bracken refused to pay on a 10-cent "pass." Bracken is in a serious condition in Mercy Hospital. Fields attempted an escape by leaping from a second-story window of the house, and fractured both legs. He is in West Penn Hospital.

James Bates, 38, named as "house man," was fined $100 or 30 days to the workhouse. The others drew $5 fines.

Fields will be arrested when he is able to leave the hospital.

DAVIS PRAISES UKRAINIANS

Secretary James J. Davis of the Department of Labor was the principal speaker at a memorial meeting held yesterday in the Soldiers Memorial Hall. The meeting conducted under the auspices of the Ukrainian Legion and the United Ukrainian Organizations of Pittsburgh and vicinity, was in honor of Ukrainian soldiers who fought in the allied armies in the World War.

More than 3,000 Ukrainian nationalists from Allegheny, Beaver and Westmoreland counties were present. Secretary Davis praised these present for retaining an organization which is devoted to civic growth and betterment.

Pawns Silverware To Purchase Rum

Charles Loller, 38, of 3640 Mifflin street, pawned the family silverware to buy liquor, his wife, Angeline, testified in Morals Court today. Loller admitted the charge, and said he would see that his wife got the pawn ticket. He was fined $10 or 10 days in jail by Magistrate T. D. Jones.

BRIDGE CLUB OPENED HERE

Bridge today has a permanent home in Pittsburgh with the formal opening of the Pittsburgh Bridge Club with a membership of 150 in Hotel William Penn.

Open house is being held throughout the week, from noon until midnight. The former Venetian room has been leased with three others on the club floor forming one general bridge room, a gentleman's bridge room and a ladies' lounge.

The club plans auction and contract bridge daily. Progressive duplicate contract games will be held Tuesday nights during the season with nightly and season prizes. Four silver trophies will be awarded at an open duplicate game Wednesday night.

H. J. Bailey is president. Other officers include C. E. Moody, vice president; Capt. F. G. French, secretary-treasurer and manager; Board Members Miss Margaret Beech, Mrs. R. J. Burns, Mrs. Florence C. Douglass, R. J. Henderson, Miss Clara Morris, J. F. Robinson, Mrs. H. D. Stahl, K. F. Treschow and Mrs. Nelson R. Van Kleeck.

SCIENCE FAITH EXPLAINED

Christian Science takes the Old Testament definition of God as "I Am," and couples it with the terms cause, intelligence, good, life and love, Ralph B. Scholfield, of London, last night explained in a lecture in the Liberty Theater, sponsored by the Fourth Church of Christ, Scientist.

Declaring the question of prayer is important in the teaching and practice of Christian Science, he said:

"In the treatment of sickness, the Christian Scientist is really trying to obey the First Commandment. Both the Old and New Testament give us every indication that organic disease must yield to the law of God just as readily as functional disease."

DR. GOLDENSON PRAISES FORUM

Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson, rabbi of the Temple Rodef Shalom, lauded the birth of a spirit of free inquiry, seen in the recent religious forum held here, in an address to the members of his congregation yesterday morning. The rabbi was one of the participants in the forum of agnostic, Protestant, Catholic and Jew.

Goldenson declared he could see a cultural phenomenon and manifestation of the spirit of the age in the mutual respect and admiration with which prominent exponents of three religions could meet an agnostic and discuss calmly and logically their beliefs and disbeliefs. He drew a contrast between the spirit of free inquiry with which the forum was held and the persecution of Galileo, forced to recant and do penance for his "heresy" in declaring the sun the center of the universe.

BAKERY BLAZE HALTS TRAFFIC

Fifth avenue traffic was halted for more than a half hour as a large crowd watched firemen battle a blaze in the upper floors of Rhea's Bakery at 439 Market street last night.

The blaze, originating on the third floor, reached the fourth before it was extinguished by firemen who fought it from ladders placed against the front and rear of the building. Hoseman Charles J. Larus, of No. 1 Engine Company, was cut on the right hand by glass. He returned to duty after being treated. Deputy Chief Frank Jones estimated the damage at $3,000.

Officials of the store announced business would be carried on today.

'Preacher' Fined $10 For Alleged Theft

Charles Mayfield, Negro lay preacher, was fined $10 with the option of 10 days in jail by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Station today after police testified he had stolen a pair of shoes yesterday in the Hill district. The Negro said he was on his way to church and that:

"It's not stealing if nobody sees you."

Lancaster Man Dies Alone in Hotel Room

Samuel H. Lichty, 65, of 127 College avenue, Lancaster, Pa., was found dead in his room at the Pittsburgher Hotel early today. Failing to respond to a call which he left with the room clerk last night, his room was opened at 6:30 this morning. Death was pronounced due to a heart attack.

Day's Pay Pledged To Help Unemployed

Members of the city detective bureau and the automobile division today pledged one day's pay each to the Fraternal Order of Police to be used in buying necessities for the unemployed of Pittsburgh. Inspector Frank R. Boyd, of the detective bureau, said the subscription was 100 per cent.

PUPILS ENROLL IN RED CROSS

Nearly 200,000 boys and girls of elementary and secondary schools of Allegheny County will enroll as members of the Junior Red Cross in the Junior Roll Call which takes place from November 3 to 7. Last year there were 189,909 members from 501 schools in this county.

The American Junior Red Cross is a department of the American Red Cross belonging to the school children of the United States, through which they can find opportunity to serve others. One of the services given by these children is the making of holiday favors in the art classes for wounded veterans in the hospitals. In addition to this they help to prepare surgical dressings and various other articles.

Children of Pittsburgh Chapter, Junior Red Cross, last year provided milk, glasses, shoes and other necessities to needy youngsters who could not afford these things. Through their membership they help to finance the Pittsburgh Farm School, located at Fontaineroux, France. They also pay the salary of the chauffeur who drives the bus which takes the crippled children of the Industrial Home for Crippled Children, Shady avenue, Pittsburgh, to nearby high and trade schools, colleges, hospitals and recreational centers.

R-101 SLUGGISH, SURVIVOR SAYS

LONDON, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—J. H. Binks, engineer and one of the survivors of the R-101 disaster, today told the special court of inquiry into the loss of the dirigible that the ship did not leave her mooring mast on an even keel at the start of the tragic voyage to India.

The engineer said that the R-101 seemed to fall at the stern as she left the tower and three water ballasts had to be released. It is not unusual to release water ballasts, but it seemed abnormal to release three.

Binks is still under hospital treatment for injuries received in the crash of the R-101. He gave his testimony with difficulty.

2 JURY PANELS START SERVICE

A new grand jury and two new panels of 120 jurors each today began two weeks service during the November term of criminal court. There will be no court sessions tomorrow, election day.

On Wednesday Nora Blank, Negro, of 621 Duff street, is to go on trial charged with the murder of Madison Mitchell, 43, Negro, a roomer in the woman's home. Mitchell was stabbed to death in the house July 17, 1929.

LUTHERAN MEET WEDNESDAY

The fall convention of the Lutheran Central Conference of the Pittsburgh Synod of the United Lutheran Church in America will be held in the Emanuel Lutheran Church, Bellevue, Wednesday. The Rev. P. H. R. Mullen of Swissvale will deliver the conference sermon Wednesday morning, after which reports will be received and committees appointed.

The Rev. J. O. Glenn of Wheeling will conduct the devotional service. During the afternoon addresses will be made by the Rev. C. E. Grotke of Wheeling, the Rev. E. F. Rice of Duquesne, and the Rev. G. E. Swoyer of Pittsburgh. All the addresses will be on "Stewardship."

Laymen of the conference will have charge of the evening session. Attorney John E. Winner will preside. The speakers will be H. E. Warren, P. A. A. Schellhass and H. W. Biklo of Pittsburgh, and J. E. Lowry of Braddock.

FOREST FIRES BURNING OUT

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—A quick conquest of the brush and timber fire which has swept the Santa Monica Mountains for four days was forecast today by the county fire warden's office.

The turning point in the fight against the flames that have burned over 20,000 acres in Los Angeles County and a considerably larger area in Ventura County came shortly after the fire had flared at the head of Trancas Canyon, Los Angeles County, and burned out of control for an hour.

Oil City Man Heads National Transit

OIL CITY, Pa., Nov. 3.—L. E. Lockwood, of Oil City, has been announced to succeed F. D. Williams, for 10 years president and general manager of the National Transit Company and its subsidiaries, who resigned Saturday. Lockwood is a former president of the Crescent Pipe Lines Company, and a director of the National Transit.

SHIP RAMMED, 6 DROWNED

BREMEN, Nov. 3.—(INS.)—The captain and five of the crew of the 118-ton steamer Langeoog were drowned today when the ship sank after being rammed by the German steamer Wahere off the Dutch coast.

Six others of the crew were rescued. The Langeoog, only 81 feet long, sank almost immediately after being struck by the large freighter, which has a tonpage of 4,690.

Both ships were registered from Hamburg.

Man Missing Week Found Dead in Field

DOVER, O., Nov. 3.—Otto Pfeiffer, 36, missing since last Monday, was found in a field near his farm home in Russlin Hills, five miles north of here, by Andrew Fauser, Dover. Death was caused by exposure, Coroner J. F. Lewis decided.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

All Circles of Society Represented at First Cinema Performance

Hundreds of members of the Cinema Guild enjoyed the opening evening of a series of four Sunday night film productions. And the scene of this Sunday night gathering was the ballroom of the Hotel Schenley. In the reception room before the film was shown, many members of the social set were seen chatting with friends.

All the circles in Pittsburgh society were represented. Debutantes, social leaders, artists and musicians were there.

Among the debutantes I noted chatting with friends in the reception room were Helen Louise Tunnell, who wore an apple blossom pink lace gown with an interesting cowl neckline, and Frances Kier, who looked charming in a black lace gown with a tiered skirt, and a corsage of gardenias.

* * *

Elizabeth McKay, who with Frances Kier was in charge of the debutante committee, was unable to be there. Others named on the committee were Barbara Irwin, Jane Marshall, Nancy Craig and Elizabeth Miller.

Debutante Set Aides

Nancy Brown was among the late arrivals, and Mrs. Frank J. Kier in a black lace gown with a jacket of seal and ermine, came with her attractive daughter, Frances.

Mrs. Sidney Binns, wearing a black and white ensemble, I saw chatting with friends, and Mrs. William A. Duckham and Mrs. W. A. Hicks. Mrs. Duckham wore a black velvet jacket. The Solon Armour Persons I saw, with Mrs. Person wearing a Russian carraed black coat, and Mrs. E. T. Weir. Mrs. Weir chose a green chiffon beaded gown.

Others there were Mrs. J. W. Henry Jr., Frances Henry and Mrs. Harold Boyd Hershman, who wore a black mousseline de soie gown, embroidered with turquoise blue sequins, and fashioned with a cape collar.

* * *

Mrs. Raymond Willy chose a black velvet gown with a train, and Mrs. A. P. Brill wore a black velvet wrap, trimmed in chinchilla.

Black Is Prominent

Mrs. T. Percival Cuthbert wore black chiffon. Mrs. Ferdinand T. Weil, brown lace; Mrs. Rose Natalie Yost, who is arranging the Guild events, wore copper chiffon with a cream lace peplum and a copper velvet wrap with a collar of sable. Mrs. George Terrell Bailey chose black chiffon and velvet, Mrs. Carl Reed, a white gown with a black velvet wrap.

Other prominent members of the Guild are Mrs. Joseph M. Scribner, Mrs. James Edward Lewis, Mrs. John Henry Palmer, Mrs. H. C. Kreusler, Mrs. Bedell Monroe, Mrs. Lewis Hicks, Mrs. Alexander Blair, Miss Helen Rauh, Mrs. Thomas D. Chantler, Mrs. D. D. Quarrie, Mrs. E. C. Brainerd, Mrs. Harry Christian May, Jr., and Mrs. Lawrence W. Knapp.

* * *

This afternoon nearly everyone in the social world, one might say without being accused of exaggeration, will attend the wedding of Marian Stone, daughter of the Stephen Stones, and Edward Purcell Mellon, II, son of the T. A. Mellons, which will take place at 5 o'clock in the Sixth Presbyterian Church. One of the sisters of the bride-to-be, Mrs. J. Shirley Austin, gave the wedding breakfast this morning at the Fox Chapel Golf Club.

To Attend Wedding

* * *

Mrs. John Duncan Evans and Louise Evans have been in New York for a few days, where they stopped at the Barclay.

* * *

On Saturday, October 18, Miss Doris Irene Purdum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Anson Purdum, of Beaver, became the bride of Harry Swesey McCleery, of Tuscarawas road, Beaver, son of John Cassel McCleery, of Assumption, Ill., and the late Mrs. McCleery. The ceremony took place in the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Beaver at 4:30 o'clock, with the Rev. Dr. Homer D. Whitfield, pastor, officiating. The church was banked with cibotium ferns, palms and tall standards of white chrysanthemums lighted by cathedral candles in tall candelabra. Roy E. Purdum, cousin of the bride, of Lakewood, O., played the wedding music.

Married On Oct. 18

The bride wore a gown of white satin in princess mode with a veil of princess lace held by a cap of lace caught with orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of lilies of the valley and bride's roses. She was given in marriage by her father. Her sister, Miss Mary Leota Purdum, as the maid of honor, wore honey-beige lace with a matching turban of metal cloth and carried bronze dahlias.

* * *

Gowns of Attendants

John Cassel McCleery, Jr., of Beaver, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man, and the ushers included William Eakin Bayliss, of Beaver, and Earl N. Clagett, of Cambridge, O.

The wedding dinner was given in the Lois V. Snapp tea room, with the tables centered with fall flowers and yellow roses. After a western trip Mr. and Mrs. McCleery will be at home in East End avenue, Beaver.

The bride is a graduate of Margaret Morrison Carnegie College, Carnegie Institute of Technology, and of the Retail Research Bureau of the University of Pittsburgh. Mr. McCleery attended the University of Pittsburgh and Geneva College, where he was a member of Kappa Sigma.

Inter-Cities Conference Held by District B. P. W. At Wilkinsburg

More than 100 members of Business and Professional Women's Clubs gathered at the Penn-Lincoln Hotel, Wilkinsburg, on Saturday for the southwestern district inter-cities conference. The afternoon was devoted to business and a splendid program marked the dinner session.

Judge Sara Soffel has made many splendid addresses, but certainl, none finer in its simplicity, sincerity and power than that of Saturday when she talked of "Ten Years of Suffrage." She spoke of the first step in the fight for suffrage—the effort of women to gain entrance to universities and colleges back in the first half of the Nineteenth Century; then the fight for economic emancipation which the World War brought to a crux and last, the adoption of the Nineteenth Amendment with its accession of rights, privileges and responsibilities. One step is left to be taken and women are now in the midst of the struggle for equality of opportunity, she said.

In evaluating what has been done, Judge Soffel said no thinking suffragist expected the millennium when women were given the vote. She went on to talk of women in public service—judges, mayors, governors and congresswomen and, incidentally, paid a high tribute to a trio of Pittsburgh women, Mrs. J. O. Miller, Mrs. Frank Roessing and Miss Hannah Patterson, for their efforts on behalf of suffrage.

* * *

A woman in public service is not merely an individual, but she has the added responsibility of representing all womankind, Judge Soffel said, and added that if women are to become a political power they must learn party politics and must play the game as the men play it; moreover, it is not sufficient that they know their own country's politics, but they must know that of other countries as well. Development of leadership for responsible political positions is what is needed among women now, Judge Soffel pointed out.

Must Play Politics

Dr. Mildred Rogers, state president, told a little of the organization of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women at Geneva this summer, at which she and five others in the room were present, and which she called "an experiment in spiritual democracy." Eighteen nationalities were represented by the 173 women, one of these coming from India with her chaperone. How American women can be happy though unmarried seemed to cause the European women the greatest perplexity, Dr. Rogers said. Mrs. Helen M. Schluraff, of Erie, state membership chairman, spoke of the new organizations and asked that memberships be analyzed.

There was a program of original compositions, the work of Miss Marianne Genet, of Wilkinsburg, by Mrs. Marjorie Evans Stuart, soprano, with the composer at the piano.

* * *

The Wes. View Forum will meet this evening at the home of Mrs. William Crawford, Cornell avenue, West View. Roll call will be answered by current events. "Commander Byrd's Expedition," "The Duities of the United States Ambassadors Abroad" and "Progress in Aviation" are the subjects to be discussed. The program will be completed with music. Mrs. David Lewis is leader and Mrs. H. R. Richardson, associate hostess.

* * *

The talented Irey Trio, who will appear tomorrow at the president's day reception of the Health Colony Club, present an unusual array of gifts. Mrs. Philip M. Irey, mother of the other two members, is a pianist. The daughter, Miss Janet Irey, is a reader, singer, cellist, and ukulele and banjo player, and the son, Sumner Irey, plays the saw, banjo and drums. Mrs. Irey, by the way, was matron of honor at the wedding of Mrs. E. D. Harshbarger, Health Colony's president, and with her children, will be a guest at Mrs. Harshbarger's home in Gladstone road, during their fortnight's Pittsburgh visit. The trio will give a concert November 7, at Asbury Methodist Church.

SPORTS SUITS TIED TO MODE BY BRIGHT SCARF

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—In many of the newest suits, the scarf ties up the jacket and skirt when they are of different hues. Although we do not hear or see so much of the sports suit for town, there are always some models being made for women who spend much time in the country and want cheerful, colorful but correct clothes to offset the sometimes depressing pall of autumn in the country. Although such clothes are colorful, color is not used in a riotous way and usually vivid shades are subdued by black or dark brown. Jersey and tweed-jersey are fabrics much in demand for sports wear and checked designs still retain their appeal. The big scarf is very much to the fore in these suits, and when the jacket is dark, provides a vivid bit of color by being made of the same fabric as the brightly-hued frock.

* * *

A JAUNTY insouciance is the primary necessity of the successful sports suit and this year, those designers who are making several such models are stressing this note. The two sketches of the Mirande model which decorate this page are eloquent evidence of the admixture of jauntiness, clever tailoring and smart use of color all of which ingredients are necessary for the good sports model. The belted frock is of yellow and black checked jersey and is a one-piece affair that attains an unusual degree of smartness. With the frock is worn a comfortable, belted jacket of black ribbed jersey with large patch pockets. The wide scarf is, of course, of the checked jersey and makes the ensemble as well as adding a welcome blotch of color to the sombre-hued jacket. Such frocks as this justify the retention of the sports mode when it looked almost like being put out of the ultra-feminine sartorial picture.

PLAID-VIOLET GAMES ANNUAL UPSETS

FOOTBALL GAMES BETWEEN Carnegie Tech and New York U. appear to have formed a habit of going contrary to the dope. In 1928 the Tartans were undefeated and headed for the Eastern championship when they met the Violets here in the final game of the season. They had beaten W. & J., Pitt, Georgetown and Notre Dame in the preceding four games, and Notre Dame had been the only one of those four opponents to score against them. The Steffenites were 10-to-8 favorites. Yet the New Yorkers smashed them, 27 to 13.

Bob McNamara

In 1929, the Skibos looked to have no chance at all after being tied by W. & J., losing to Notre Dame and being crushed under 34 points by Pitt, but they invaded Gotham and overwhelmed Chick Meehan's forces, 20 to 0. The third consecutive upset in this annual fixture went into the records at the Stadium last Saturday, when, with the dope, the betting odds and every other advance item favoring a Carnegie victory, the Scots took a 20-to-7 beating from a supposedly inferior team that flashed one of the season's backfield sensations in the person of Bob McNamara.

THERE WAS NO disputing New York's superiority on that particular day, at least, and the Violet must be given credit for a triumph that was clearly earned and deserved. Bob McNamara was a tremendous force in himself, but there were also three home-district products in Joe and Herman La Mark, of Coraopolis, and Ernest Vavra, of Universal, an uncommonly good end in Capt. Jerry Nemecek, who shifted from the left to the right terminal to combat Ted Rozenzweig, and an alert and well drilled line.

So it was a team victory scored in convincing style, and the New Yorkers are entitled to all the glory that goes with such an achievement, but at the same time it was not Carnegie's best football team that they beat. Whatever ailed the Skibos, they clearly were not up to their standard, either in quality of play or spirit, and their exhibition was far short of what previous form had led their followers to expect, with due allowance for the fact that they were up against an opponent having a peak day.

IN FAILING TO get better than a scoreless tie against Nebraska in Lincoln, Pitt also fell below expectations. Like the Skibos, the Panthers bumped into an inspired foe, but at that they might have got better results but for some lethargic football in the first half.

As usual, Ralph Daugherty was a tower of strength at center, Ernie Lewis did a swell job at right guard, and Eddie Baker and Paul Reider were backfield standouts, but the Sutherland combination as a whole did not function with its accustomed power and smoothness, nor show its usual punch when scoring opportunities presented themselves.

Ralph Daugherty

AT THAT, IT must be admitted that in situations such as the two in which Pitt failed to score Saturday after taking the ball close to the Nebraska line, much depends upon the point of view. It's like a baseball case in which the tying or winning runs are left on the bases. If it's the home club that fails to knock them in, the fans bemoan the failure as due to weak hitting. But if conditions are reversed and the other side fails in the same way to knock in the needed markers, the same fans will say it was great pitching or fine defensive work that stopped the enemy. If the Panthers had twice held Nebraska within the shadow of their own goal line it probably would have been looked upon around here as a noble defensive stand, so it may not be drifting far from the facts to attribute Saturday's two main scoring failures as due, at least partly, to unusually strong defensive work on the part of the Cornhuskers.

IT BEGINS TO appear that when Notre Dame beats them, they stay beaten for a while. Evidence has piled up during recent weeks to indicate that a defeat at the hands of the Irish takes something out of the vanquished team; hurts its spirit and future form as well as its record.

After losing to Notre Dame, Southern Methodist easily won a letdown game against Austin, but was played to a 14-14 tie by comparatively obscure Baylor; Navy was swamped by Duke, 18 to 0, in its next game; Carnegie, with the Western Reserve let-down in between, took an unexpected trimming from New York U., and Pitt in its next contest got only a tie when a victory had been generally anticipated.

GOING BACK to Bob McNamara, of New York U., local fans have rarely seen a player so brilliant in his sophomore year. If he doesn't equal the great Ken Strong before he is done his exhibition here Saturday was misleading.

McNamara was a whole team in himself. He carried the ball in 33 of his team's 51 plays from scrimmage, accounted for 280 of the 324 yards gained by the Violet, did the kicking like a master, and when taken out of the game just one play before the finish he was still fresh enough to run off the field like a sprinter in a 100-yard dash. There are four McNamaras, unrelated, on the Meehan squad, but the Skibos can attest that one of them is plenty.

Burleigh Grimes

AMONG BASEBALL'S off-season pipe dreams is one to the effect that as soon as the world series was over President Sam Breadon, of the St. Louis Cardinals, made haste to get Pitcher Burleigh Grimes signed up for next season, even allowing him to write in his own terms, and eventually getting the spitballer's signature to a contract calling for $20,000. It sounds swell and makes Breadon look good, but it has one trivial weak spot in the fact that he didn't do anything of the kind. Grimes has not signed any new contract for the very good reason that none was necessary. When Burleigh went to the Braves from the Pirates he signed a Boston contract for two years. When the Braves traded him to the Cardinals, the St. Louis club merely assumed that contract, and it holds good until the end of the season of 1931.

THE LAUDABLE MOVEMENT started by President E. S. Barnard, of the American League, to abolish the ridiculous sacrifice fly, has a strong supporter in Connie Mack. The veteran chieftain of the world champion A's admits that the batter who throws away his chance for a possible hit to help a runner along by laying down a bunt is entitled to some credit.

But, like the majority of the fans, he can't see any good reason for giving the same reward to a clouter who goes out on a fly ball while trying to knock the pill out of the premises. "A man who hits a fly ball is trying to get a home run," says Connie. "A player who lays down a bunt loses a chance for a hit, whereas the one who takes a free swing at the ball is making no sacrifice at all. That is one rule I'd like to see abolished."

MACK OBSERVES THAT the bunting game is almost a thing of the past. He says the A's do not use it to any extent, except late in a game when they need a run to win. He points out that some of the regulars of today are not good bunters, and that the heavy sluggers are weak when it comes to laying one down.

"It would not take anything away from the player who bunts," he adds, "for today there are few who really have mastered the art as it was mastered in the old days. Only under exceptional conditions do

MITT WIZARDS CLASH AT GARDEN

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

From heavyweight slugging in its main bout of last week, Motor Square Garden moves on to speedy science as exemplified by two small stars of the sport in its headline fistic offering tonight, which sees Wee Willie Davies, of Charleroi, pitted against Archie Bell, of Brooklyn.

Wearying of waiting for a real shot at the flyweight championship of the world, Davies makes his debut as a contender for bantamweight honors in facing Bell, who boxes 'em 'way up to the featherweight poundage. Willie across the years has beaten virtually all of the good 112-pounders, but has been unable to lure the champions into battles involving the diadem. There is little enough money for the little fellows, and, unless there's glory at the end of the trail to compensate for the small purses, there seems little reason to go on and on in the same old way, so Davies has sat himself down and done some serious thinking, finally coming out of the huddle with himself with the resolve to seek fresh laurels among the bantams.

Willie Davies

Archie Bell

BELL PROVES WORTH

In boxing Bell, Davies is plucking no part of an easy assignment. Archie is as clever in his own shell-like way as Davies is in his swift-moving, feinting manner, and a great battle is in prospect. There may not be any heavy hitting, but that there will be plenty of flashy action there can be no doubt. Bell has boxed here only once, in the same ring, and that night he knocked the fans out of their seats into the aisles by his exhibition of ring wizardry in taking the measure of Jackie Rodgers after the local Negro knockout artist had amassed a string of eight consecutive kayo triumphs.

Bell arrived in town yesterday and staged his final workout here in preparation for tonight's bout. He declared he was fit for a strenuous mill and said he was well aware of the skill of his foe and anticipated an interesting but successful evening. Davies, meanwhile, tapered off in a gym in Charleroi and will come to town in time to weigh in at the Garden gym at [illegible] p. m. today.

TRACEY VS. WILSON

A good preliminary card backs up the Davies-Bell tilt. In the semi-final are two knifing middleweight punchers, Jack Wilson, of the North Side, and Jack Tracey, Negro flash, formerly of Louisville, now of here, or hereabouts. A lot of lightning should flash in their meeting, scheduled for eight rounds, but likely to terminate any time inside the limit. Jimmy Belmont, Braddock welterweight, and Nordi Smith, Negro, of Newark, O., are in the second bout and U. S. Carpentier, of New Kensington, and Tiger Joe Clark, of the South Side, in the opener, scheduled for 8:30.

Between Rounds

Many local boxers will be busy tonight in various sectors. Anastasio Vacquerio, the Panamanian bantamweight, meets Joe Dragon, of Cincinnati, in a main bout at Wheeling, with Mose Butch, of Oakland, hoxing Tony Quinto in the semi-final. Jimmy Thomas, Negro bantamweight, of the Hill, boxes Pete Mazzeo, of Cleveland, in the semi-final to a Louie-Severo-Jackie Coogan meeting at Meadville. Johnny Smackey, of Canonsburg, boxes

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF SATURDAY: THE PITCH LAKE OF TRINIDAD—This "Lake of Asphalt" is located on the highest part of La Brea Point, Brighton, on the Island of Trinidad, off the coast of Venezuela. The lake was first discovered by Sir Walter Raleigh, March 22, 1705, and he described its contents as stone pitch far superior to the European pitch. The asphalt is of excellent quality and is used commercially for street paving and roofing and from it is extracted many chemical by-products. Geologists say the lake had its origin in the earth fracture of sufficient depth to reach a large oil and gas reservoir deep in the earth's crust. The escape and gradual violatilization of the extruding masses has left the present enormous asphalt deposit.

TARTANS LOSE, PITT TIED IN BIG GAMES

By JESS CARVER.

The boys are asking questions here and there about the country this fine morning and are having some difficulty in having their queries answered, at least, in a satisfactory fashion.

Following Saturday afternoon's program of gridiron surprises and upsets, with added to the list of 1930 football disappointments, the names of Pitt, Carnegie Tech, Dartmouth, Kansas, Wisconsin, Michigan State and Detroit, intent observers of the college sport, are wondering just what is supposed to constitute a really good football team.

FINE BALL CARRIERS

In the Middle West, where Notre Dame and Northwestern seem to have things well in hand, they will tell you that strong backfield and just a fair line will do the trick. With Notre Dame galloping forward to increased football glory behind its great backfield, and Northwestern apparently headed toward a Big Ten title, with Hank Bruder, Reb Russell, Lee Hanley and Pug Rentner showing the way, more stress is being laid on proficient ball carriers and less on great lines.

Both the Irish and the Purple have strong forward walls, of course, but it is backfield prowess that is boosting the stock of the men of Rock and Hanley.

In the East, strong lines seem to predominate. Yale and Dartmouth engaged in a battle of forward walls Saturday. Lou Little developed a line that stopped Cornell; Bucknell's first seven were too tough for Penn State and right at home in Pittsburgh, Chick Meehan strutted a powerful and well-coordinated first line of defense that upset Carnegie, just as the Tartans were thinking seriously of picking up their winning streak where Notre Dame nipped it two weeks past.

And Pitt; Ho, ho! What happened to the Panthers as they hammered frantically at the touchdown door in Nebraska was that they ran into a savagely fighting, hard-charging wave of crimson-and-white-jerseyed Cornhuskers, who denied the Panthers admittance to the very end, although the forepaws of the Pitt animal were all but across the threshold.

JUST TOO BAD

Not a few of the thousands who peered from the 'Husker stands and knew that seated on the Pitt bench, as the light backs of the Pitt machine, Reider, Clark, Walinchus and Baker, hammered at the 'Husker goal, was some 400 pounds of extra fullback strength, wondered why it was that the Pitt board of strategy didn't shoot either Hood or Luch into the fray when the ball rested so close to the double stripe?

The answer is easy. Reider and Walinchus, at the halves, and Clark, at fullback, appeared to have just struck their stride as

ALABAMA BIDS FOR CROWN

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Dixie's gridiron faithful were groggy today from the series of spectacular football happenings Saturday which reduced the field of untied and unbeaten Southern Conference teams to two—Alabama and Tulane.

Expert observers, among the thousands who witnessed Alabama's crushing conquest of Kentucky, say only a miracle team can stop the Crimson Legion from Tuscaloosa.

The Big Red machine, after downing Tennessee and Vanderbilt on successive week ends, presented a new style of defense and a net set of offensive formations—which included the pass for the first time—to beat Kentucky's best team in years, 19-0.

William and Mary's 13-13 tie with Harvard furnished the feature of Dixie's intersectional challenges.

The light Virginians spotted the Crimson an early touchdown and then rushed over two to hold the lead until the closing minutes.

Edgewood, Field Club Caddies to Be Dined

Two caddie banquets are scheduled for this evening, the members of the Edgewood Country Club and Pittsburgh Field Club having planned elaborate fetes for the bag-toters.

In each instance the boys will be given prizes for their good work last season. At Edgewood special bonus checks are to be awarded.

16 ELEVENS UNBEATEN

The national list of undefeated and untied football teams has been reduced to 16.

Oklahoma City University has scored more victories than any other college, winning seven games without a defeat or tie. Six more teams are deadlocked for second place on the list with six victories apiece. Tulsa is at the bottom with four victories.

Utah's Indians lead the unbeaten in scoring with a total of 224 points to 14 for their opponents. Only Fordham has an uncrossed goal line. One safety has been scored against Fordham.

Battalino and Shea May Fight for Title

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3. — (AP.)—Announcement was made by the Arena Corporation last night that negotiations were under way for a title bout between Bat Battalino, featherweight champion, and Eddie Shea, little Chicago slugger, at the arena here on November 24.

CARDINALS COP

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Ernie Nevers and the Chicago Cardinals could do nothing with the forward wall of the Frankford Yellow Jackets yesterday, but they took to the air in time to gain a 6-to-0 victory in a National Pro football game.

Southern Methodist Put Out of Race

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—The University of Texas smeared the football representatives of the Southern Methodists, their arch rivals, all over Memorial Stadium Field at Austin Saturday, making certain that the Methodists will not win a Southwest Conference title this year.

The result was an upset, the Mustangs having been pre-game favorites, but the victory was clear-cut and decisive. The Longhorns simply had a 25-to-7 better team than their rivals.

REIDER ON OFF-TACKLE DASH

Halfback Reider, of Pitt, one of the stars of the Panthers' scoreless tie with Nebraska at Lincoln Saturday, on one of his off-tackle dashes during the third period. He gained five yards on this play. The Panthers outplayed the Cornhuskers although they failed to win.

BAKER CATCHES PASS

A feature play in the closing stages of the Pitt-Nebraska battle. Baker, Panther captain, catches a forward pass from Hood near the goal line, but fails to score.

TUNNEY SUIT JUDGE AND MARA RELATIVES

COURT BATTLE DELAYED BY DISCOVERY

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN,
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Round three of the Gene Tunney-Timothy Mara half-million dollar legal bout was resumed in Supreme Court today only after an unexpected complication had delayed proceedings an hour while attorneys conferred in the judge's chambers.

It developed that Mara, sports promoter who is suing the retired heavyweight champion of the world for alleged breach of an oral contract, learned at a football game yesterday that his uncle, a Mr. Harris, years ago married a Miss McKee, sister-in-law of Judge Peter A. Hatting, presiding judge at the trial. Mara immediately consulted his lawyer.

The complication was explained to the jury, after the hour-long conference, by Martin W. Littleton, Mara's attorney. Emory R. Buckner, Tunney counsel, arose and said he desired to proceed with the trial, as the marriage occurred many years ago and the couple had both died.

Lloyd Stryker, counsel for the co-defendant, William Gibson, former Tunney manager, concurred and Judge Hatting ordered the trial to proceed.

Mara resumed the witness stand for cross examination by Buckner, and reiterated his claim that Tunney came to him on April 3, 1926, promising him 10 per cent of the Dempsey-Tunney gate and 25 percent of his earnings as a champion if Mara would assist him.

'Art Shires Signs Movie Contract

Self-styled expert of baseball and fisticuffs, Whataman Arthur, will take the part of a villianous heavyweight boxer in a serial. The Washington outfielder and former ex-fighter came to California a few days ago with a baseball barnstorming team.

PURPLE LOSES RENTNER

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Ernest (Pug) Rentner of Joliet, Ill., Northwestern's star fullback, will be out of action until the Northwestern-Wisconsin game, a week from Saturday, because of an injury suffered during the Wildcat triumph over Minnesota Saturday. Rentner suffered a bruised vertebrae.

NOTICE, GRID TEAMS

The managers of the Millvale Amici and the Allison Park football teams are requested to call John Couch, manager of the Oakmont and Verona team, at Oakmont 243, between 7 and 8 p. m.

MY FIFTY YEARS IN BASEBALL

By CONNIE MACK,
Manager, World Champion Philadelphia Athletics

INSTALLMENT NO. 49.

In shaping the Athletics for the 1928 campaign, I made a number of changes during the previous winter. We added two promising young players to our roster in George Haas, centerfielder of the Atlanta team, and Oswald Oswell, pitcher and all-round man of the Milwaukee club.

The contract Ty Cobb signed with us in 1927 was strictly a one-year affair, for he told me that it would be his last year on the playing field.

At the end of the season I had to follow the laws of organized baseball and get waivers on him. When these were obtained I released him and T. R. for the second time in his career was a free agent.

Connie Mack

I felt certain, however, that he never would play ball again, for I remembered his words when he signed with me for 1927 that it would be his last season in baseball. You must know that the Dixie Daredevil had amassed a sizeable fortune, which he had increased by judicious investments. His income from his securities was large enough to keep him and his family in luxury without his ever having to swing a bat again.

SIGNS COBB AGAIN

Yet when I began to reflect over what Cobb had done for us in 1927 I believed that he had another year of topnotch baseball left in him. He had played 134 games for me in 1927 and batted .357 and that kind of hitting will keep a place for any player.

Cobb no longer belonged to the Athletics and was free to sign where he pleased provided he wanted to play again and in the waning days of 1927 I decided to go after him again.

Nobody in Philadelphia had any idea that I wanted Cobb back with me in 1928, and negotiations were conducted secretly. The news, however, leaked out during the holidays under peculiar circumstances.

George A. Putnam, one of the owners of the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast League, and Cobb are intimate friends and Ty invariably looks to him for advice in personal matters. I knew this and one day in December I wrote to my son, Roy Mack, secretary of the Portland (Ore.) club, of the Pacific Coast loop, asking him to write to Mr. Putnam and see if he would use his influence to induce Ty to play with us another season.

My son at once carried out this request.

STORY LEAKS OUT

It happened that around this time the University of Pennsylvania football team was in California getting ready to play the University of California eleven in a post-season match at Berkeley.

One of the Philadelphia newspapers sent its baseball writer along with the Penn team to report the game. When this writer reached San Francisco he ate his meals at the comfortable and well-appointed Press Club, located at Powell and Suter streets.

On Christmas eve he had dinner with Ed R. Hughes, famous sports writer of San Francisco. A phone message called Mr. Hughes away for a few minutes, and when he returned he said to the Philadelphia writer:

"Put on your things. We are going to pay a visit to the home of George Putnam, one of the owners of the San Francisco club."

Mr. Putnam has a richly-appointed home and an interesting family. A big Christmas tree, all ablaze with tiny electric lights, carried out the spirit of the holidays in a city where there is no snow.

PUTNAM SPILLS BEANS

When the clock showed it was nearly midnight and everybody had retired except Mr. Putnam, Mr. Hughes and the Philadelphia writer started to look for their coats, but Mr. Putnam would not have it.

'Stay here a couple of hours longer,' he pleaded, "and I will send you back in my car. It's too early to go to bed, anyway."

When a baseball owner and two writers get together, with plenty of time on their hands, the subject is naturally going to be baseball, and Mr. Putnam was anxious to know some of the inside things that happened in the major leagues during the previous season.

The subject drifted finally to Cobb, and the Philadelphia writer declared that he wouldn't be with the Athletics again.

"Hold on," shouted Mr. Putnam. "I think you will find him in Connie Mack's outfield again next season."

"Not a chance," returned the Philadelphia, "for he has been unconditionally released. Cobb won't be with the Athletics again next year, and you can bet all the tea in China on it."

"Jus, you wait," answered Mr. Putnam. "I'm going upstairs and will bring you down a letter to prove that I am right."

CONFIRMS SCRIBE'S STORY

Mr. Putnam returned with the letter from my son and the writer knew at once that the Athletics wanted Ty back.

So the next day the writer resumed the role of baseball reporter and wired his Philadelphia paper a long story that the Athletics again were seeking Cobb's services.

That day a representative of the Philadelphia Inquirer called on me at my home in Philadelphia and asked me if the story from the

Sport Vignettes

Pittsburgh football fans last Saturday went through a more or less novel experience as the day wore into night and produced not a single collegiate football victory for Pa Pitt, what with Carnegie Tech taking one on the chin from New York University by the score of 20 to 7 while Pitt was battling to that scoreless tie against Nebraska out in Lincoln and the Duquesne University Dukes had a week off from gridiron warfare . . . Long accustomed to riding the crest of the football wave, such a week-end is very unusual, to say the least, for this man's town . . . It happens about once in a blue moon, and the moon is very, very blue, indeed, when it does occur.

Tech's setback was most unexpected, in view of the great promise flashed by the Tartans in their early games . . . The N. Y. U. Violets are no great shucks as great teams go, and the Plaid rightly was installed a favorite to win without unduly extending itself . . . However, it wasn't to be, and Coach Chick Meehan's charges did a neat job of scrambling the dope and setting the stage for the goal post ripping act of the visiting fans that followed . . . Tech simply wasn't there; it hasn't been since the day it steam-rollered Georgia Tech at the Stadium, several weeks ago, since which time it has taken a beating from Notre Dame, won a sluggish, easy game from Western Reserve and then gone through the motions against N. Y. U. . . . A lot of hard work is ahead of the Skibos if they are to reach any semblance of their true form against Pitt in the annual battle for local supremacy at the Stadium next Saturday.

As last Saturday's game was played, it would have taken just a little change in the strategy of the Tartans to have kept the battle within the limits of a real contest instead of resulting in a defeat by a margin of three touchdowns to one. There was no discounting the fine work of Halfback Bob McNamara and his teammates in McNamara's beautiful 41-yard run for the final touchdown, in the final quarter, but it did seem that there was something faulty about the strategy that paved the way for the two tallies that sent the Violets off to a 13-0 lead, which Tech never was able to overcome.

Take that first score, for instance . . . Tech had received the opening kickoff, and, after making a first down, lost the ball on its own 42-yard line on a fumble, but took it away on downs on its own 26. Then, near his own goal posts, Quarterback McCurdy called for a forward pass on first down and it was intercepted by Joe LaMark, who ran the ball back for a touchdown . . . Came then, in the second period, another situation wherein Tech found itself near its 30-yard line with a few inches to go for first down on final down . . . McCurdy had his choice of two plays, one to kick the ball away and the other to take advantage of the line-crashing ability of Karcis, his fullback, to make those few precious inches and retain possession of the ball and continue the drive toward N. Y. U. territory . . . He elected to play safe and punt . . . N. Y. U. blocked the kick and took possession on the Tartans' 20-yard line and drove to the second touchdown.

Now, it may be second guessing, but it seems to this scribe that a forward pass in the danger zone on first down in that first period by anyone other than a sure-fire flinger like a Howard Harpster or a Benny Friedman was the height of folly, and that the time to gamble on making a few inches in the line was in that second period pinch . . . In any event, matters could not have turned out any more disastrously than they did and the chances are that the entire complexion of the game would have been changed if the selection of plays had been other than it was.

Comparisons always are odious, but it seems to this commentator that young Stuart Dueger, who came into the game later to direct the Carnegie destinies at quarterback, did a much better job than McCurdy in passing his team to its only touchdown and holding N. Y. U. on even terms during the time he was in the battle, which was for more than one full half . . . Perhaps it was because he was not under the strain that McCurdy felt at the outset; yet Dueger looked like a real "find" . . . It is not our intention to disparage the play or question the ability or the judgment of McCurdy, but to report what happened . . . We have seen McCurdy play too many fine games, after being tossed into the difficult role of filling the shoes of such a master strategist as Harpster, to judge his play on the strength of any single game, and have been around long enough to appreciate the fact that all of us have our off-days, and no one will be pulling more for a spectacular comeback by the likeable McCurdy against Pitt next Saturday than this writer, who today unfortunately appears as his most severe critic.

With all of these scoreless and other ties cropping out like a scourge in the football world these days, what this country seems to need more than a good five-cent cigar would appear to be a few good, old-fashioned drop-kickers, especially trained for the part . . . When coaches went touchdown crazy with the opening up of the game some years ago they booted one of the most spectacular features out of football . . . Now, when they get into a jam where a kick in time would save one in the pants, they have to depend on a hit-or-miss effort, and it is no wonder they do not have any more success than was evident on many sides last Saturday—HARRY KECK.

QUARTERBACK JOB TOUGH, WARNER SAYS

POP BELIEVES SIGNAL MAN MAIN COG

By GLENN S. WARNER,
Member All America Board of Football.

There is part of play in football which gets more into the public discussions than the handling of the team by the quarterback. Every time the offensive team gets into a position where a gain means a continuation of a long march, everyone is alert to see what the quarter calls, and if his choice fails every critic could have readily given him the play he should have called in the situation.

Glenn Warner

When a team uses a huddle in which to give plays it becomes necessary, too, for the signal caller to call his plays by type. He must be perfectly familiar with all the offensive weapons he has and know under what conditions they gain best and what will work as a complementary play in case some play is continually stopped. From constant association with his team he also knows what men are particularly suited to put across plays in conditions as he finds them.

POUND THE LINE

A simple system for a quarterback to follow is to pound a line which is playing wide unsupported by close up backs, run wider when he gets that same line tightened up and when the secondary comes up for support, to drive it back with a passing attack or by quick kicking far into the enemies' territory. These are a few instructions and seem simple but they aren't.

There is much difference in opinion on the part of coaches when a team should begin its rushing and passing attack. Some believe that it is futile to immediately begin rushing the ball if you are in your own territory as it is almost a hopeless task to continue your march for a score and that the offense fatigues the players more than defensive work. I have not found this to be the case but believe that by continued use of the offense the signal caller becomes more quickly familiar with the plays in his attack which will go and as the game rolls on he will be better qualified to make the correct choice of plays.

Nothing so discourages a team as to find that their plays will not gain and nothing is so demoralizing to a team as to be continually pushed back and see the linesman's stakes continually moved closer to their goal. The players get a sort of panicky feeling when they look over their shoulder and see their goal line not far behind them and that feeling of helplessness when they realize that they are hardly able to prevent a gain is what causes the so-called route which we read about when one team runs up a large score upon their opponents.

RECALLS OLD GAME

Illustrating my claim that offensive football is less wearing upon a team than defensive play, or at least is no harder—and also showing that it is not bad generalship to rush the ball in the offensive teams own territory, I always think of the Dartmouth-Carlisle game of 1913 (I believe that was the year). Dartmouth had been unbeaten that year and, expecting to defeat the Indians in their final game, their supporters were claiming the Eastern championship.

The Indians made it a practice to seldom kick unless their running attack became stalled. All through the first half they started their running attack whenever they secured the ball. Their attack was well stopped by Dartmouth in the first half and that period ended with Dartmouth leading 10 to 7. But during that half we learned which of our plays were good against the Dartmouth defense and what plays were ineffective. In the second half, Dartmouth kicked off and the Indians marched the ball by steady gains right from their own 25-yard line to a touchdown. Dartmouth kicked off again and again the Indians steadily carried them back for another touchdown. Carlisle did this four times in that second half and the longer the game progressed the weaker became the Dartmouth resistance because they were worn down and demoralized by the continual pound, pound of that relentless Indian attack and Carlisle won the game 34 to 10.

Jimmy McArthurs, of McKeesport, in the main bout at Johnstown, with Hans Roberts, of Brookline, meeting Jackie Murray, of the Hill, and Jimmy Riley, of McKeesport, opposing Young Angelo, of Braddock, in preliminaries, while Tug Phillips, formerly of Fayette County, boxes Morrie Sherman, of Detroit, at Detroit.

The night's feature billing rightly is in Madison Square Garden, New York, with Kid Chocolate and Fidel LaBarba, former flyweight champion, clashing in the 10-round windup. It is a return mix, Chocolate having won a duel in the same ring a year ago.

Promoter Apples Meyers, of the Moose Temple, today completed his card for Thursday night's show in the Moose Temple by signing Johnny Greb, of West Virginia, to box Marcus Noll, formerly of Detroit, now of Pittsburgh, in the second bout, and pairing Steve Senich, of McKeesport, and Tom Anderson, of the Hill, to take the place of a Jackie Wilson-George Annarino opening bout. He has Tom Malce, of Soho, and Larry Madge, of Cleveland, in the 10-round windup, and Billy Brent, of the Hill, and Jimmy Taylor, of Cleveland, in the semi-final.

Battling Gizzy is going to be a busy ringster during the next several weeks. He boxes Jimmy McArthurs in the semi-final to the Bucky Lawless-Paul Firenze bout at Motor Square Garden next Monday night. Jackie Cohen, of New York, at Canton, O., the following Monday, and Young Chiodo at Johnstown one week later. Meanwhile he is being groomed for a windup at the Garden early in December.

PIRATE TRADES LIKELY NEXT MONTH

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Although one cannot tell when a trade affecting the Pirates might break, present indications are that November will be a quiet month along the local baseball front.

Football reaches its peak in November and the diamond magnates wisely try to keep their big stuff for other periods of the season. When a deal pops, however, it generally receives the attention of the press in a big way. It is a difficult matter to hold back the news until the grid season closes.

MAY ATTEND CONFAB

One or two of the Pirate officials probably will attend the minor league convention, scheduled for early December in Montreal. President Barney Dreyfuss, Vice President Sam Dreyfuss and Manager Jewel Ens in all likelihood will be a part of the annual meeting of National League in New York. It is altogether likely that during the course of these pow wows, something will develop of interest to the Pittsburgh club.

Among other things to come up soon in the Pirate family is the selection of a coach to replace Max (Scoops) Carey, who was released last week. It is probable that a well-known baseball man will come to the squad as Ens' lieutenant.

Chillysauce

Casey Stengel, brilliant outfielder of a decade back, is now a successful manager in the American Association. Always colorful, Casey leads a flavor to the A. A. as he runs the Toledo club.

Casey is a hard loser in the sense that he will not tolerate lack of gumption. He had considerable trouble with certain members of his club in the past two seasons. Instead of concentrating on baseball, many of his diamond performers were paying a lot of attention to the stock market.

The Mudhens took a terrific pasting of a certain afternoon and Casey was almost ready to explode when his club reached the clubhouse. Imagine the surprise of his players when they, without detecting the subtle sarcasm, heard this announcement from the boss:

There was a moment of silence and then one of the victims remarked:

Barnard Completes First Term for A. L.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—The American League looked back on three years of peace and prosperity within its ranks today as President Ernest S. Barnard completed his first term of office.

Barnard, who succeeded the fiery Ban Johnson in 1927, when the league was rocked by a veritable civil war over questions of policy, ended his three-year office yesterday, but will carry over until December 9, when he undoubtedly will be re-elected for a similar term by the club owners.

Not only has the American League captured three consecutive world championships during President Barnard's regime, but relationships between the club owners have been mended, the league has been placed on a definite business like basis and several baseball innovations have been successfully introduced.

NEW MARK FOR YALE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 3.—Yale is expecting to set a new attendance record this season with nine games on the schedule. Unofficial figures for the six games played set the attendance at about 290,000 while 145,000 more are expected for the remaining three games.

SCHOOLEY AIMS TO PROTECT ICE RECORD

By CARL W. SHATTO.

When Pittsburgh's Yellow Jackets meet the London (Ontario) club in the opening game of the International League season at Duquesne Garden on Thursday, November 13, they will be out to protect Roy D. Schooley's proud hockey record, as well as win the circuit banner.

Schooley, president of the Pitt Hockey Club, which arranged to provide Pittsburgh with the popular winter pastime when the local National League franchise was transferred to Philadelphia, has directed ice teams here for many years, and no Schooley team ever finished worse than second. And the Schooley teams finishing second have been few and far between—for they generally won the title.

The puckmen who are to make up the Schooley entry of this season will report here from Toronto tonight or early tomorrow. The Jackets have been working out in the Ontario metropolis for the last several days, and they will continue their drills at Duquesne Garden as soon as they are assembled here.

EIGHT STARS SIGNED

Eight sterling performers already have signed Pittsburgh contracts, and eight more will be signed before the opening battle. The boys who have placed their signatures on the dotted line are Bud Fisher, goalie; Mansell Moore and Clifford McBride, defense men; William Fields and Wilfred McLeod, centers, and Cameron Proudlock, M. L. Gregg and Edward Ouelette, wingmen. McLeod played for Niagara Falls last season, and the others with Toronto.

With only these eight men available, Schooley could place a team on the ice averaging 180 pounds in the backfield and 178 pounds on the front line. The average age of the Pittsburgh puckmen is 22 years, and they are reputed to be just as fast as they are young and hefty.

Ice Slivers

Fields, who is to perform at center for the Jackets, finished third in the individual scoring race in the International circuit last season. Fisher is regarded as the best goalie in the loop. A strong attack and a strong defense makes a tough combination.

The Cleveland sextet, which captured the International League title last season, will start the 1930-31 campaign under a severe handicap. The Ohioans' goalie has been drafted into the National League.

Charles Reid, who managed Niagara Falls last season, picks the London club, which appears here in the opener, as the team that the Jackets will have to beat out to win the flag. London finished third in 1929-30 race, and is greatly strengthened this year.

Canadian Golf Tourneys Awarded

TORONTO, Nov. 3. — (AP.) — The 1931 Canadian open golf championship will be played over the course of the Mississiauga Golf Club, Toronto, during the middle of the latter part of July, it was announced today.

players get instructions to bunt, and then many of them prefer to take their chances in cutting at the ball. In the modern game the odds are in their favor when they do try their swing, so why reward them when their efforts fail and they go out on fly balls?"

Leonard Macaluso

WHEN THE FOOTBALL season opened, Lloyd Jordan, Pitt captain in 1923, who is helping Andy Kerr with the coaching at Colgate, predicted that those who looked upon Capt. Leslie Hart as Colgate's only backfield star and scoring threat were going to be surprised. "Watch Leonard Macaluso," he said. Developments have more than borne out Jordan's tip. Macaluso has been the scoring sensation of the year, and leads all the college players of the East in points rolled up individually. To date Kerr's star fullback has made 10 touchdowns and 18 goals after touchdown for a total of 78 points in six games. His closest rivals are Murphy, of Fordham; Viviano, of Cornell; Goff, of Rhode Island; Hewitt, of Columbia, and Grossman, of Rutgers, all tied at 66 points. When Kerr started his second team against Mississippi College last Saturday it was held scoreless in the first quarter, but as soon as Macaluso was sent into the game in the second period he broke the ice with the first touchdown of the day and started a scoring bee in which Colgate piled up 34 points.

FOOTBALL FUNDAMENTALS

By Howard Harpster

All-America Quarterback at Carnegie Tech, 1928. Now Head Coach at Geneva College.

Do You Know - - -

THAT On a kickoff it is very important for each player on the kicking side to keep in his own lane and to run straight down the field until he knows definitely just which way the runner is going to run back the kick?

This is shown on the right side of the above diagram by the heavy lines. Note how the entire field is protected by this method. On the left side of the diagram, the dotted lines show the players running directly toward the man who has received the ball.

In this case it would be an easy matter for the runner, with the help of a few interferers, to get on the outside of the kicking team, as shown by the arrow, and, once outside the end, he would have a clear field to the goal.

GRID FAVORITES ARE BEATEN

they marched into Husker territory and there was no doubt in the minds of either Coach Sutherland or his assistant, Andy Gustafson, that either Reider or Clark would be able to punch the ball over.

By the time the doubt arose, the Huskers had the situation well in hand, and, to tell the truth, the valiant Nebraska line was making the Panthers like it, in no uncertain fashion.

The whole layout on the Pitt game was this. Pitt met an aroused Husker team that fought from gun to gun, and the attack of the Sutherland eleven never functioned in consistent fashion, seldom exhibited the drive and punch Pitt has been noted for in the past, and, never before this year has the loss of Tom Parkinson been felt so keenly.

Carnegie's defeat at the hands of New York University came as a distinct surprise to almost every one but the Violets and their dapper coach, Chick Meehan.

N. Y. U. POWERFUL

Carnegie did not take N. Y. U. lightly. No, it wasn't that, for the Skibos had been warned by their scouts that Meehan had one of the most powerful elevens in the East, boasting little deception, it is true, but with a great line and a set of capable backs.

New York won the game on its merits, and deserves corresponding praise, while Pitt and Tech now prepare for their consolation match in the Stadium this week, with nothing on their minds but the weather.

Excluding Nebraska's tie with Pitt and Marquette's tie with Boston College, the Mid-West did not fare any too well in intersectional clashes Saturday. Kansas, touted before the season opened as being one of the most promising elevens in the country, was soundly trounced by Penn. North Dakota was just another ball club to the Army, and Princeton had a time of it holding Chicago even.

Northwestern ran over Minnesota with comparative ease and Notre Dame kept up the good work by adorning its belt with the scalp of Indiana; a belt already holding the tufts of Southern Methodist, Navy, Carnegie Tech and Pitt.

It was the Four Roses again, modern successors to the Four Horsemen, who bloomed for Rockne and a victory, the great combination of Carideo, Schwartz, Brill, Savoldi and Mullins.

Westminster took Juniata; Waynesburg put the boots to poor Bethany; Oklahoma City College made it two in a row over Davis-Elkins; Edinboro won from Clarion; California Teachers popped the West Virginia State Teachers and Slippery Rock fired too many guns for Indiana.

Bucknell lived up to expectations in messing up Penn State, for the third year in a row, which makes it look as though the Lions material, which never was any too potent, is poorer than Bob Higgins thought.

Geneva won another one Friday night, taking Franklin and Marshall, and Wash-Jeff and Thiel renewed grid relations with the Presidents emerging on the long end.

West Virginia was added to the list of those teams battered to defeat by Fordham's Rams. West Virginia Wesleyan scored twice on the Navy, and made a better showing than did Princeton the week previous.

CECIL TIES FINTEX, 2-2

One of the real battles of the current soccer season was played at Grove Station yesterday when the Shannon Fintex eleven battled with Cecil for two hours, finishing deadlocked at 2 goals each, in the first round of the national amateur cup.

A crowd of 3,000 watched the battle, in which little difference marked the playing of either club. For while the offensive part of both clubs clicked, the defenses excelled themselves when called upon.

The first goal came to Fintex in the first period. Harry Sickles sent a long, dropping shot into the goalmouth and it slipped through the fingers of Columbus.

EXTRA-TIME PLAYED

Early in the second half, young Hart took advantage of a lapse on the part of the Shannon defense and tied up matters. Referee Andy Verish ordered extra time under the rules and away went the teams for 30 more minutes.

Shannon again went into the lead, Innocenti putting the ball into the net. Just before the game was finished, Cherokee beat Benick with a good drive, and forced the teams into a playoff game at Cecil, probably next Sunday. The lineup:

Shan. Fintex—2.		Cecil—2.
Benick	G.	Columbus
Van Jura	R. B.	Aston
Lenin	L. B.	Preaux
Zeller	R. H.	Cecck
Sickles	C. H.	Behling

Paton	O. R.	Hart
Bruce	I. R.	Chicci
McMonigle	C.	Delair
Innocenti	I. L.	Cherokee
Phillips	O. L.	Cherokee

Goals—Cherokee, Hart, Innocenti, Sickles. Referee—Verish.

CURRY, GALLATIN BOW

Two other national amateur cup games were tilted yesterday, the Pierpoints beating Curry, 2-1, and Morgan walloping Gallatin, 3-1.

A number of league combats also were contested. Fitz Henry set down Vestaburg, 2-1; Bower Hill beat Coverdale by the same score, and Gratztown topped Elizabeth, 3-1.

Bridgmont blanked Glendale, 3-0; Gladden beat Horning, 1-0; Clarksville walloped Manown, 5-0; Mollenauers tied the Shannon Juniors, 3-all, and Glendale Climers deadlocked the German Eagles, 3-3.

MAKES 80-YARD RUN

For the first time this season the fans watched a real backfield clicking. Rooney, Levy and Glenn giving a brilliant exhibition at Bridgeville. The outstanding feature was Levy's 80-yard run for the second touchdown. It was the best run of the season in the conference.

Burns played a great game, but was opposed to a club that was on. In the first period Jimmy Rooney booted a field goal from placement, and keeping up this offensive, the Majestic machine scored the first touchdown in the same quarter, Jimmy Rooney taking the ball over from the five-yard line. He missed the extra point, however.

The only other score came in the third period, when Burns punted and Levy took the ball on his own 20-yard line; with a great exhibition of broken field running, Levy crossed the Black and White goal line and Rooney kicked the extra point.

BURNS STILL LEADS

Burns is still leading the race by one point, with the Olympics and the Majestics tied for second place.

The West Virginia menace from Weirton struck a snag when Paul Muzzio's machine defeated the Merchants, 30 to 0. Manager Reece brought up a pretty good ball club, but West View was in a fighting mood, and wanted to get back into winning ways. The lineups:

OTHER BATTLES

Good crowds attended most of the other interesting games throughout the sector. Among the more important games, the Valley Club bumped the Bloomfield Civics, 6-0; J. J. Veronas and Aliquippa played a scoreless tie; Rox Rangers outclassed the Armstrong Bulldogs, 28-0; Tarentum Firemen walloped the Library Tigers, 20-0; Allison Park blanked Brentwood, 25-0, and the Lawrenceville Mohawks tripped Wabash, 6-0.

The Chalfant Tigers were nosed out by the Etna Sycamores, 3-0; Milvale Amicus and Springdale Amicus and Oakland Scholastics and Whih Club played scoreless tie games; Coal Valley was beaten by Highland Grove, 6-0; and the Sonny Boys toppled Kenmawr, 20-0.

The Carrick Scholastics won from the Twenty-sixth Ward Traders, 6-0; Linhart Tigers clipped Turtle Creek Valley Tigers, 26-0; Oakmont Panthers won from the DeWitt Tigers, 7-0; and McCleery bowed before the Glendale Tigers, 25-0.

The Geneva Tigers knocked off Manchester Hill, 12-0; Hardy lost to McCoy, 6-0; Fourth Ward topped Sharp A. C., 6-0; Elpern nosed out the Andree Club, 6-0; the William Aces defeated Snee Dairy, 12-7, and Broadway beat out Swissvale Quakers, 7-6.

Hennessey won from the Barney Club, 16-13; Dutchtown met defeat at the hands of the Export Independents, 20-13; Newark Shoe beat Drury Drugs, 12-6; Twenty-seventh Ward was on the short end of a 6-0 score with Benton; the Farrels trod down Mendover, 32-0; C. C. Cadets walloped Brookline Scholastics, 44-0, and the Papale Club whitewashed the North Side Tornadoes, 12-0.

Forbes

November Does Not Open With Notable Gains.

By B. C. FORBES

THE OPENING of November finds conditions little changed from one month or two months or three months ago. Hoped for improvement has not materialized all along the line; betterment in some directions is offset by adverse developments in other directions.

B. C. Forbes

However, it cannot be said on the whole our situation is growing worse. It is consoling to reflect that time, the great healer, is on the constructive side and that each passing week brings the country nearer that recovery which has never yet failed to follow depression.

THANKS to the earnest plans which are being shaped to cope with unemployment hardships, the alarm formerly felt is subsiding. Confidence is growing that suffering will be kept within bounds. Happily, Federal, state and municipal bodies can raise funds for public works on extraordinarily easy terms. During earlier disturbances money usually was extremely scarce and dear, so that public relief measures could not be instituted as easily and as advantageously as now.

Moreover, the influential leadership lately taken has had a distinctly mollifying effect upon the sentiment of unemployed and other victims, who formerly felt that the plight was being lightly regarded in high places.

SINCE it is admitted that what most urgently needs to be changed is the state of mind now paralyzing America, it is comforting to know that from now on comparisons with 12 months ago will make less doleful reading. Third quarter reports now appearing look bad in most instances because the pace had not slackened seriously during the third quarter of last year.

It is rather childish to compare everything with the boom records achieved last year. Only rarely is it noted that not a few 1930 figures compare creditably with 1928 or 1927 or five-year averages. However, the psychological effect of comparisons henceforth may be very considerable.

PRICE fluctuations last week were unusually irregular. Most farm products lost earlier gains. Wheat closed lower, corn went to new low levels for the season, so did rye; oats weakened. Cotton, after enjoying a very substantial rise, suffered in sympathy with other commodities, but it is 2 cent a pound above last month's extreme low.

Steel is dragging around its minimum price for the year. Copper is still quoted at 9½ cents, almost the poorest price ever recorded, although it should be added that contracting for future delivery has briskly expanded. Other materials show little or no change. Rubber has done somewhat better, but hides are down farther than ever, overproduction has fostered fresh price cutting in oil, lumber is sluggish.

UPS AND DOWNS will be logical in the early stages of business recovery. The National City Bank in its always authoritative monthly bulletin, after observing "we still see no reason for failing to face the future with confidence," says:

"Considering the months of reaction now behind us, as well as the depths to which the depression in this country is scraping bottom. Whether the precise mathematical low point has been reached may be open to question, but we do not believe business is likely to go much lower, and we think the next important movement will be upwards."

A VERY TRYING process of attrition is going on in the stock market. Although it is widely known that accumulation has been quietly proceeding in the most powerful circles, each sinking spell forces fresh liquidation of margined holdings, with the result that weakness begets further weakness. Average quotations last week again touched new depths, and the atmosphere in Wall street became still more gloomy, if that were possible.

This very fact encourages old timers to conclude that a turn is near at hand. Whenever "everybody" becomes bearish, that proverbially is the ideal time to buy. How drastic liquidation has been can be gathered from the fact that borrowings are $4,000,000,000 lighter than a year ago. Money consequently is going a-begging in Wall street at rates rarely named even in periods of plethoric money before the war.

After the election is out of the way perhaps more rational reasoning will return. Certainly Wall street has "discounted" the very worst election-wise.

Bosch Companies Plan to Combine

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 3.—Announcement was made today by the American Bosch Magneto Corporation of steps toward the merging of that company with the Robert Bosch Magneto Company. The plan, subject to stockholders' approval, contemplates an increase of American Bosch common stock which will be issued in exchange for Robert Bosch assets, and it is proposed to change the name of the American Bosch Magneto Corporation to United American Bosch Corporation.

NATION LEARNS LESSONS FROM DULL TIMES

Depression Proves Need Of Permanent Agencies For Economic Temperance

By MERLE S. RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—With the world still in its economic childhood, we learn by getting hard bumps during depressions. But we do learn. The psychological mood of the public reflects a desire to work, and to use the fruits of labor thriftily. The delusions of 1929 have been ruthlessly exposed. The fallacy of the idea, for example, that the world could thrive mainly by swapping certificates of stock, instead of producing and distributing desirable merchandise, has been exploded. The mad gold rush of young men into Wall Street brokerage offices has been stopped. Likewise the Niagara flow of speculative dollars into the heartbreak house—the New York Stock Exchange—has been enormously slowed up.

M. S. Rukeyser

PERMANENT BALANCE NEED

Psychologically, with the setting radically changed the basis for recovery exists. If in the more mature future, we are to mitigate these stormy trials, we must have agencies for promoting balance and economic temperance, through all stages of the business cycle, not merely fire bucket brigades called out by the President while the emergency exists. The longer term program which President Hoover has espoused for modifying the business cycle, calls for a permanent council of economic co-ordination which will check excesses during booms as well as apply the pulmotor during interludes of business collapse.

Meantime, the emphasis is less on business fundamentals, than on alleviating the suffering incidental to the depression. Without social insurance, the country finds that the cost of the economic setback falls on the shoulders of those members of the community least able to bear it—the unemployed. Accordingly, there is cumulative response to President Hoover's efforts to supplement and enhance local activities looking forward to relief of the unemployed, for as a class they have gone far toward exhausting their reserves, consisting of personal savings.

AFFLUENT SHOULD HELP

Already fundamental factors, such as the turnup in residential building, foreshadow business improvement in 1931, but there is a statistical time lag between the early harbingers of recovery and actual improvement in employment conditions, accordingly, there should be general support for unemployment relief.

Affluent citizens can help the situation by doing now maintenance and repair work on their homes and plants, which otherwise might be postponed. It is not only a good time from the standpoint of being helpful in an unselfish way, but also from the viewpoint of self interest, necessary work can be done more cheaply at this time.

DON'T SOLVE PROBLEM

These temporary quasi-Red Cross measures of caring for the wounded in the economic battle of course do not solve the problem of unemployment. As far as cyclical unemployment is concerned, that will be relieved by a return of prosperity. However, the problem of technical unemployment, resulting from increased industrial efficiency and from the substitution of machines for men, will persist as the most challenging industrial problem.

The answer is perhaps in a shorter working day and working week, involving a redistribution of leisure, and also in the stimulus of new industries which will absorb the surplus manpower.

Marketwise, speculative impulses are not strong. After numerous false and premature rallies earlier in the year, there is a disposition to await tangible indications of business improvement. In their challenging mood, speculators were impressed with Secretary Mellon's expression of the difficulty of forecasting precisely when recovery will come.

RAZOR PROFITS BOOM

Among the elite list of corporations which are ignoring the depression and setting new high standards in profits is the Auto Strop Safety Razor Company, which, for the first nine months of this year reported an increase of virtually 100 per cent in net profits over the corresponding period of 1929.

An individual, in position to discuss the affairs of the company, told me: "The showing is not due to any bookkeeping adjustments. Advertising is written off as promptly as it is expended; depreciation is taken to the limit and methods of accounting are most conservative.

"The company is making rapid and substantial progress which is accounted for by excellent quality merchandise, splendid merchandising methods of fair prices and treatment to the trade and public."

OPPORTUNITY EXISTS

Rightly or wrongly, many persons who suffered market losses are peeved at professional Wall Street. They are especially irritated at brokers who recommended securities at the peak. There is in this situation an opportunity for intelligent investment brokers to build up good will of lasting value. The Street has pulled in its horns, and all but temporarily stopped advertising.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The volume of trading in the bond market fell off sharply in the pre-election session today, and price movement was somewhat ragged. Apparently many traders were absent on an extended week-end over Tuesday, a holiday for the financial district, and investment issues fluctuated uncertainly as frequently is the case in a dull session, with price changes holding in narrow limits.

STOCKS DRIFT OFF AFTER RALLY

Traders Take Tomorrow's Elections as Excuse to Mark Time; Leaders Dip

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Share prices drifted uncertainly in today's stock market, as traders appeared content to accept tomorrow's elections as an excuse for marking time.

The market is accustomed to turn dull pending the dissipation of the shadow of uncertainty cast by an approaching election, but this has been but one of many factors influencing speculative quiet during the past fortnight.

A few shares rallied rather briskly during the morning, apparently reflected closing out of short contracts before the market holiday tomorrow. By early afternoon, however, the list again eased off, most of the pivotal shares, such as U. S. Steel, General Electric, Standard of New Jersey and Westinghouse Electric showing losses of a point or less. Early advances of 2 to 3 points in such shares as Electric Power and Light, Du Pont, Allied Chemical and Union Pacific, and a point or more in some of the tobacco shares, public utilities and specialties, were whittled down.

REPORTS COLORLESS

The weekend business and trade reports were in the main colorless. Wall Street is becoming reconciled to the prospect of quiet and irregular markets for some little time. The weekly advices of the statistical services, as well as of most commission houses were in agreement upon this point. While there is a feeling that the present is a better time to buy than to sell prime equities, the advisory services still feel that accumulation should proceed conservatively, and only on reactions.

A few earnings statements for the September quarter were relatively satisfactory. Pullman reported net of $1.75 a share, which was not far from the $1.87 earned in the like quarter a year ago. Coca Cola reported net before taxes somewhat in excess of the third quarter a year ago, but the stock again reacted. Stocks selling at high earnings ratios have been particularly vulnerable to selling of late.

SALES SHOW LOSS

Montgomery Ward reported October sales about 6½ per cent below the like period of last year, against an aggregate decline of little more than 2 per cent for the entire first 10 months. This widening decline in mail order sales is interpreted as a reflection of reduced agricultural purchasing power.

Monetary condtions held stationary. Call loans still held officially at 2 per cent, although funds were offered outside at 1. It is reported that some banks are placing funds directly with brokers, rather than through the loan desk, to avoid a flood of money which might reduce the 2 per cent rate, and cause withdrawal of funds by lenders likely to be dissatisfied with a lower figure.

Price of Capital At 1928 Low Level

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The present price of capital, representing a composite of long-term interest rates, has declined to the lowest level since the second quarter of 1928 and now stands not far above the pre-war average, Moody's says. The weighted average of yields on bonds and preferred stocks issued during the third quarter of 1930 is computed as 5.29 per cent and compares with 5.54 per cent for the first quarter of the year, 5.89 per cent for the third quarter of 1929, and an average of 4.90 per cent from 1910 to 1912.

Owens-Illinois Co. Buys Bottle Firm

AKRON, Nov 3.—Firestone Tire and Rubber Company has authorized construction of a tire factory in Argentina with capacity of 1,000 tires and tubes daily.

Reichsbank Report.

BERLIN, Nov. 3.—The Reichsbank statement as of October 31 shows the following changes in reichsmarks: Gold and bullion decreased 138,000; reserve in foreign currencies increased 35,948,000; bills of exchange and checks increased 385,770,000; silver and other coins decreased 32,000; notes on other banks decreased 650,000; advances increased 256,157,000; other assets increased 34,958,000; notes in circulation increased 693,926,000; other maturing obligations decreased 36,000; other liabilities increased 5,781,000. Total gold holdings, 2,180,215,000. Rate of discount, 5 per cent.

Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Raw sugar was quiet early today and prices were unchanged at 3.42 for spots duty paid, with no sales reported.

There was a little better withdrawal demand reported for refined sugar, but no new business, and prices were unchanged at 4.75 for fine granulated, with second hands available at concessions.

Banks, Exchanges To Close for Election Day

Banks, stock exchanges and principal commodity markets throughout the country will be closed tomorrow for election day, a legal holiday in most states. Business will be resumed in all markets at the usual hours on Wednesday.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Nov. 3. — Grain values tended downward early today influenced by correct belief that all the monthly crop estimates would forecast corn production larger than 2,000,000,000 bushels. The average of the unofficial estimates issued today was 2,040,000,000 bushels compared with an unofficial average of 2,053,000,000 bushels a month ago. Starting unchanged to ¾c off, corn prices later showed an all around sag. Wheat opened ¼@⅝c down, and subsequently declined further.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Cotton opened steady today at an advance of 9 to 16 points in response to relatively steady cables and favorable reports from the domestic markets. The advance met some Southern selling and considerable realizing, but it appeared to be quite readily absorbed by trade buying and covering.

After selling at 11.20 early, new December advanced to 11.27, while May sold up to 11.90 and the market was within 2 or 3 points of these figures at the end of the first half hour with active months showing net advances of 13 to 16 points.

A private crop reports was published placing the indicated crop at 14,766,000 bales and estimating the ginnings prior to November 1 at 11,148,000 bales.

Liverpool cables reported Continental and Bombay buying and said there was an improved demand for cotton cloths from South America and Africa.

The market was comparatively quiet later in the morning and business was probably restricted by the proximity of tomorrow's local holiday during which the New Orleans and Liverpool markets will be open for business as usual. There was further near month liquidation and switching to later deliveries, with some evidencing of the difference between months which gave the market rather an irregular appearance but the tone was fairly steady around midday with new December at 11.20 and May at 11.81 or about 9 to 15 points net higher on the general list.

She Was A GIRL GANGSTER

And She Fell HARD For A Kid From Yale!

He was a callow, untried kid, but his dad was "Tall Tom" Gillespie, ace racketeer, and he'd no sooner left the campus than he was swirled into the fierce feuds of New York's hoodlum and hijack coast—and into the vibrant presence of red-headed Polack Annie.

Whether or not you have read Lait's other nationally successful Polack Annie story, "Put on the Spot," you will want to begin

BOND MARKET FIRM, BUT QUIET

Rails and Utilities Up While Industrials Lag; U. S. Governments Higher

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Contrasted with the unstable conditions that have prevailed virtually since fall arrived, bond prices were firmer last week, but activity still suffered by comparison with the period when liquidation was in full swing.

For the greater part of the week, domestic railroad and utility issues ignored the influence of the stock market and crept upward, but industrial corporation bonds remained in the doldrums, except for a few obligations. Far more conspicuous was the United States government list which was well supported throughout the weeks of sagging and was considerably strengthened by the inquiry from banks throughout the week. Several issues climbed to new highs for 1930, reaching a peak higher than any attained in three years.

Signs of greater stability in Brazil, and encouraging news of a diverse character from some other foreign countries put new vitality into the foreign market, and the widest gains of the week were in that sections of the stock exchange list. Substantial recoveries have been made by Latin-American and German bonds from their lows reached several weeks ago.

FOREIGN ISSUES UP

Many of the South American issues have recovered the largest portion of the losses suffered in the swift decline, and some are within a few points of the mid-September prices just before the decline set in. Peru 6s of 1960, Peru 7s of 1959, Chile 6s of 1961 and 1963, Bolivian 7s of 1969 and the 8s of 1969, Brazilian 8s, 7 1/8s and 6 1/2s which dipped as much as 30 points in some instances have come back strongly.

The German list moved spasmodically, but retraced part of the ground lost in the selling. German 7s, which sagged 5 points to 160 1/8, sold at the end of the week around 163, and German international 5 1/2s, down 9 points to 73 1/2 a short time ago, sold as high as 80. German municipals and industrials moved irregularly higher.

NEW OFFERINGS LIGHT

While not entirely divorced from the influence of the share market, bonds were steadier as a whole on days when share prices were reactionary than they have been in recent weeks. It is generally accepted that the principal cause of the setback in bond prices this fall has been due to liquidation by speculators to protect their stock market accounts, with the break in foreign bonds as an additional factor. Uncertainty over the trend of bond prices virtually stopped public offering of new issues last week, the total of $17,643,000, half of which was in municipal bonds, was the smallest of the year, with but one exception.

CRUDE OIL PRICE AT LOW MARK

FRANKLIN, Pa., Nov. 3.—With the second 15-cent cut in Pennsylvania crude oil in 10 days, the price is now the lowest since November 18, 1915. Unusually large refining inventories, unseasonable falling off in demand for products, ascribed to present economic situation, and over production of crude are factors ascribed for the cut. The quotation now is so low that few lease owners can afford to operate their properties.

Figures reveal steady falling off in Bradford-Allegheny field production, but in the remainder of Pennsylvania producing area there is a gradual let-up in curtailment plan, observers find.

Committee Seeks Alton Deposits

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—A stockholders' committee, headed by E. A. Pierce, is seeking deposits of both preferred and common stocks of the Chicago and Alton Railroad "in order more effectively to protect stockholders' interests" in any acquisition of that railroad by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, an announcement today said. Mr. Pierce said the committee was formed in 1922 and since that time has been working toward an amicable adjustment of the differences between various litigants.

Atchison Loadings Jump During Week

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Atchison Railway in October handled 181,178 loaded cars, against 162,611 in September and 214,098 in October, 1929.

Atchison will place orders for 1,000 box cars, 500 refrigerator cars and other equipment, to cost almost $5,000,000.

FREE WANT ADS AID JOBLESS

Seeking to relieve the present unemployment situation, the Sun-Telegraph has thrown open its want ad columns to the home-owners of Pittsburgh and other more fortunate individuals who will be given an opportunity to aid those out of work and at the same time see many odd tasks accomplished.

If Sun-Telegraph readers need their walks repaired, roofs, spoutings or porches fixed, plumbing renovated or repaired, coal put in or gardens and flower-beds made ready for the winter, wall paper cleaned, windows washed, or wish their car washed and polished at home, they can give aid to the unemployed by notifying this newspaper.

If you can offer work of any kind to any one, whether for a day, week or indefinitely, and the job pays a salary or wage, call Grant 5400 or stop at Want Ad Corner, Fifth Avenue and Market Street, and the Sun-Telegraph will run a "Help Wanted" ad free of charge.

Any job which you thought you might do for yourself, but for which you never found time, will give a less fortunate individual a chance of employment.

DAILY TRUE STORY

Useless

"The Gliddens have all been workers—except you, Tom," old Jonas Glidden said, harshly.

Tom Glidden flushed a little at this.

"We've been ambitious to build up our bakery business. From a little back room, 40 years ago, now we have this six-story plant and employ more than a thousand people—we've all put our earnings back into the business—except you."

Tom stared moodily at his uncle.

"We've married good women."

"That's all out of you, Uncle Jonas," Tom said, sharply.

"Now, now—don't fly off in a temper, listen to what I am going to say. We've all married good women, sensible women, women not afraid to jump right into the business with us and work every day."

"I don't intend to have Connie slave around the bakery for anyone—I can support her, and there's no use for you to argue. Connie has agreed to marry me. I'm going to marry her. I'm going to support her and she isn't going to drag herself down to the bakery every day of her life and grow wrinkled with worry for fear you are snooping around watching to see if she loafs."

"There you go," Jonas said, "flying off the handle without the least reason."

Tom Determined

"Reason enough—even your own daughters work like slaves and are afraid of you."

"Tut-tut, Tom. Listen to reason. This Cornelia Whitcomb is a pretty little girl, but she's sort of useless. That's it, useless. She probably couldn't do a good day's work here. My Susan can do at least four times the work this little Connie can do. Is she any sort of a wife to bring into our family?"

"I'm not going to bring Connie into your family. We are going to live our own lives, in our own way."

"You're stubborn, Tom. If you'd take as much interest in our business as the rest of us do, if you'd just put half your salary and your quarterly dividends back into the plant, in time you'd be rich. Now, if you'd get some sense and marry Katie Cole."

"I am going to marry Connie. We are going to live in the little cobblestone bungalow on Mason street. I've bought it and furnished it, Connie selecting the furnishings. Instead of turning my quarterly dividends back into the company, so as to earn more dividends to turn back and thus make added dividends to put into the business, and so on and on, as the rest of you have been doing for years, I bought the house with the money. I've told you what you can do—buy me out—not at your figure, but at a figure agreed upon by experts who will give an honest valuation of one-sixth. Or you can let up trying to make me marry that fat, red-faced, dumb ox, Katie Cole, speak respectfully to Connie whenever you see her, and stop calling her a useless girl. She heard you the last time and it nearly broke her heart."

Marries Connie

Tom and Connie were married at her home. His uncle claimed press of business and didn't attend. His aunt, his married cousin and one of his single cousins attended the home ceremony and then rushed back to the bakery.

After their two weeks' honeymoon trip, at a famous hotel up in the Thousand Islands, Tom and Connie returned. Connie to begin housekeeping and Tom to overwork in the bakery office.

Connie knew something was wrong that night and made him tell her. Instead of being hurt, she laughed.

"Your uncle doesn't mean half he says. He's an unfortunate old party who thinks it's a sin to smile or to sit down and rest."

They were afraid Jonas would die. Tom went over to see him every day. On the third day Tom said: "Needn't worry, Uncle Jonas. Connie is a good bookkeeper and she has come in to help me out—"

One day he came back to the office, unexpectedly.

"What you tryin' to do—ruin the business?" he growled at Tom. "For 20 years we been putting our fancy crackers up in one style. Now you're putting them out in a silly new-fangled way with this sort of glass-like paper and in silly new boxes—and I see you've added a lot of darn-fool cakes and crackers and cookies with crazy names—now this has got to stop right now."

"But, Uncle Jonas—"

"Never mind excuses. I'm head of this business. I won't stand for it. I knew darn well you'd try to ruin everything. I give this business just six months to last after I'm gone, with you having anything to say, Tom—"

Connie came in from the bookkeeping office.

"That's all right, Uncle Jonas," she said, "but don't blame Tom. I got up the new packages and the new wrappers. If you want to go back to the old style, that will suit me—the Cartlandt money is as good as yours."

Carlandt was the big rival baking concern.

Uncle Apologizes

"What do you mean?" Jonas asked, suspiciously, "they been payin' you to take up these fool things and ruin my trade?"

He examined the reports. Already the last month's sales had doubled any previous month in the company's history. She showed him orders for more of these new goods that almost frightened him.

"You see I've patented these new cartons and wrapping devices, also the new styles in cakes and crackers and cookies, and their names. I've let you have the use of them while you were sick, which repays you for giving me desk room here, and now I can accept this offer—"

"She would—why not? You admit yourself that Connie is useless," Tom said sharply.

"I'll better the Cartlandt offer and give you an equal share with Tom—and apologize—first time I ever apologized in my life," Jonas told her.

Tom and Connie started on a 20-months trip around the world now, but had to cancel the last of it because Connie wanted her baby born in the United States.

Jonas talks a lot about Tom now. Often he says, "Yes, sir, my nephew, Tom, is one smart young man—only a smart young man would have guessed how smart the girl was he married."

In due time Tom sent a note over to his uncle, which he read to his secretary, who was also his daughter:

"Tom's got a son—named him—named him—good Godfrey! they up and named him 'Useless!'" he gasped.

His daughter looked at the note.

Prominent doctors have indorsed Tennis Weenie golf playing as good and soothing for people suffering from mental disorders.

Trouble with the indorsement is that it won't get any new business to speak of.

* * *

* * *

People with mental disorders decided for themselves in favor of pee wee golf a long time ago.

* * *

It would be smarter if the miniature golf promoters got doctors to say that the game was all right for normal people.

TODAY'S CRIME MYSTERY

(Elko, Nevada, Independent.)

"The latest Big Town crook job to occur in Elko occurred between 3 and 4 a. m. today when the big fine six-shooter belonging to Officer Ed Kendrick was removed from its holster while Ed slept for a moment in the lobby of the Mayer Hotel."

LOVE SONG

(After reading entirely too much about what is and wrong with the country.)

What if I each you now and then
And cause you worries dental?
Our differences, my little wren,
You must call fundamental;
For though we argue, rage and fight
In manner quite pragnathic
Our troubles all are really slight
And largely psychopathic.

Q. and A. Department

Dear Sympathetic Aunt Bella—I made four dates with a gal and she never showed up. What do you think of her, dear sympathetic Aunt Bella?—Spencer.

Ans.—Well now, Master Spencer, I find it just a wee bit difficult to answer your question candidly without taking more into consideration than I know very much about. She might have had her reasons. I ain't sayin', of course, you understand, either way, whether she did or did not; but as a matter of fact, if she did have her reasons and everything, I might think quite a bit of her, after all, if you see what I mean.

Vote for Pinchot

His Opponent, Inexperienced In Public Affairs, Is Supported by the Unfair Public Utilities.

Citizens of Pennsylvania will be called upon tomorrow to elect a governor.

One of the candidates, Gifford Pinchot, the Republican nominee, has been in public life for many years. His chief opponent, John M. Hemphill, the Democratic nominee, is comparatively unknown.

Pinchot was governor of Pennsylvania from 1922 to 1926. He gave a good administration. He found the state $32,000,000 in debt when he took office, and he not only wiped out the debt, but left office with a comfortable balance in the state treasury. But while he practiced stern economy, he did not neglect the legitimate needs of the Commonwealth.

Hemphill, now seeking the highest office in the state, is without experience in public affairs, never having held office.

The most important issue is whether the public utilities are going to be permitted to continue to prey on the people of Pennsylvania. The Public Service Commission, appointed to serve the people, has betrayed them and granted some of the utilities companies privileges to which they are not entitled. The commission has given the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company a monopoly in Pittsburgh and authorized it to charge 25 cents for a ride that costs only 10 cents in other cities. The commission has given the Pennsylvania Railroad a monopoly of many bus routes. It has failed in other cases, also, to protect the people.

Pinchot hopes to abolish the Public Service Commission and substitute in its place a Fair Rate Board. He hopes to make the public utilities give the people fair rates and good service.

Vote for Pinchot tomorrow.

Vote for James J. Davis for United States Senator. He has a splendid record of public service.

Air Hub

With the inauguration of the new aviation line to Cincinnati, Pittsburgh may be said to have "arrived" as an air center. We now have regular daily service to New York, Los Angeles, Cleveland, Washington and Cincinnati.

It is but to be expected, however, that the picture will change somewhat as the industry settles down and attains greater stability. There is already talk of the consolidation of some of the rival companies and of the elimination of duplicate service.

This will not be unwelcome from the standpoint of the public if it makes for greater efficiency.

Hero Awards

Long familiarity with the commission's work has somewhat dulled public interest in it. But the reports of courageous deeds on which the awards are based still make inspiring reading.

Particularly impressive among the Pennsylvania cases which have just received recognition from the commission is that in which a Philadelphia boy saved two men from suffocation by gas. One man had gone to the rescue of another, overcome in a gas-filled pit, and was himself overcome. The Philadelphia boy was attracted to the scene as he was passing in an automobile. He took what seemed a desperate chance, and succeeded in saving both men.

If you are inclined to be a misanthrope, read the Carnegie Commission's reports on heroism. They will increase your respect for the human race.

Trail for Hikers

It Is Gratifying to Learn of a Long Cross-Country Route Marked for Walking Trips.

Automobiles have taken much of the pleasure out of walking. There is no fun in a hike in the country if one has to be dodging motor cars all the time.

It is gratifying, therefore, to learn of a long cross-country route, avoiding the paved roads, that has been specially marked for walking trips. It is called the Appalachian Trail, it extends from Maine to Georgia, and the Pennsylvania section has almost been completed. Officials of the Appalachian Trail Club, under the guidance of state foresters, erected hundreds of markers on the trail in Pennsylvania last week.

It is gratifying to see this inducement held out for cross-country walking, because it is healthful exercise and offers fine opportunities to enjoy nature, study birds and flowers, take pictures and appreciate scenery.

One will get far more out of a trip made by shank's mare than out of one over the same route by automobile. When something interesting is observed from the car, the machine will not be stopped, perhaps, until it has gone a hundred yards beyond, and that dampens one's enthusiasm about going back. There may be no place to park alongside the road. And even if one does stop and go back the woodchuck may have dived into his hole or the bird flown.

For the best suggestion received in the next 60 seconds we will donate a scholarship to our palatial estate in the public park.

Here are some fair ones from the man who had the hot dog concession at the last Democratic convention. He never has understood how the Democrats rolled up 15,000,000 votes while he only sold 30 frankfurters.

Why not turn the miniature golf courses into parking spaces for baby Austins? If you shake your tablecloth out of the window you are liable to lose your car.

We notice that the birds are a long time getting South since the government turned the courses into bird sanctuaries.

We must make some use of those spaces. We don't want to waste all that territory both winter and summer.

We were going to offer a first prize of a million certified wafers for the finest idea. But we don't like to get sued for that much money.

We hope that the gigantic intellects now dipping bread into coffee cups will concentrate on the tremendous horizons left vacant by the last cold snap.

The miniature golf course is the world's last frontier. Its towering bunkers and stately divots have never been violated by the foot of intelligent man. We might use it as a reviewing grounds for the Navy. But in another year it will be too big for that.

Write only on one side of the paper. And very little on that. Also enclose all the two-cent stamps you can stuff into Grover Whalen's high hat.

SIR HUMPHREY DAVY

By Archibald Henderson

Sir Humphrey Davy, an extraordinary figure in the history of science, revolutionized the chemistry of his day. He was avid of fame, and attaining it early in life, became grossly egotistic and spoiled by success. But the public and the great men of his day accepted him at his own high valuation; and his lectures in science were amazingly popular. He stands out in striking contrast to the protege whom he discovered, Michael Faraday, the most modest of great scientists.

Davy was born at Penzance, Cornwall, on December 17, 1778, the son of a wood-carver. At school, he was brilliant, but capricious. After his father's death, he was apprenticed, at the age of 16, by his godfather, John Tonkin, to an apothecary. He was soon tinkering with chemicals and queer appliances; and began to make experiments in the field of pneumatic chemistry. He early began to record the results of his findings, and in 1799 published a book, Essays on Heat and Light.

Shortly after Dr. Thomas Beddoes had established in 1798 at Clifton, a suburb of Bristol, a Pneumatic Institute for the cure of diseases by the inhalation of gases, he appointed as the superintendent young Davy, whose published researches had attracted his attention. Beddoes published some of Davy's researches. The latter was indefatigable in inhaling gases, sometimes to the detriment of his health. In 1800 he praised nitrous oxide (laughing gas) for easing pain, and predicted its use in the performance of surgical operations.

Shortly after the establishment of the Royal Institution in 1799, Davy was appointed first director of the laboratory and assistant lecturer in chemistry, being raised to the post of lecturer in chemistry in 1801. The lectures he delivered attracted great throngs, finally as many as 1,000 at a lecture watching his experiments and hanging on his words with bated breath. In 1802 he was made professor in the Royal Institution.

Davy's discoveries were of great importance, and far-reaching in their influence. He showed that the alkalies and earths are compound substances formed by oxygen united with metallic bases. Following in the path of Galvani and Volta, and employing a powerful electric battery, he succeeded in discovering the elementary metals: potassium, sodium, magnesium, calcium, strontium and barium.

Davy's conclusions were also based on wide research; and he possessed the rare gift, peculiar to the greatest scientists, of foreseeing and predicting results. Davy is particularly remembered for his important discoveries regarding chlorine. He proved that chlorine is an element, and that muriatic, or hydrochloric, acid is a compound of chlorine and hydrogen.

Davy is well known for his studies in agriculture; and they gave a new impetus to scientific farming. His invention of the safety lamp for miners was a great boon to humanity.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Is the American girl the most mercenary young female on earth—or the most sensible? I'm wondering. Here's the reason.

A few weeks ago Margie laid her plight before this column. Margie is a charming youngster, and smart as she is pretty. For several years she's held a good job and saved a large share of her earnings, in preparation for the career which she hoped to have. Then suddenly came the Most Wonderful Man, striding across the horizon and, before she quite knew what had happened, no career on earth seemed worth a rap to Margie save that of being "The Missis."

But—there was a catch in the plot. The Most Wonderful was long o character, but short on kopecks. To be exact, he didn't have a dime outside his modest wage. And how could they start a real home on that unless—

Should she? Would any real man expect her to? That was Margie's question. And to me the answer seemed simple.

For why should any girl hesitate to give a man her savings if she'd take the infinitely greater risk of giving him her heart? And why shouldn't the modern working girl be willing to assume equal responsibility for the home if she demanded and received equal rights in the working mart?

That was our answer. However, we thought we'd call for opinions—just to prove we were right. Did we prove it? We did not!

Dear Miss Robinson:

If the woman doesn't want to act as a buffer against life's future financial problems, let her keep the knowledge of her little nest egg to herself. If she once assumes the financial responsibility of the family, as she will do if she offers her savings in order to have an earlier marriage, she will be left "holding the bag" for the rest of their married life.

It is so easy to "let the other fellow do it" and no one can blame a man for taking advantage if some strong-minded, or simple-minded female offers him an advantageous partnership without financial obligation. A great deal of the bloom of romance is brushed off if so definite a money arrangement is made prior to marriage and sooner or later the wife is bound to have one of two reactions—either she will feel that the man should be eternally grateful for her help or she will be resentful because he accepted that help and continue to think of him as a "weak sister."

In my opinion there should be heaps of romance, moonlight, honeysuckle and love talk and very little money discussion. Nature seems to have a way of making real love matches pay and heaven knows we females have little enough of the sweet things before married life begins taking its toll of us.

FAITH SUMMIT.

So that's your idea of the way a sweet young girl should demonstrate "real love," is it, lady? Well, it's certainly wonderful how the human soul can kid itself along. However, don't worry about my callous sneers. Here's "One in the Pit" from Cincinnati, O., who agrees with you perfectly.

Dear Miss Robinson:

Every girl should safeguard her future by keeping an ace up her sleeve. You can give a man your heart and that should be enough for him, for by the time the years begin to tell he will probably desert you and then, unless you have kept your money, you are forsaken indeed—no one wants a widow unless her purse is full.

ONE IN THE PIT.

Corinne, however, would give her dollars gladly if by so doing she could lighten her lover's load. I do NOT know her address, gentlemen, but I'm all for her sentiments.

"It isn't fair to hold a man's lack of savings against him, if he's honest and willing to work," she cries. "A girl can save money much easier than a fellow. He is the one who has to dig into his pocketbook before you are married, while the only time you open your bag is to powder your nose. If I loved a poor man I'd make sure, first, that he was worthy of my trust. When I was sure of that I'd never hesitate to say—'What does it matter whose money it is, as long as we both love?'"

CORINNE.

But Corinne is only one small "yea" in a multitude of "nays." Things certainly look black for the boys—and me thinking, all the time, that the coy young critters would never count the cost! However, maybe that's as things should be. So I'm asking—

Is the American girl the most mercenary young female on record . . . or the most sensible? What's your vote on these results?

Text For Today

When You Buy—

A Radio.

THE RADIO—AND THOSE WHO MAKE IT

Radio, three or four years ago a luxury, is now a necessity in every household.

If you have none, and can afford one, the present is a good time to buy.

Never before were prices so low, or receiving sets so near perfection.

The family without a radio today might as well be marooned on a desert island, as far as keeping in touch with the latest news, the latest opinion, the latest entertainment is concerned.

In these respects, radio has abolished time and space, brought the world to your easy chair.

Not to take advantage of it is to cut yourself off from the era you live in, like some hermit of the dark ages.

Buy a radio if you can afford it. It is worth the money. And what you pay will be distributed among many. The sketch above shows a few.

Metal workers, glass workers, cabinet makers, assemblers, artists, performers—all share in the purchase price and spend their earnings for other products.

Business is stimulated thereby, not only ONE business, but ALL business. Jobs are created, unemployment is cut down, customers are made for articles that perhaps YOU sell or produce.

Economists estimate that if everybody in the United States would spend five dollars a week more than they have been spending for a period of only two weeks, the so-called depression would be transformed into a genuine boom.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Diary of a modern Pepys: An anonymous letter to my wife said her husband was dining at Pierre's with a blonde, which was true, happening to be my wife in person. So across town with Nina Ayres and the Rialto still mourns that valiant dancing man, Jack Donahue.

Journeyed far down town on the elevated and leaving the train absent mindedly tried to walk down an upgoing escalator and a guard inquired witheringly: "How do you like the city?" So to Gotham to see Frank R. Vance from my home town and for a walk, talking of days when our world was young.

Home and an interesting note from well remembered Julia Arthur and counting my books autographed by authors, there being 809, all the estate I shall leave. So to see "Girl Crazy" which save for a Gershwin tune or so I thought quite dull.

Nothing terrifies New York so much as a disaster at sea. And thus do fake sellers of extra editions profit. Every few weeks they go yowling through the streets: Big Liner in Danger!" and clean up. I sat in with the suckers today. The actual news under a small 18-pt. head was: "Barge Aground in Hudson!"

A style expert broadcasts: "As aristocratic as a dress shirt!" And just between us, beak to beak, is anything so annoying? Outside of drawing a slate pencil through clenched teeth nothing gives me the brr-r-r-r's like those crepitant—manage that one without a dictionary and win a pet parrot—noises from a stiffly laundered shirt.

Six Broadway drugstores feature Chinese chow mein at soda fountains and thus try to horn in on enormous profits of chop suey cafes that have driven almost all other type of restaurants off that rapidly decaying highway. Chinese places with no cover charge, excellent orchestras and shadowy booths continue to pack 'em in.

* * *

The most satisfying Chink meal I've found in town was at the Port Arthur in Chinatown some years ago. On a balcony we had just been served a pickled delicacy known as kumquats when autos seemed to be backfiring in the pinched street below. I leaned over the balcony and leaned right back again. A tong war was tonging with sawed off shot-guns blazing and several sprawled bodies stretched out on sidewalks. We made a hasty exit without tasting a kumquat. Or paying the check.

Near the Palace is a pavement grating known in the neighborhood as "The waffle iron." Here hoofers gather to exchange gossip and practise new steps. Once in a while George M. Cohan stops by. More than 1,000 of the feather-footed are jobless at the moment.

Someone mails a clipping from the old Evening Mail of 16 years ago. It is an editorial captioned: "New York Needs a Young Mayor With a Sense of Humor." So now what?

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You are cutting down your outlays because you feel the spirit of retrenchment.

Your income may be as large and as secure as ever, with more than enough money to meet your wants for the rest of your life.

There is no real reason for curtailing your expenditures.

Thousands of others are pinching their dollars and thereby shutting off from circulation money that would help greatly in improving the unemployment of labor situation.

It is good judgment for those who are not financially fortified against the future to be careful in buying and investments.

Hoarding is a different matter and where it is unnecessary is doing its share in having a detrimental effect on the financial system of the country.

There is no advantage in waiting until later if building or repairs are contemplated for labor and material are about as low as they can be.
